Ordinance On Signs Clarified By Uzzle Here This Morning

City Manager A. B. Uzzle pointed out today that there has been a misunderstanding of the sign ordinance. Signs may be placed so long as they are not on the strip of land next to the streets, if permission is received, he said.

Uzzle stated that a number of persons have contacted him regarding a ruling and interpretation of the ordinance. Signs placed on a post or building, when the post is on private property, is permitted. However, any sign suspended over a sidewalk or street must be at least 10 feet above the ground.

Permission must be received before these signs can be placed, Uzzle pointed out. Under the ordinance there are specific rules for hanging a sign which must be followed, he stated.

In the meantime, the sign discussion in Dunn was at a standstill today while Town Commissioners await an opinion from the State's Attorney General. J. V. Bass, Councilman, said today that a letter went out to the Attorney General Saturday asking for an opinion on the ordinance. Dispute over the enforcement of the ordinance arose after City Attorney I. R. Williams recommended that Council abolish the ordinance. Williams doubted that it could be enforced, he told Council.

Both Raleigh and Fayetteville have ordinances regulating the placement of the signs which are very close to the one now on the books here in Dunn.

Two Dunn firms are currently violating the ordinance as it now stands by leaving signs up after having been notified to take them down. Fitchett Oil Company removed a sign after being asked to do so, but replaced it after City Attorney Williams asked Council to revoke the ordinance. The ordinance levies a fine of $10 each day the signs remain up after the warning is given.

Truman Won't Say About Adlai In '46

CHICAGO (AP) — Restless Harry S. Truman strolled into City Hall yesterday and found himself in the middle of a news conference.

He told the reporters that Adlai E. Stevenson was the "number one" Democrat in the United States and said "I recognize Stevenson as the head of the party." He had made that same remark before during his visit here.

The former president was asked, however, whether he thought Stevenson would make a strong presidential candidate in 1956 and answered:

"Well, the convention doesn't take place for three years. The time to talk about that is then."

CALLED ON MAYOR Mr. Truman came to City Hall to visit Democratic Mayor Martin Kennedy and found that Kennedy reporters who quickly turned their golden promises," he said. "Republican promises are golden — but Republican performance is tarnished brass."

ADLAI SPEAKS TONIGHT The Democratic meeting will be climaxed tonight when Stevenson makes a nationwide television and radio report on his recent round-the-world tour.

The Democrats gave their North-South loyalty fight a quiet burial, at least until the 1956 national convention, to join hands for the fight to win control of Congress next year.

In his speech last night Truman said that the Republicans claim they are going down the middle of the road.

"But if they are, they're going down it backward," backward mind you — and going backward faster every day," he said.

He said the present Congress, controlled by the GOP by slim margins, is "worse" than the 80th Congress which he criticized strongly in the 1948 campaign.

The fight over the "loyalty oath" adopted at the 1952 national convention was settled with an agreement to have an advisory committee consider his repeal revision. Party leaders anticipated quick approval of that compromise by the executive committee and the full national committee before the windup of their big two-day meeting here kicking off their 1954 congressional campaign.

Stevenson, who is slated to make a major speech tonight reporting on his post-election world tour, entertained a capacity crowd of 1,800 at a $100 a plate dinner Monday night with a quip-filled talk picturing the Eisenhower administration as one of "government by postponement."

"The administration's motto seems to be: 'When in doubt, appoint a commission,'" he said. "And the areas of doubt are very large."

CITES UNFULFILLED PLEDGES He referred to the unfulfilled Republican campaign pledges at the end of the first session of Congress and the appointment of study groups to shape policy on such things as taxes, labor laws and foreign trade.

BABY GIVES 'EM TALK Mr. Truman, in a typical "Give 'em hell" campaign speech, called the Republicans a "wrecking crew" bent on destroying the Democratic achievements of the 20 years. He told fellow Democrats to beware of "smart" liberals like Adlai Stevenson who win by default next year and want a real fight to win the congressional elections.

Boy, 8, Takes Care Of Shot Playmate

DETROIT UP — A frightened, 8-year-old boy didn't know how to dial a telephone sat for an hour beside the instrument waiting for it to ring so he could tell someone his playmate had been shot.

The first caller was Miss Catherine Toomey, assistant school principal at Edgar Guest School, who telephoned to find out where Larry Bradford, 8, was. When Douglas MacDonald answered, Miss Toomey demanded they both come back to school immediately. A weak voice replied: "I can't come to school because Larry shot himself."

STOOD OUTSIDE Douglas couldn't give the address, but he offered "to stand outside so you can see me" if Miss Toomey would hurry over.

She found Douglas on the sidewalk and Larry inside neatly wrapped in a blanket. Douglas had covered his playmate when he complained of being cold.

Larry was taken to a hospital with a bullet wound in the stomach. His condition was listed as serious. Investigating officers said the two boys had gone on a forbidden visit to Larry's house to watch television during the noon hour Monday. They found a .32 caliber pistol in a bedroom.
