sons at the hospital into the Communist Party.

"The information that we have is that you are an active member of the Communist conspiracy," McCarthy told the young private.

Belsky challenged the subcommittee's right to question him, on grounds that as a soldier he was under the jurisdiction of only the commander-in-chief, President Eisenhower.

McCarthy quickly overruled this, saying the President issued a statement yesterday saying that Army personnel called before the subcommittee were expected to testify "willingly and cheerfully."

"I may say that is a step forward from what we have been witnessing in the past," said McCarthy. He has been in a running fight with the Army and Eisenhower over his treatment of a general in the investigation of an Army dentist, Dr. Irving Peress, who also refused to answer McCarthy.

Carolina Caravan

BY JAKE WADE

CHAPEL HILL, N. C. — Coach Bill Meade of the University of North Carolina gymnastics team probably couldn't have selected a more appropriate year in which to "proudly present" as the theatres say, the famous Swedish National champions.

They'll be in Woolen Gymnasium Thursday night, you know with their internationally heralded production. The reason it's a good year is because Meade's Tar Heel gymnasts have just completed one of their best seasons against high class competition and one of his good men, Gordon Hudson, a junior from Winston-Salem, broke the school's individual season scoring record with 104 points.

Also, there seems to be more interest in gymnastics here than ever before and dual meets usually draw fine crowds.

Meade, of course, actually didn't pick the year. The Swedish Olympians did that, being on a tour, and Meade would have preferred some other night, but it had to be Thursday. It conflicts with the opening day of the Atlantic Coast Conference basketball tournament. Everybody, it seems, isn't going to Raleigh, however, and a fine crowd is assured for the spectacle.

was involved in the transaction.

James Thompson, who testified for approximately an hour and underwent cross examination without breaking, told the court that Barefoot gave McNeill $30 and a case of 12 jars of white liquor for the sugar. After selling the sugar, the men went to the home of Barto Thompson where the money and liquor was divided, James Thompson said.

J. Thompson admitted, however, that he was too drunk when the division of money and loot was made to know what he was given. He did remember who got part, he said. He named Barto Thompson, McNeill, and implied two others who have not yet been charged.

All through the testimony, James Thompson was questioned about a "red Nash" that was used in the robbery. Attorney Duncan C. Wilson, who defended Barto Thompson, questioned James about the use of the car. The car was supposed to have been used in hauling the stolen goods away.

Chief Cobb told the court that investigation of the case was continuing and that the local Police Department hopes to turn up even more information and make further arrests.

McNeill was also charged with receiving 25 boxes of candy stolen from Wellons Candy Company. The alleged receiving took place around the same time as the robbery of the grocery, it was stated.

McNeill plead not guilty to receiving the stolen goods, but was found guilty and given a six months

BASKETBALL! — Coach Frank McGuire's Tar Heels aren't given much of a chance in the conference tournament, which is right, since in their very first outing they collide with N. C. State and the Wolfpack licked the Tar Heels twice during the regular season.

That doesn't mean the Tar Heels aren't going to be a determined and oddly confident team when it goes on the floor in the nightcap of the first day's program. Young men, if they have the heart, and most athletes do, are never licked before a contest. Athletic contests, too, often end with surprising and unexpected results, and basketball is a game of hotness and coldness and twisting strategies and curious off-shots. It's one of the least certain of sports.

The Tar Heels this year came out, won-and-lost, just about as sentence in jail. He gave notice of appeal and was ordered to post a $200 bond in that case.

The night watchman for Wellons Candy Company told the court that he stopped McNeill on the night he attempted to take the candy. McNeill had moved the goods from a tobacco barn near the candy company's plant, where the robbers had put them.

expected. Coach McGuire says he figured his team might win one of the two Virginia games, not both, and he did. That was a mild surprise to many outsiders, since Virginia had the great "Buzz" Wilkinson. McGuire had hoped for at least one upset in the Big Four league, and he got it — over Wake Forest — although fate was unkind to the Deacons that night, since Dickie Hemric could not play.

"It was about what we figured," said Frank. "Some of our boys did not come along as we hoped they might, but others exceeded our expectations. We thought Skippy Winstead would help us a lot, and he did. Jerry Vayda has been showing gradual improvement ever since he has been here. Next season he should be really tops and play along with any of them. We had some slumps. And it hurt us when we lost Bud Maddie, because he was a big fellow."

BLUE-WHITE! — More hustle, more competition for positions, a better attack, and better pass receivers. That's about the way things stand now. The forgoing is a quote from Coach George Barclay which will appear in the Blue-White football game program this week.

That will sound pretty good to loyal Tar Heel football supporters. And they will be here Saturday afternoon to get their own impressions of what has been going on in football around here. The Blue-White game is scheduled Saturday in Kenan Stadium at 2 p. m., and a good contest is in prospect.

Incidentally, these squad practice games are open to the public, a nominal admission is charges, and the Monogram Club is the chief beneficiary of any profits. The players enjoy it, because they have a "feel" of a regular contest, officiated and following the rules, and that's different from the not infrequent drudgery they find in scrimmages down on the practice field.

THIS AND THAT! — A member of the Swedish Parliament is manager of Swedish National gymnasts, who show their muscular magic here Thursday night at 8 p. m. Another member of the troupe speaks nine languages. These Swedes are no dopes, mentally and intellectually as well as physically. Tar Heel supporters were glad to see Jerry Vayda named on the all-conference basketball team and listed in very distinguished company. He'll be gunning for the first five list next year. The football Tar Heels are searching for a punter, which coming from Chapel Hill sounds more than passing strange. The Tar Heels have been blessed with unusually skilled punters in recent years. There will be good punting talent on the 1954 squad if the possessors of that skill can measure up in other departments. Another big week of sports action, and then we will move outdoors for the teeming spring sports program.

McNeill was also charged with receiving 25 boxes of candy stolen from Wellons Candy Company. The alleged receiving took place around the same time as the robbery of the grocery, it was stated.

Don Cossack Chorus Coming

Gabriel Soloduhin, the trefin Cossack, whose hair-raising dagger dance is one of the most exciting interludes in the program of the Platoff Don Cossack singers and dancers to be presented at Campbell College March 9th at 8 p. m. under the auspices of the College is probably the most photographed Cossack in the world. He has made dozens of motion pictures and is summoned each season to Hollywood whenever there is a call for a colorful Cossack in a movie. A daring horseman, trained by his father and his grandfather, Soloduhin has also been featured by Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey's Circus in riding spectacles, performing the famous Cossack trick of riding strapped to a horse's belly.

Soloduhin came to America a decade ago with the Platoff Cossacks and after their debut at the San Francisco World's Fair was signed by Colonel Tim McCoy, the Wild West motion picture star, and became a regular member of his company also making summer tours with Colonel McCoy with the circus. During the war when Colonel McCoy rejoined the United States Cavalry, Soloduhin returned to his band of fellow Cossacks for their overseas tours to entertain American troops and he had been with them ever since.

In the current program of the Cossacks, Soloduhin is featured in the Lezinka, a barbaric Caucasian dance which begins on the sad lilt of a peasant song and concludes in a wild dance of jubilation. With the entire horde providing the vocal background, Soloduhin performs the traditional dance with daggers which never fails to stir his audiences.

dent gave his news conference an implied rebuke and reiteration of McCarthy's actions. That one related to foreign policy. Wednesday had to do with McCarthy's rough questioning of Brig. General Ralph W. Zwicker.

In New York today, GOP National Chairman Leonard W. Hall brushed off differences, saying the Republicans "are not a divided party." He said Democrats are spreading the idea that Republicans have split over a problem "involving personalities." He termed that "nonsense of course."

A mimeographed, two-page statement at the President's news conference referred to and praised Zwicker, whom McCarthy is alleged to have abused in questions about the honorable discharge of a known "Fifth Amendment Communist."

In an answering statement, the senator said "any witness, ignorant or arrogant" witness, general or not, who seemed to be favoring Communists or their sympathizers would continue to get the works from the McCarthy investigating subcommittee. But he found himself and the President in agreement on Communists in government and what to do about them.

McCarthy had said he was "very much disturbed" by the order of Secretary of State John Foster Dulles removing department personnel from the Intelligence Committee office staff who had testified to McCarthy's activities.

A youthful parachuter from Ft. Bragg was tried in Dunn Recorder's Court today for drunkenness. The case wouldn't have been any different from a dozen or so others, but he was arrested on top of a house.

Jack R. Kannon Jr., of Ft. Bragg, was given 30 days in jail, suspended on payment of $5 and cost of court. Judge H. Paul Strickland told the youth to keep his feet on the ground in the future — if he gets drunk.

K. M. P.A.B. arresting officer, told the court that he saw the parachuter on top of the home of Mrs. Charles Guy, 501 W. Harriet, and went up to make the arrest. He had climbed up a ladder — it was stated.

The young jumper had no comment to make — he didn't know how he got on top of the house.
