Ballentine

(Continued from page one) against running for governor six years ago, said his final decision will depend on the amount of support and interest the foresees in his behalf in the election year.

Ballentine said he has not sought support but has discussed the possibility of his candidacy with a number of persons.

If he does decide to run, the campaign won't be a "factional hassle," Ballentine said.

"I feel that it's time for North Carolina politics to transcend strictly factional lines and to end the penalizing of good men for their past votes," he added.

Layton Sues

Ammons, veteran farm agent who has both State and south-wide honors in his profession, has served Harnett as farm agent since June 26, 1937 and was reappointed by the board for another term at the close of the hearing. These honors were cited in the complaint.

The board recommended, however, that he find another job at the end of the year because of the controversy over him.

In the suit today, Ammons charged that Layton had "wrongfully, wantonly, maliciously, untruthfully slandered" him and with "reckless disregard of the rights of the plaintiff."

He claimed that Layton had pictured him at a public meeting hearing reported in the press as "a man without integrity or character, a cheat and a defrauder not worthy of trust and confidence and without training and capacity for his work and utterly unfit for his work, all of which statements were untrue and intended to prejudice persons against the plaintiff and greatly humiliated and embarrassed the plaintiff."

As the result of Layton's charges, it is alleged in the suit, Ammons was held up "to ridicule, scorn and contempt, all to the plaintiff's great damage."

CLAIMS PLOT TO DESTROY

He also claims that Layton had a plan to destroy the plaintiff.

The complaint quotes Layton's charge that, "He (Ammons) has been here 18 years and I know of very little that has been done for the farmers. Our white county agent could get some real training from L. K. Boston, our Negro farm agent."

This statement, says the complaint, inferred that Ammons had not received proper training for his job.

Ammons also denied Layton's charge that he was catering to the lecting and falling and refusing to help and serve the small farmers, to help and serve the small farmers.

He also denied a charge by Layton that he had failed to give GI veterans their wheat allotment but had planted it himself on land he rented, "thereby charging the plaintiff with being a crook, a cheat, a thief and a defrauder, a criminal and felon."

Ammons' complaint, likewise denied that he had on one occasion sold 20 bushels of hybrid corn which turned out not to be hybrid corn and that it was "impossible for the small farmers of the county to get the service to which they are entitled and all these things leave in doubt some of the fundamentals about this man."

Layton had charged at the hearing that those who praised Ammons could be as wrong as the case of a Harnett citizen "who sat with you and had the respect of the people while he was chipping money from the bank and is now serving a term in prison for it."

This statement, says the complaint, accused Ammons of being a criminal, a felon, an embezzler, a cheat and defrauder who ought to be in prison.

At one point, Layton said: "I realize that Ammons has a reputation for being a good Sunday School teacher, that he can lead the singing and offers a beautiful prayer, but may I also remind you that Judas Iscariot was still one of the 12 disciples of Christ."

This statement, Ammons points out, branded him as "a hypocrite, a traitor, a mercenary cheat and defrauder and a criminal."

As a result of Layton's speech, it is set forth, Ammons claims that he and members of his family have been greatly embarrassed and humiliated, and that he has suffered physical and mental anguish and has been damaged in his calling and profession and has suffered and will suffer great financial loss, and that he has sustained actual damage in the amount of $150,000.
