Brothers Fighting For Church Of God Control

CLEVELAND, Tenn. (UP) — A Church of God leader showed little concern today over the threatened prospect of having his bishopric taken over by a rival faction headed by his own brother.

Bishop Milton Tomlinson of the "Church of God of Prophecy" said he thought the warning issued from New York by his brother, Bishop Homer Tomlinson, was "just a publicity stunt."

Bishop Homer of "the Church of God" said he would arrive here Oct. 28 to "abolish" his brother's office and to "destroy" the "Prophecy" group's shrine at Burger Mountain, N. C.

The contest would be one for control of the Church of God. He estimated 200,000 members and five million dollars worth of property, Bishop Homer announced.

"I mean he will try to do it if he can," Bishop Milton said. "I'm not making any plans to oppose it."

GIVEN POLICE PROTECTION — When Bishop Homer earlier this month tried to paint the name, "Church of God," on Milton's "World Wide Tabernacle" here, Milton's followers swarmed around Homer and police put him under protective custody.

Bishop Homer said he would return, finish the sign, then proceed to the Burger Mountain shrine "and with my own hands dismantle the Ten Commandments" and "send them to powder."

Bishop Homer said he had placed a tablet of the commandments on the mountain but now is "under it because his brother's group, he threatens to destroy, the commandments," he said, "is instead of God. The church, founded by the Tomlinson's father, Bishop A. J. Tomlinson, has been split for 40 years. In addition to Milton's faction a

CAME TO HARNETT IN 1928 — He located in Lillington for the general practice of medicine in 1928. In his adopted county he was engaged in wide reading and research into the medical history of Harnett County, a field in which he was considered an authority.

County Board Holds Session

Harnett County Commissioners, in a busy Monday morning session, dealt with matters varying from historical floats to a salary raise for the county jailer.

COMMITTEE NAMED — John A. Oates of Fayetteville, chairman of the Cumberland County bicentennial committee, appeared and asked that Harnett enter a float in the parade which will be one of the features of a lavish centennial planned for next April in Fayetteville.

He reminded the board that Harnett was one of the counties carved from original Cumberland.

Malcolm Fowler, of Lillington, John Allen McLeod of Dunn and Leon McDonald of Olivia were named as a committee to discuss details with the Fayetteville committee and to make recommendations to the Harnett board at a later date.

Board members declined to make any changes in the rules that constables must accompany whiskey stills in order for constables to collect their fees.

They asked Sheriff Bill Salmon to explain to the constables that $30 is still the fee for the arrest of a still operator and $5 is paid for the still.

In cases where constables aid rural policemen they are entitled to the fees. Tips are also rewarded by fees.

After three months discussion, the board deferred until the next fiscal year action on placing eligible county employees under Federal Social Security.

Lillington's school bond election was set for Saturday, November 21. First set for Oct. 17, the election date had to be changed due to a legal technicality. Dr. A. W. Peede, chairman of the Lillington school board, appeared and made the request.
