Dunn Tourist Group To Ask County Board To Retain 301

Delegation To Appear Before Board Monday

During an informal discussion this morning, members of the Dunn Tourist Bureau decided to take the problem of moving Highway 301 back to the County Commissioners. The Commissioners are scheduled to meet in Lillington Monday morning at 11:30.

Spokesman for the Bureau said this morning that no decision has been made on any formal request; but they will meet with the Commissioners Monday morning for "a discussion of the matter."

Action by the Bureau follows an announcement Monday of this week that the Johnston County Commissioners have vetoed the Highway Commission's plans to change the route of 301 in Johnston.

Highway officials meeting in Smithfield with the Johnston County Commissioners Monday received "cold shoulders" on their proposals.

R. P. Holding, president of the First Citizen Bank and Trust Company and chairman of the Johnston Commissioners, declared that 301 was a vital asset to the economy of the county and that re-location of the highway presented a "rather dark and disappointing picture to the people of our county."

Members of the Dunn Tourist Bureau met a few weeks ago with the Commissioners to protest the moving of 301 but no official action was taken. Following Johnston County's failure to okay the re-location, word has been circulated that the highway may not be moved without the approval of the Commissioners.

While no statement has been made as to what the local Bureau will ask, it is expected that they will call on the Commissioners to follow the example of Johnston's Commissioners in refusing an okay on the re-location.

Several delegations from Dunn attended the meeting of the Commissioners a few weeks ago. The delegation tomorrow will be only from the Tourist Bureau, it was reported.

Russia Accuses U. S. Of Fanning Cold War Embers

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (UP) - Russia charged today that "reactionary circles" in the United States are trying to "fan the embers of the cold war" by getting fake testimony from returned war prisoners on Communist use of torture to obtain germ-war "confessions."

The United States replied by asking why Russia was stepping up its "hate-mongering slander of the American people" in the wake of Premier Georgi Malenkov's contrasting statements about the possibility of peaceful co-existence between East and West.

The new exchange erupted in the United Nations main Political Committee as the United States formally requested U. N. debate on the U. S. Army report of mass murder and torture of thousands of American and Allied prisoners in Korea.

American Delegate Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., sent a letter to Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold asking addition to the General Assembly agenda of an item entitled:

"Question of atrocities committed by the North Korean and Chinese Communist forces against U. N. prisoners of war in Korea."

ACTION DUE MONDAY - It was expected that the steering committee would meet Monday to approve the U. S. request for full debate on the issue, and that this request would be ratified by the Assembly Tuesday.

Soviet Delegate Jacob A. Malik hotly denied the testimony of returned American prisoners that the Communists used torture in efforts to obtain false confessions of germ warfare in Korea.

Charging that American Doc Charles Mayo had cited four previously unheard-of American files in presenting his indictment Monday, Malik said: "Obviously they can find people poisoned against North Korea and the Chinese People's Republic who would give any testimony... and would not shrink from any fabrication or slander."

Three Captured At Liquor Still

A new whiskey still operating three miles out of Dunn on the old fair grounds road came to a quick end today when four rural policemen took 16 barrels of beer and arrested three white men early this morning.

Arrested were William C. Strickland, Dunn, Route 1; Willie Beasley, Johnston County; and Ronald Barber, Dunn.

C. E. Moore, rural policeman from Coala, said this morning that the three men admitted that they were "just unlucky" and would be released.

Southern Leaders Fear Segregation Will End

ATLANTA (UP) - Some Southern leaders who once thought there was a good chance the Supreme Court would uphold segregation are changing their minds.

The court, after several postponements of a decision, has ordered further arguments in five cases involving segregation in schools upon which it must rule. They are scheduled in December.

The change toward a more pessimistic attitude about the outcome began to show up in the deep south following the death of Chief Justice Fred Vinson and President Eisenhower's appointment of California Gov. Earl Warren to succeed him.

HOPE FADING - Top state officials acknowledge privately that the South's hopes for a separate - but equal school facilities ruling by the court faded with Warren's appointment. This feeling is most noticeable in Georgia and Mississippi.

The California is known for his liberal views and he sponsored FEPCO legislation in his state.

Gov. Hugh White of Mississippi said that Warren's appointment will "lessen the chance of a ruling in our favor." A high official in that state who asked not to be identified said that Warren's election to the court "gives us no comfort because he is an arch segregationist."

Dunn Weed Market To Pass 10 Million

Tobacco Sales Supervisor Norman J. Suttles said this morning that sales on the Dunn Tobacco Market should go over the 10 million pound mark Monday.

Through yesterday, 9,907,800 pounds of tobacco had been sold here. This figure sets a new record for the market, Suttles stated. The highest previous sales year occurred the first season the market opened when the total for the year hit 9 1/4 million pounds.

Suttles said that the rain yesterday should cause farmers to get their tobacco ready for market. Damp weather takes farmers out of the cotton fields, and makes the tobacco moist enough to grade, he stated.

GOOD SALE YESTERDAY - Sales yesterday hit 110,928 pounds for an average of $52.05 per hundred pounds. Total sales brought $57,745.08.

Suttles said that warehousemen have been very well pleased with sales thus far, but urged farmers to bring the tobacco in while the weather is still good.

No date has been set for closing as yet, but the season should end in about two weeks. The market closed last year on November 7.

The Dunn Market this year is believed to be the only one in the state which has an increase in volume this year.

It has already exceeded total sales of the Fayetteville and Clinton markets, both of which have already closed.

Harnett Farmers Applying For Federal Drought Funds

"Opportunity waits for no one" . . . "He who hesitates is lost" . . . just two of many well-known phrases which could be very easily applied to the lack of definite decision on the part of many citizens of the Dunn trade area who this past week have had one of the biggest opportunities of a lifetime presented to them, and as yet have not taken the necessary steps to capitalize on this good fortune!

If an opportunity were to present itself whereby your spare time activity could be transformed into a worthwhile effort which would provide easy earnings of $50 to $100 per week, and, if properly applied, have a maximum earning capacity of $3021.35 in a short period of but seven weeks, would YOU be one to hesitate? Would you stand back undecided, while someone more alert and aggressive walked off with these sizable earnings that could easily be yours if you were merely to comply with a few easy necessary requirements?

Much bigger amounts than the above are being offered and taken every day by people with foresight and initiative . . . people who DARE to be optimistic about their own (Continued on Page Six)

In Harnett County, designated only Wednesday as a drought stricken area eligible for federal aid, farmers already have filed six or eight applications for assistance. All have been processed.

Kyle Harrington, PMA supervisor revealed yesterday that direct appeals to Secretary of Agriculture Fred Tamm resulted in Harnett's being added to the list of N. C. counties eligible for federal funds.

"We wrote Benson a letter," said Harrington, the "we" referring to the county PMA committee. "Of course we sent copies of our appeal, backed by a careful survey of drought conditions to others along the line."

GIVING OFFICE ACTION - Harrington said a very rapid system of processing applications for mixed feeds has been worked out. Any farmer, hit by the drought who reports he had less than 30 days supply of feed on hand may make application for federal assistance at the county PMA office in Lillington.

This application has to be approved by a local committee composed of Howard Watkins, County Farmers Home Administration director Mack McDonald, a farmer, J. A. Senter, a banker, C. R. Ammons, county farm agent, and McBryde (Continued on Page Six)

Church Pianist Is Fined For Drunken Driving Here

James Lee McGill, Negro, asked Judge H. Paul Strickland not to "ruin his good reputation in Recorder's Court yesterday by finding him guilty of driving drunk."

McGill appeared in court charged with driving drunk and carrying a concealed weapon. Judge Strickland found him guilty of both charges and gave him a sentence of four months in jail, suspended on payment of $125 and cost of court.

McGill, a piano player for three Negro Churches, told the Judge that conviction of driving drunk would "ruin" his reputation. He brought character witnesses to court to help him defend the reputation. But Judge Strickland listened to the testimony of Opl. Romie Williams, who said McGill was "very drunk," and found him guilty.

McGill said he did not intend to conceal the pistol, but hid it on his person when he heard the patrol's siren.

Attorneys for McGill considered an appeal, but decided to let the defendant pay the fine.

OTHER CASES - Other cases heard in court yesterday were:

Andrew Stewart, 60 days in jail, suspended for 12 months on payment of cost for driving on the left side of the highway.

Ransom Payton, Grantham, 90 days in jail, suspended for 12 months on payment of $50 and cost for speeding.
