GREENWOOD LAKE, N. Y. (P) — Life in the country is little short of aggravating today for light heavyweight champion Archie Moore and lightweight champion Paddy DeMarco.

Conditions should be ideal for both of them as they prep for title defenses. The food is good and the setting is scenic at picturesque Long Pond Inn where there are training.

But, then, there is Tommy Hurricane Jackson.

But, then, there is Tommy Hurricane Jackson.

"And that is really something," groans DeMarco, giving the impression that he and Moore both will be rooting for Nino Valdes when the Cuban battles the Hurricane at Madison Square Garden next Wednesday night.

Avid Guitar Player You don't have to frequent the camp long to get the drift. The Hurricane's passions, more or less in order, are fighting, playing the guitar or the hamonica and singing. Aiding and abetting the latter inclinations is a microphone "Music is fine," DeMarco complains, "but enough is

The Hurricane, it seems goes for just the way he fights. That, as you possibly know, means he keeps throling from bell to bell. But there's no bell to stop him in the music department.

Jackson is just as likely to start strumming his "gittar" at 6 a. m., meanwhile yodeling an accompaniment into the microphone. He switches, freestyle, to the harmonica at interval and then goes back to plunking on the guitar. Cowboy songs are his favorite and, as DeMarco

"I don't know whether I'm getting ready for a rodeo or a fight with Jimmy Carter."

The Hurricane does his training the same way. An iron-muscled man of 22, he confesses that he likes to box 12 rounds and then do "about" 25 rounds of gym work. When his trainers chase him away from the gym, Jackson goes back to his music. Two-hour sessions in front of the staggering microphone are, to him, a rather limited world work. vocal workout.

Boats Bore Him

Seldom does Jackson stray from the path beaten be-tween the gym and the training quarters. Others may de-light in the nine-mile lake, set like a glistening jewel in the eye-catching hills of the Ramapos, but the Hurricane has been out on the water only twice.

The first time was to take his first ride in a canoe. He fell asleep.

He fell asleep.

But Tommy can get up early or stay up late to play the guitar or his harmonica and sing those endless cow-boy songs. He doesn't even want to take time out to eat. When Eddie Coco, his trainer, insists that he have a good dinner, he laid down his guitar with a sigh and said:

"Okay, I'll have the same thing I had yesterday."

"I'll order you chopped sirloin steak," Coco replied. Tommy growled. "I WANT HAMBURGER."

With that he went back to his music - but there are a number of savage beats in this training camp which aren't soothing.

Kansas City, St. Paul and Minneapolis want major league baseball and they mean business about getting it.

These towns are out to provide ball parks which will meet big league standards.

Perhaps because they're American Association towns close to the Milwaukee miracle, they are more conscious of how big league baseball would captivate their fans At any rate, they're out ahead in the vital matter of providing playing facilities that will be suitable.

Kansas City will vote Aug. 3 in a bond election that includes a get together on a site, soets will be shared on a 50-50 basis.

The rush started on Thursday the first day of July and ended on Monday the lifth. Waggoner did not have the old records available for compender.

Clardello, although favored by the odds-makers, will enter the ring in a "do or die" frame of mind as a result of an unexpected defeat by Pierre Langiols earlier thay year. Josy, battling in his own halliwick, knows a defeat by Kilgere would just about ruin his chances for a shot at Bobo Olson's middleweight crown.
