Ike Expected To Aid GOP Ticket In Fall

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower's decision against involvement in local congressional election campaigns is folding under pressure.

That the decision would not hold was forecast last year when the President announced it. That it is not holding was sufficiently evident after Mr. Eisenhower's swing through Kentucky last week.

It was not mere chance that placed Kentucky's Republican Sen. John Sherman Cooper at the President's elbow when he traveled in that state. Cooper, up for re-election this year, has drawn former Vice President Alben W. Barkley as his Democratic opponent.

The presidential party with Cooper prominently displayed, shifted from closed to open automobiles to parade into the larger towns visited last week. That would be a maneuver dictated by political necessity rather than Mr. Eisenhower's preference. The President was giving Cooper what the politicians call a coat-tail ride—appearing with him in public in an effort to translate some of the assumed presidential prestige into votes for the local party candidate.

NO POLITICS IN GA. The Kentucky invitation to the voters to look and applaud contrasted with Mr. Eisenhower's habit in solidly Democratic Georgia where he prefers to golf. There he is whisked from airport to tee by routes least likely to be lined by citizens who are going to vote Democratic, anyway, no matter how loudly they might cheer.

It still is a bit early for presidential campaigning. The tempo will pick up after Mr. Eisenhower goes to Denver where he hopes to remain from late July until mid-September.

One major political appearance already is scheduled—a speech Aug. 19 on Republican Day at the Illinois State Fair. Republican strategists count Sen. Paul Douglas (D-Ill.) among those they might beat in next November's election.

Party managers are planning an active October for Mr. Eisenhower. The campaigning will be on the pattern of his Kentucky journey—appearances with local candidates but with the presidential speeches tuned to higher things than mere party politics.

The President's campaigning likely will take him to California. There has been discussion of a Labor Day appearance to boost election chances of California's Republican Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel. But Gov. Goodwin S. Knight headed a (Continued on Page Eight)

MOTHER OF YEAR

NEW YORK (AP) — Mrs. Love McDuffie Tolbert, 65, of Columbus, Ga., mother of five grown sons, was named American Mother of the Year for 1954 today by the American Mothers Committee of the Golden Rule Foundation. Mrs. Tolbert, now a school librarian, was described as a woman who twice gave up her wish for a career to care for her family — first to care for, until their deaths, her aging parents, and then to marry, bear and raise her sons.

Mrs. Romanowski, a 21-year-old blonde, said it took her three days to compose the essay. When she had difficulty filling the 500-word writing assignment she went to the Bible for quotations to put out the necessary wordage.

"I have certainly learned my lesson," the young housewife said after adding the Bible words to her own to make the 530-word total.

"It would have been bad enough to write 200 (words)," she said, "but 500—ugh."

She said her husband gave her no help on the essay and said he had admitted that if he had been ordered to do it he would have gone to jail.

NEW YORK (AP) — A retired Army general who offered $100 to any non-commissioned officer who would "sock" Pvt. G. David Schine has sent letters of apology to Schine and Sen. Joseph E. McCarthy for "any embarrassment" he might have caused them.

Maj. Gen. Arthur E. Wilson (Ret.), who wrote the letters to the senator and Schine from Zurich, Switzerland on Easter Sunday, said his offer was "ill-tempered."

"Sometimes people, being human, make mistakes," Wilson said in his letter to McCarthy. "I know I made a mistake when I suggested physical violence on Schine."

DR. GERALD JAMES of Dunn, show here, has just completed the Parker Chiropractic Research Seminar held in Charlotte this week. Dr. James devoted four days of study of the latest developments in chiropractic technique and X-Ray analysis.

Rita And Aly In Agreement

NEW YORK (AP) — Rita Hayworth and Prince Aly Khan have virtually reached agreement on a custody and financial settlement of $1,500,000 for their four-year-old daughter, Princess Yasmin, the pawn of a two-year international legal wrangle.

The actress regained custody of Yasmin and her other daughter, Rebecca Welles, 9, yesterday after being cleared of charges of neglect.

Charles Torem, attorney for Aly Khan, said an agreement had been worked out this morning that was "fairly close" to a previous proposed arrangement whereby the prince would deposit $100,000 a year for Yasmin in a Swiss bank until she is 18 years of age, and pay $8,000 annually for her support.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Administration Senate leaders today claimed enough votes to defeat a determined farm bloc attempt to derail President Eisenhower's program of "flexible" farm price supports. The Senate was expected to vote this afternoon on amendments proposed to the administration's wool support bill to extend present high level price guarantees on "basic" farm commodities and boost dairy price supports.

Fake And Lying Charges Hurlled At Stormy Meet

WASHINGTON (AP) — A blown-up picture of Army Secretary Robert T. Stevens and Pvt. G. David Schine today kicked off the stormiest session of the Army-McCarthy hearing to date.

The Army side cried "fake," the McCarthy side retorted with "lying."

The fakery charge was hurled by special Army counsel Joseph N. Welch at the start of today's Senate Investigating subcommittee's hearing into the angry feud between Stevens and his aides and Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy and his.

COIN TESTIFIES Roy M. Cohn, McCarthy's chief counsel, testified under oath that he caused the allegedly doctored picture to be supplied to hearing counsel Ray H. Jenkins.

But he asserted he did not see the photograph after it had been blown up. At first he said a third person had been cut out of the Schine-Stevens photo by the McCarthy staff. But later he said he did not know whether or how the picture was ante red. In any event, he said, McCarthy himself had nothing to do with it.

IMPROPER MEANS The Army side has accused the other of using "improper means" of trying to get special favors for Schine, former McCarthy consultant. The McCarthy side has re- (Continued on page two)

Movie Censor Defied By Church Group

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Trustees of the First Unitarian Church planned today to defy the 88-year-old chief Memphis censor to "send the police" to enforce his permanent ban on all Charlie Chaplin films.

The trustees announced after a private showing of the old silent movie, "Carmen," last night that "as soon as possible" they would reschedule the public showing they called off under a threat of police action last Sunday night.

One trustee said there "wasn't a neckline showing" in the film and the church officials denounced the ban of elderly Lloyd T. Binford, Censor Board chairman, as "capricious and arbitrary."

Binford, whose past rulings have raised stormy controversies, has permanently banned all movies in which Charlie Chaplin or Ingrid Bergman appear.

When the church planned to show "Carmen" as part of its "film treasure chest" series Binford said "I may send the police to stop it."

Famed Cowboy Star Here For Breakfast

By HOOVER ADAMS

Monte Hale, one of Hollywood's most handsome and most daring "cowpokes" galloped into Dunn this morning on his trusty new two-tone Cadillac, downed a hearty breakfast at Johnson's Restaurant, and 'lowed to newsmen that cowboy pictures are here to stay forever.

The famous cowboy star of screen, television and comic books explained it this way, in his best western drawl:

"As long as there are kids, there will always be cowboy movies and kids are mighty popular, you know."

When a reporter arrived, Hale was busy entertaining Restaurant owner J. D. Barnes and a bevy of his pretty waitresses, and they were all having a good time.

"Howdy, Podner," said Hale, "as he stuck out the long arm that has packed many a knockout blow to as many outlaws and bad men of the movies."

"I'm just sitting here trying to outsize these natives," he explained with a grin, "and that's a mighty hard thing to do. 'Fraid they get the best of me every time."

STAR OF MANY FILMS

Hale has starred in 47 top westerns for Republic pictures and was the hero of the first color western, "Home On The Range." His latest picture releases are: "The Missourian," "Vanishing Westerner," and "The Old Frontier."

IKE WINS ROUND

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower won an important test on farm legislation today when the Senate rejected a farm-bloc attempt to continue high-level price supports on basic crops. The vote was 48 to 40. The test came on a move to tie to the administration's wool support bill an amendment to continue present price supports at 90 per cent of fair-price parity on basic farm crops.

Judge Orders Swearing Girl To Pen Essay

LODI, N. J. (AP) — A young housewife submitted a 530-word essay in court today and vowed the writing assignment and the Bible had taught her never again to swear at anyone.

Mrs. Gloria Romanowski wrote the essay on order of police magistrate George Froelich Jr. after she was hauled into court for tongue-lashing her landlord when he demanded back rent.

"One thing I know," she wrote in the penance essay, "I will never use the words I used again."

Magistrate Froelich specified the essay must be on "the folly of uttering loud and indecent language." He said it must be well-composed and written by hand on ruled paper "with commas and periods in the right place." The "sentence" was imposed last Wednesday for submission today.

Mrs. Romanowski, a 21-year-old blonde, said it took her three days to compose the essay. When she had difficulty filling the 500-word writing assignment she went to the Bible for quotations to put out the necessary wordage.

"I have certainly learned my lesson," the young housewife said after adding the Bible words to her own to make the 530-word total.

FRANCE ALARMED

GENEVA (AP) — An alarmed France urged today that the menacing military crisis in Indo-China be given priority at the Geneva conference, ahead of Korea. Indications mounted that France, the United States and Britain might be willing, in hastily arranged Indo-China talks, to agree to partition of the war-torn peninsula as a last resort to end the eight-year-old war.

Seniors Will Hear Sprunt, Campbell

Speakers for commencement and baccalaureate at Dunn High School were announced this week by Principal A. B. Johnson. Commencement will be held Thursday evening, May 27 at 8 p. m., and the baccalaureate sermon will be preached Sunday evening, May 23 at 8 o'clock. Dr. James Sprunt, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Raleigh, will deliver the baccalaureate sermon. Dr. Sprunt is well known in church and civic circles of Raleigh, and throughout the State. The commencement speech will be delivered by Dr. Carlyle Campbell, a son of Dr. J. A. Campbell, founder of Campbell College Buie's Creek. Dr. Campbell is now president Meredith College in Raleigh.

CLASS DAY RITES

Members of the senior class will hold class day exercises Friday, May 21, at 10:10, during the regular chapel program hour. In previous years the seniors have held class night exercises. This system will not be followed this year. Daley Goff heads the senior class of Dunn this year. Principal Johnson said today that a large number of the 70 seniors have made plans to attend college.

As yet the scholastic head of the class has not been selected. Johnson said.
