

June Allyson To Play Heavy Role

By ALINE MOSBY
United Press Hollywood Reporter

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—June Allyson, the good, sweet wife of the movies, is kicking off the shackles to play a heavy role for the first time to match her real-life theory that women should have a bit of "wench" in them.

"It's more exciting that way," said June.

For years the pert actress has played the screen spouse who's almost too good to be true — the ideal wife in a Peter Pan collar, page-boy hair-do and sometimes to changes of expression, wistful but to eye-creasing smile.

But in one of the surprise castings of the year, Oscar-winner Jose Ferrer decided June's acting talents were not being fully realized. He cast her as his co-star in the movie version of the Broadway dramatic hit, "The Shrike." She plays a hostile, cruel wife who drives her husband into insanity.

a long time to play an evil character. I almost got the Anne Baxter role in 'All About Eve' but MGM wouldn't let me go."

June has been playing wives to such heroes as Jimmy Stewart and Bill Holden since "Music for Millions" in 1944. At home she's a good wife, too. Our interview waited while she happily bundled off one of her children for a ride with papa Dick Powell.

"But I'm not sweet all the time," she said. "I get mad, too, in a sort of quiet way."

The end of the car can be seen sticking out the back of the building. Wind also blew the roof off one building in the same block. The last official check on wind velocity last night (just before the instrument was blown away) set the speed at 75 miles per hour. ## Ike and Mamie Register Today

NEW YORK (UP) — The Eisenhowers of Washington, D. C. paid a flying visit to New York, their legal voting residence, today. They stayed only long enough to register to vote in the November elections.

The President and Mrs. Eisenhower made an early-morning jaunt from Washington, along with Mrs. Eisenhower's maid, Miss Rose Woods, and presidential press and appointment secretaries James C. Hagerty and Thomas E. Stephens. All are voting residents of New York City and had to sign applications for absentee ballots to cast on Nov. 5.

As the President, grinning and shaking hands with officials, stepped to the desk at the board of elections office, Thomas Callahan, central registration officer who had registered the President in two previous years, said:

"Welcome back to New York, Mr. President. Put your cross mark right here."

Callahan pointed to the circle below the Republican eagle on the party-affiliation blank.

David B. Costuma, secretary of the elections board, chimed in, nodding toward Callahan: "He's a Democrat, Mr. President - he might ask you to register in the wrong column."

"Oh, I think he's a pretty good guy," the President said. He put on his glasses, put his "X" under the eagle, and signed the application and the permanent record book.

Mrs. Eisenhower, dressed in black with white gloves and a white necklace, posed with the President for photographers. The registration took five minutes, and the group left immediately for La Guardia Airport and took off for Washington.

Three of Ford, General Motors and Chrysler and the "Little Three" of Studebaker — Packard, American Motors and Kaiser-Willys, American is the combine of Hudson and Nash-Kelvinator.

TIGHTER COMPETITION

The "Little Three" all resulted from mergers within the past 18 months. The mergers were brought on by the tightening competition after the booming post-war days when the industry couldn't turn out enough cars to meet demand.

The merger of Packard and Studebaker could be the most important of the three. The new firm will be just like the "Big Three" in one respect. It will have a "full line"—a range of models covering all price classes and trucks.

Stockholders in Packard will get one share of $10 par common stock in the new firm for each five or the 14,491,340 outstanding shares of Packard stock they hold. Studebaker stockholders will get 1 1/2 shares of the new stock for each of the 2,361,458 outstanding common shares of Studebaker they own.

James J. Nance, 54, president of Packard, will be president and chief executive officer of the new company. Paul G. Hoffman, Studebaker chairman, will become chairman of the new firm and Harold S. Vance, Studebaker president, will become chairman of the executive committee.

Carolina Telephone and Telegraphy Company officials said today that round 400 customers were without telephone service last night. A few calls were still being received this afternoon, W. E. Jones of the company stated.

TREES UPROOTED

Tree damage was the heaviest reported in Dunn in a number of years at Tyler Park, a large pine tree was uprooted tearing up water lines leading to the pool. Other trees in Dunn and the area that were torn up included those at the following locations:

One on N. McKay between Vance Street and Edgerton; S. Layton between Pearsall and Pope; S. Wilson, between Divine and Cumberland; Pearsall, between McKay and Layton; E. Edgerton, between the Railroad and N. Wilson; and one tree on the old Fair Ground Road.

City Manager A. B. Uzzle said that while actual damage to city property was low, workmen will be busy for at least two days clearing streets. This will cost the town between $800 and $1,000, he said.

In addition to tree and automobile damages, Uzzle said that some 40 to 50 TV antennas were blown down, some across light and power lines.

Over in Erwin, a large gospel tent was complete blown away. It was reported.

Ted Burwell of radio Station WCKB in Dunn said that the wind velocity jumped from 40 miles per hour to 60 in just a short time, and them to 75 miles per hour. After that the wind took the instrument off the building and blew it completely away.

Most of the damage in Dunn was centered through town. However, slight damages were reported on both sides of town. Preston Parker, N. Ellis Avenue, stated that a number of trees were ruined in his back yard. All over town limbs and leaves covered the streets.

City Board To Convene

The question of opening N. McKay Avenue between Johnson and Cole Streets is again up for discussion this week by Dunn's City Council.

Scheduled to appear before the Board to discuss the opening are, Mrs. Elwood R. Edwards, 404 Ashe Street, Greenville, and Mrs. Lillian Adley Hood. Both ladies are property owners in the section under consideration.

The closed section of the street is part of the property formerly owned by the Adley family, but recently deeded to the town for a street. A number of large, wooded lots, are located along the section of McKay which is being proposed for opening.

Several property owners on the north end of McKay have long urged the opening of McKay to give an outlet for traffic to the tobacco warehouse located off Highway 301.

Opening of McKay would relieve the heavy traffic on Highway 301 through town.

Other items scheduled for discussion at the Thursday evening Board meeting include: A report on tapping and billing water line extensions from Erwin Mills. On the committee making the report are, J. V. Bass, chairman; Bill Bryan, and J. Leon Godwin.

Consideration of a privilege license ordinance providing a tax for professional tree trimmer and surgeons. City Manager A. B. Uzzle will require that the license be revocable if surgeons fail to clear streets where they work.
