THEY LIKE THE WATER — A group of fifteen children aged from seven to eight, showed up this morning for swimming lessons, conducted by Park Manager Paul Waggoner. As the first step, Coach Waggoner shows them how buoyant they are by having them kick free of the bottom in the shallow end of the pool as they hold on to the side of the pool with their hands. Coach Waggoner is shown at the far end, marking the farthest out the youngsters can go during this first lesson. (Daily Record-Photo)

Great Things In Southern Industry Seen

ATLANTA — (AP) — A Southern governor and a scientific research director predicted great things today for the South industrially during the next decade.

H. McKinley Conway Jr., director of the Southern Association of Science and Industry, predicted in a speech at Chapel Hill, N. C., that more than 3,000 new multi-million dollar manufacturing plants will be built in the South during the ten-year period.

At Chattanooga, Tenn., Gov. Herman Talmadge of Georgia told a service club that the South's combination of electrical power, mineral resources, water supply and reservoir of workers should combine to make the next ten years a gratifying era of industrial progress.

Talmadge said the South's improved methods in agriculture also are helping the region economically.

BASED ON SURVEYS

Conway based his predictions on extensive surveys made by the SAST, a non-profit scientific research organization.

He said that if estimates prove correct, the ten-year period to 1963 would bring the South up to the national average in per capita income, reverse the flow of college graduates from the region and relegate the old tenant farming system to the past.

Conway predicted that 10,000 professional scientists would be added in Southern industry and that it would be necessary to build about 200 major plants to produce new products, "not yet discovered."

In his estimate of new industry, Conway listed ten plants involving atomic energy.

Wilson Is Hit By Heavy Rains

WILSON — (AP) — A cloudburst poured 4.25 inches of rain on this Eastern North Carolina city last night, blocking a major highway, flooding streets and causing damage to a number of homes.

The rainfall, heaviest here in at least 20 years, was apparently local. No serious crop damage in this rich agricultural section was reported immediately.

Most of the near-record rainfall fell within one hour, weather bureau observers said, and the total was measured within a four-hour period.

Nearby Rocky Mount had 2.18 inches during the night.

A less severe rain hit Moncure, N. C., in the upper Cape Fear River basin, dumping more than two inches in that area.

The state highway patrol blocked U. S. 301 here for more than two miles as rain-clogged storm sewers backed water more than six feet deep under railroad underpasses.

Ginners Of Seven Counties Given Optimistic Reports

Cotton ginners from seven counties, meeting here today for the annual session of the Central District of the Carolinas Ginners Association, were given an optimistic outlook for the season and were told that the National Cotton Council is finding more and more uses for cotton.

Charles E. Boyce, Jr., of Charlotte, representative of the council, told of the efforts being made to promote the use of cotton and the research program to find new uses for the lint.

He reported that cotton is again stylish in the women's clothing field and that the biggest promotion of cotton is now taking place in ladies' clothing.

Myres W. Tilghman of Dunn, president of the Carolinas Ginners Association, presided over the meeting, held in the General Lee Room of Johnson's Restaurant.

Present for the meeting were ginners of Harnett, Johnston, Cumberland, Sampson, Robeson, Lee and Hoke counties.

Speakers included representatives of agriculture, the cotton manufacturing industry and officials of State College Extension Service.

Reports were heard from each county that the cotton crop is good despite the fact that boll weevil infestation is heavy. The ginners said they were stepping up promotion of poisoning efforts to kill the weevils.

Two panel discussions were held. Vernon W. Hill of Raleigh was moderator of a discussion on "Technical Problems." Members of the panel were: George Lennard and Lee O. Penno of Wilson, Pat Jones and Candler C. Miller of Raleigh.

The second panel discussion, "The Ginners Interest In Cotton Quality," was moderated by D. H. Stancil of the U. S. Department of Agriculture in Raleigh.

Members of the panel were: O. L. Stubbs of Fayetteville, T. H. Sansom of Dunn, and Fred P. Johnson of Raleigh.

DIRECTORS RE-ELECTED

During the business session, Mr. Tilghman and Clyde E. Upchurch Jr., of Raeford were re-elected to the board of directors of the Carolinas Ginners Association as representatives of the Central District.

Clark Is Given New Three-Point Armistice Plan

SEOUL, Korea. — (AP) — Defiant President Syngman Rhee said today his army would "fight alone" if an unacceptable truce is signed and warned his troops would fight any Indians sent to guard war prisoners.

The 78-year-old president made it clear in two public statements and at a 15-minute meeting with Gen. Mark W. Clark that South Korea's "final" decision was to continue the fight against the Communists.

Rhee also gave Clark a three-point armistice plan that would remove Chinese Communist troops from North Korea, give Rhee a mutual security pact with the United States, and limit a post-war political conference in Korea to three months.

He told Clark at the presidential palace in a remarkably friendly meeting that his decision to reject the current agreement between the United Nations and Communists is unchanged.

Clark flew back to Tokyo shortly afterward, giving Rhee a cordial back-slap before getting on the plane.

DENIES 'ULTIMATUM'

Rhee denied reports Clark had handed him an ultimatum during a 70-minute meeting yesterday and the brief encounter today.

"It would be more correct to say I delivered the ultimatum," Rhee said.

U. S. Ambassador Ellis O. Briggs, who visited Rhee after Clark left, said Rhee and Clark had "a friendly conversation."

United Nations officials and 8th Army officers appeared convinced the rebellious Rhee actually would not send his 400,000 - man army against 1,000,000 Chinese and North Koreans.

They believed, however, that Rhee had "reserved the right" to take independent action against the Communists.

Rhee emphasized in his interview his position as the major force standing between the U.N. and a truce with the Reds.

"They do not try to force the Kremlin or the Chinese Communists," he said. "They only try to force me, a stubborn, weak old man. How can they think of such a thing? I can't understand it."

In giving Clark his three point plan for peace, Rhee said "we wish to continue the war" unless the U.N. accepts his plan.

Churchill Asks 4-Power Meeting

LONDON — (AP) — The pressures and stresses which have produced revolt in Soviet East Germany, riots in satellite Czechoslovakia and unrest in the Ukraine have convinced Prime Minister Winston Churchill that this is the time the Western Big Three should confer with Russia.

Churchill is reported to have evolved a plan which, he hopes, may overcome President Dwight D. Eisenhower's objection to a top level meeting with Soviet leaders.

The idea would be to arrange a preliminary, four-power meeting with Premier George Malenkov with the understanding that the Western representatives would attend primarily to listen to what Moscow has to say.

County Agent Finds Real Success Story

Someone has made the statement that nothing succeeds like success. In visiting the farm of Carson Gregory and Joe Sokolowski a few days ago I observed a success story unfolding on this farm that is a real inspiration to me and to the dairy industry of Harnett County, stated C. R. Ammons here today.

Carson Gregory and Joe Sokolowski have an outstanding rental and working arrangement for both the land and the farm. In cooperation with Mr. Howard Watkins, County Supervisor of the Farmers Home Administration in Harnett County, who has assisted through his agricultural agency in providing the necessary capital to get this dairy operation going, Mr. Gregory for a number of years has been developing a good lot of Ladino and Rescue pasture for grazing purposes.

Mr. Sokolowski, who is a native of Wisconsin and who during his military service connection was transplanted to North Carolina and here in Johnston County met and later married Miss Ruby Jerri-gan, who is a sister of Mrs. Pauline Tarr of Erwin, on March 1 entered upon this enterprise actively. In February of this year these gentlemen went to the state of Wisconsin and there purchased fifteen head of outstanding Holstein cows. The later acquired five Wisconsin heifers that had been grown out here in North Carolina since (Continued on Page Eight)

City Commissioner J. Leon Godwin said today that the city council is scheduled to meet again this week to discuss an ordinance governing new sub-divisions taken into the town but said he didn't think the action taken at the last meeting would be rescinded.

At its last meeting, the council repealed a prior ordinance which required property owners to install water and sewer facilities before the town would bring them into the city limits.

The board agreed to furnish the labor on the Fishman project, which will cost the taxpayers an estimated $5,000-$6,000.

Commissioners J. V. Bass and Bill Bryan and City Manager A. B. Uzzle objected vigorously to using tax money for improvement to private property, but Mayor Ralph E. Hanna broke the tie and voted with Commissioners Godwin and E. A. Bracey to repeal the ordinance.

Mayor Hanna, who has spearheaded movements to buy new fire trucks and other expensive equipment here to strain the taxpayers, last year voted against reducing taxes. The Town of Dunn reportedly now has more fire-fighting equipment than most cities with twice the population. Dunn's tax rate is one of the highest in the State.

McKay Is Heard By Local Club

Major George P. McKay gave the members of the Dunn Rotary Club an idea of the present situation of the Air Force in a talk at the regular meeting of the Dunn Civic Club Friday night.

Major McKay described the post-war Air Force and told the group what the new economy moves would mean to his branch of the services. He described the purchasing methods now in use all of which are designed to economize for the Air Force, the most possible for the money invested.

He gave a breakdown of the Air Force as it is now constituted and showed where this differed from the old setup when the Air Force was a branch of the Army and not a separate service.

Major McKay, who was introduced by his brother, Leon McKay, is currently stationed at Lockbourne Air Force Base, Columbus, Ohio. Prior to that he was stationed at Barksdale Field near Shreveport, La. He is with the Tactical Air Command.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — In the future, the government will pocket any profits that may result from the resale of cotton taken over under the farm price support program. Previously, the government merely absorbed losses. If there happened to be a profit, it went back to the farmers who had put their cotton under price support loans.

LONDON — (AP) — "The strangler of Notting Hill" confessed today to murdering seven women and told how he gassed and slowly choked his victims to death in a deck chair while making love to them.

More sex murders were pinned on John R. Christie by his own attorney as the defendant was put in the witness box at the second day of his trial on charges of killing his wife.

Derek Curtis-Bennett, famed British lawyer who defended atom-bomb maker Klaus Fuchs, said he would prove Christie "is as mad as a March hare when he kills people."

He asked the jury for a special verdict of "guilty but insane" despite the formal defense plea of innocent.

HE LOOKS MEEK

The meek-looking little clerk took the stand before a packed court at London's Old Bailey court-house.

Dressed in a dark blue suit with a dotted necktie, he put out a hand to steady himself as he climbed into the box. His face was pale. His eyes stared blankly through his thick horn-rimmed glasses and his voice could barely be heard as he took the oath as a witness.

Speaking in a voice that was inaudible at times, Christie recounted each of his seven confessed slayings beginning with a 21-year-old Austrian girl who disappeared 10 years ago and whose body was found in his garden.

At no time did he speak above a whisper. The bewigged judge had to lean over to catch some of his replies and relay them to the court.

He said that in April, 1952, his doctor told him to go to a hospital for mental treatment but "I (Continued on Page 8)

Officers Make Whiskey Haul

Harnett County became considerably drier in fact as it is in theory over the weekend as officers poured out a total of 116 gallons of illegal liquor.

Officiating at the ceremony were Deputy Sheriffs B. E. Sturgill, C. E. Moore, Wade Stewart, and Constable O. R. Pearce. The pouring job required considerable time, since the liquor was contained in some 120 fruit jars and some five gallon pails.

Fifty gallons of the total was poured out in the Dunn Police Station. It had been captured earlier in the week and the three persons arrested had pleaded guilty and been sentenced in Dunn Recorder's Court.

The remaining 66 gallons was captured in a raid made by Sturgill, Moore, and Stewart Saturday afternoon. No one was arrested in this raid. This whiskey was poured into a swamp near where it was found and the containers smashed with bullets and against tree stumps.

Curb Market To Be Talked

Organization of a curb market will be one of the topics of discussion at a joint meeting of the Chamber of Commerce Agriculture Committee and the "Finner Carolina" committee. It was announced today. The meeting is set for June 29, at 10:00 a. m.

The establishment of a curb market here is one of the projects accepted as part of the program for the coming year in the Finner Carolina contest, and the committee composed of Louis Baer, Carl Fitchett Jr., and Chamber of Commerce Manager Norman Stutles went to Fayetteville recently with County Agent C. R. Ammons and Home Agent Miss Lela Huntley to look over a similar market there.

Mr. Baer said the women of the county in the various Home Demonstration Clubs would probably operate the market, if it was opened here. He said he had offered the facilities of part of one of his warehouses for this purpose.

Approximately thirty young people are in the group bringing to about 100 the number who have attended camp this year. Seventy others went to the camp last week.

Adults accompanying the group are T. D. O'Quinn, assistant County Agent and Miss Ellen Stewart, secretary in the Home Agent's office.
