Ike Says Force Won't Be Used In Repatriation

WASHINGTON, — (P) — The new United Nations plan for a Korean armistice proposes that only India's troops be sent to Korea to guard prisoners refusing to be sent following a truce, informed sources reported today.

The U. N. plan rejects the Communist proposal that Red Polish and Czech troops be dispatched to Korea to guard the unwilling prisoners.

The Allies — and particularly South Korea — had objected to the presence of large numbers of Red troops at prison camps. They fear the Reds will intimidate or coerce prisoners rejecting communism.

However, the Allies will go along with previous plans to appoint a neutral five-nation commission that would supervise the handling of the prisoners, the sources said.

Details of the plan began unfolding here after President Eisenhower stated last night that prisoners would not be repatriated by force nor would they be "coerced or intimidated in any way."
