Gov. To Head Delegations At Hoey Rites

RALEIGH, N. C. (P) — Gov. William B. Umstead gave no hint today of his plans for appointing a successor to the late Sen. Clyde R. Hoey (D-NC) who died in his Washington office Wednesday afternoon.

Umstead said he will attend the funeral in Shelby, N. C., tomorrow and declined comment on a replacement to serve until after the November general election.

Hoey's body was returned to Shelby this morning. A special train leaving Washington tonight will bring members of Congress and other officials to the funeral.

Umstead's office staff said that suggestions and endorsements for senator began coming in shortly after word was received of the 76-year-old Hoey's death.

Speculation centered around the names of a half dozen or more men, including former Gov. R. Gregg Cherry, Lt. Gov. Luther Hodges, former State Sen. Irving Carlyle of Winston-Salem and Carlisle Higgins of Winston-Salem, Democratic national committee man.

It is believed that Umstead will wait until after the state Democratic convention here May 20 and possibly until after the May 29 party primary before making his choice.

The state Democratic and Republican executive committees will meet to pick candidates to appear on the ballot Nov. 2 to fill the remainder of Hoey's term which will expire in 1957. Hoey had not planned to seek re-election in the 1956 election.

UMSTEAD HAS SAY It is likely that the Democratic committee will endorse Umstead's appointment to the seat and that his nomination for the November election will be a formality. The GOP committee may make its choice at a meeting Monday night in Charlotte.

It appeared likely that Umstead would consider the state's traditional East-West Senate division in making his second Senate appointment in less than a year. (Continued On Page Two)

Says He Tried To Hold Up Loyalty Hearing

WASHINGTON (P) — Sen. Everett M. Dirksen testified today that Army counsellor John G. Adams sought his help in getting Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy to "suspend" and "perhaps to kill" subcommittee members of the Army loyalty screening board.

Dirksen said "I can place no other interpretation on Adams' action."

Dirksen was sworn as a witness in the Army - McCarthy hearings after Adams had bluntly denied as "false" a McCarthy charge that he had told other subcommittee members the Army would release an unfavorable report on subcommittee counsel Roy M. Cohn if the subcommittee persisted in attempts to subpoena the loyalty board members.

DENIED THREAT When Adams denied he had threatened to make public a report on Cohn, Sen. Stuart Symington (D-Mo) said the three members of the subcommittee with whom Adams discussed the case in January should state publicly "now or at the earliest opportunity" whether the denial was true. The three were Dirksen and Sens. Karl Mundt (R-SD) and Charles E. Potter (R-Mich.).

Dirksen then asked to be put on the stand. He said Adams and Gerald Morgan, a presidential assistant, came to his office on Jan. 22. He said Adams came "for the purpose of eliciting my interest and influence" in trying to "at least suspend" the loyalty board subpoenas and "perhaps kill them."

DIRKSEN EFFORTS Dirksen said he suffered much "distress of spirit" over what Adams told him about the subpoenas and also about efforts of Cohn to get special treatment for Pvt. G. David Schine.

He said he met with McCarthy the next day after asking subcommittee executive director Francis P. Carr to at least hold up the subpoenas until the subcommittee could discuss the question.

LONDON (P) — The conservative Party of Prime Minister Winston Churchill suffered heavy losses in the test of political strength with the Labor Party in the week-long local elections in England and Wales, latest returns showed today.
