

Yule Parade

RUSSELL CHAIRMAN... The Rev. Ernest F. Russell, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Dunn, has been named general chairman of the parade committee. Other committeemen are Rev. Bane T. Underwood, pastor of the Gospel Tabernacle, and Rev. J. W. Linberger, pastor of the Divine Street Methodist Church.

Members of the chamber of commerce committee are: Dave Kimmel, Charles Hildreth and Bert Alabaster.

The town is now completing the erection of Christmas lights and other decorations.

CAPTURED WEAPON — Leo Chauvin, left, is shown here as he showed Joseph E. Santa, his partner at the Big-T Restaurant, the heavy piece of metal he used to capture a young thief who held him up early Sunday afternoon. Chauvin and Santa later took turns in guarding the man while police arrived. "I sure would have hit him if he'd started anything," declared Santa. (Daily Record Photo.)

Contest

Many have determined to do their level best during the second period of the race, now in progress, while subscription vote values are still big, all of which is very good evidence the contest will be hard fought to the end by every aggressive contender in the field.

If readers who wish to subscribe or renew your subscription will phone your favorite contestant and tell them to come and get your subscription, you will be doing this favorite a big favor in helping him or her to achieve the goal so much desired. Each one is very busy these days and will appreciate this thoughtful gesture.

Victory lies ahead, not behind. Just 17 more working days, after today, remain until the close of the contest on Saturday, December 19th. The ultimate winners in this race will be determined largely by what is done in these remaining 17 days.

Contestant, you are the captain of your own ship, and it's the way you set your sails that determines your course.

You're in the race to win! The field ahead is wide open for the dash to victory! Determine now to be a winner!

Little Things

Last week to see the screen version of Lloyd Douglas' famous book, "The Robe" and brought back good reports on it... Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert Lee saw it in New York a couple months ago and also thought it was wonderful... Mrs. Ernest Lee of Southern Pines, sister of Adlai Stevenson, is scheduled to visit in Dunn during the holidays... It'll be purely a personal visit and there won't be any publicity about it... For the second consecutive year, Dunn's Rotary Annals will be disappointed... Due to conflicts, the club has decided not to have a Ladies' Night Christmas Party... The Christmas Party used to be the club's biggest event of the year... Maybe the Rotarians are getting too old... The club will also have a luncheon meeting on December 11 instead of a dinner meeting because of the Christmas parade that night... Mrs. Viola Patrick, the very talented organist at Johnson's, is also a very romantic person... She has written a number of romantic scenes... She has just sent a new composition, "Chapel On the Hill" to her publishers... It's real pretty and everytime she plays it several people want to know the name of it... Mrs. Patrick is rapidly learning favorites of local citizens and whenever a regular customer goes into the restaurant she greets them with their favorite selection... Clarence McLamb reports the Carolina-Duke game Saturday was a thriller... Dave Kimmel, chairman of the Retail Merchants Committee of the Dunn Chamber of Commerce, says Super Sales Days were successful... "The merchants who really advertised bargains did business," says Dave.

MORE NOTES: Kitty Taylor's wedding announcement Friday really hit the town by surprise... Everybody thought she was getting ready to be married and she already was... Paul L. Strickland, local Buick dealer, an ardent Baptist, heard Col. Roy LeCraw at the Presbyterian Church here and declares he's one of the finest speakers he's ever heard... Paul is a man who enjoys good preaching... Pretty Renee Martz, the teen-age evangelist who appeared here last year, opened a big city-wide campaign yesterday in Kitchener, Ontario, Canada... The Martz Party, headed by saucy Jack Martz, is on another world crusade... Since leaving Dunn, they've been places... They took in the coronation of Queen Elizabeth—with a Daily Record press card—and have also visited Australia and a couple other countries... Jack sends us a report every now and then... Corwin Ronnie Williamson, some-manche of the State Highway Patrol in Harnett, will soon be featured in "This Week," the nationwide newspaper supplement, in a story featuring North Carolina's highway patrol... A "This Week" reporter recently spent several days with him.

PEACE STUDENTS HOME... Miss Betty Boyd Crumpler, Miss Fay Jackson, Miss Becky Lee, Miss Fay Mondak and Miss Ann Byrley, all students at Peace College in Raleigh, spent the Thanksgiving holidays in Dunn with their respective families.

Macon, Ga., Having Youth Crime Wave

This is the second in a series of six stories on juvenile delinquency. The following dispatch deals with the problem in a southern city which experienced a wartime population and industrial boom.

MACON, Ga. — The trouble is with kids who get into trouble is their parents. That the view of the probation officer and juvenile court judge in this bustling middle Georgia city of 75,000 persons, which is having a boom in juvenile delinquency.

And there's no sign yet of a recession in juvenile crime in Macon, chief city of Bibb County—a well-balanced industrial community in the center of a prosperous cotton, peach and cattle-grazing area. Juvenile delinquency hit an all-time peak here last year when the Bibb Juvenile Court handled 699 cases, an increase of more than 40 per cent over 1951. The trend has been upward, and court officials believe it will continue that way.

William T. Hamner, the county's chief probation officer, doesn't consider the situation particularly alarming in itself. Last year's total of juvenile cases represented about 3 per cent of the county's school population. Of the 699 cases, 22 per cent involved acts of carelessness or mischief; 15 per cent traffic violations; 13 per cent larceny; 11 per cent burglary; 9 per cent each for truancy, running away and ungovernable; 5 per cent injury to person; 3 per cent auto theft; 3 per cent sex offenses; 1 per cent robbery. But neither is Hamner happy about the situation.

Hamner believes the rising delinquency rate is linked directly to the rate—also rising—of divorces and broken homes in the community. There was an estimated 450 to 500 divorces last year in Bibb County, which has a population of 120,000.

He lists as another serious cause of delinquency the lack of supervision in families where both parents work outside the home. Of the juveniles who fell afool of the law last year, 47 per cent were living with both parents, 41 per cent with one parent; 8 per cent with a relative; 2 per cent in foster homes and 2 per cent in other institutions.

Unlike many other cities, there apparently are no real organized juvenile gangs here. At least, authorities have had no serious problem with juvenile gangs as such.

Macon, and Bibb County, are trying to do something about the delinquency problem. A new probation officer and additional secretarial help were added to the Bibb County Juvenile Court staff this year to help deal with the increased load. The court now has six probation officers working full time with boys and girls and on custody and neglect cases.

Hamner says his office stresses the importance of counseling for juveniles on probation to head off repeaters who comprise one-third of last year's cases. The probation officers spend as much time as they can spare from investigative work talking with delinquent youngsters about the problems and trying to steer them on the right road.

The court has set up an advisory board of local leaders who try to interest their groups in more work on delinquency problems—encouraging churches to broaden youth programs and parents to help out.

George Matthews Dies At Age 71

George Andrew Matthews, 76, died at his home on Spring Lake, Route 1, Monday morning at 7:55 o'clock. He had been in declining health for sometime.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Bethel Baptist Church in Western Harnett. The Rev. O. W. Pulley of Erwin and the Rev. Joe Belcher of Gaffney, S. C., will officiate. The body will lie in state at the church for an hour prior to the services.

Mr. Matthews was a native of Harnett, son of the late William A. and Cornelia Hunt Matthews. He had lived in this community for about 50 years. He was a member of the Bethel Baptist Church.

Surviving are two sons, Melvin Matthews of the home and Leslie Matthews of Spring Lake. Bornes; 11 grand children and three great-grandchildren. His wife died about nine years ago.

Falcon Child

(Continued From Page One) while she was gone that the house caught fire. Mr. Maxwell said today that the origin of the fire still had not been determined.

OTHERS TRY RESCUE... First person on the scene was Calvin Warren, who happened to children outside the house wearing pass by. He found the other four holding their night clothes and preparing to go back in an attempt to save Magdalena.

Realizing that it would be too dangerous to try to rescue the child, he kept the other children from re-entering the house, thus possibly saving their lives.

The big six-room house and all its contents were a total loss. Everything owned by the family was wiped out.

Falcon churches yesterday rallied to their aid but the family is still in desperate condition and needs food and clothing of all kinds. It can be sent to them at Box 93, Falcon, N. C.

Light & Bright

Deloit DELOIT — Evangelist Billy Graham advised housewives Monday night against trying to browbeat their husbands.

He said it was God's law that a husband, as head of the home, should be "respected and obeyed." "And be attractive," Graham added. "Every man wants a pretty wife. If that can't be, he demands an attractive one. I don't blame some men for not wanting to come home to unkept and untidy wives."

DUARTE GAIN — Marlin Hughes, 25, reported to Sheriff's deputies someone stole six pairs of panties from her backyard clothesline.

She said the panties could be identified by their fancy embroidery. Each pair was marked with a day of the week—Monday through Saturday.
