Union Leaders Promise To Return Workers

NEW YORK (UP) -- President Eisenhower called forth the Taft-Hartley law today to put an end to a crippling East Coast longshoremen's strike and union leaders promised to get the men back to work.

The strike of 65,000 dockworkers began at midnight and shut down East Coast ports from Maine to Virginia.

Patrick (Packy) Connolly, executive vice president of the crime-riddled International Longshoremen's Association, informed of the President's action, said:

"We'll have the men go back to work as soon as we are notified by the proper authorities that the President has acted."

Connolly has directed the strike strategy on the New York waterfront in the absence of I.L.A. President Joseph P. Ryan, who is in a hospital for observation.

President Eisenhower, invoking the Taft-Hartley law, established an emergency board to investigate the dispute and directed it to report to him by midnight Monday. The White House said the board will hold its first meeting here at 10 a.m. EST Saturday.

TO RELIEVE TENSION -- The President's action was expected to relieve tension on this city's sprawling waterfront, where more than 1,000 policemen were ready to deal with any violence.

Manager Chuck Dressen of the Brooklyn Dodgers called on Yankee nemesis Prescher Roe to take New York bats and even the series at one game apiece.

BULLETIN -- The Yankees held a 1-0 lead over Brooklyn after two innings of the second World Series game.

Roe has beaten the Yankees in two previous World Series efforts, and today's battle was considered by most observers the "crucial one" for the Dodgers at least, as no team has ever lost the two opening games and then come back to win the Series.

Steady Ed Lopat, veteran ace lefty of the New York pitching staff, was scheduled to start.
