Solons Working In Air Of Top Urgency

RALEIGH (AP)—The note of urgency still prevailed in the 1955 General Assembly as the fast-working law makers scheduled early meetings today, plunging deeper into studies of the proposed spending and tax measures.

Revenue Commissioner Eugene Shaw began a four-day briefing of senators on the state's revenue outlook, including proposals for new taxes to bring in an estimated 26 million dollars a year.

The House met at 9:30 a.m. today and the Senate at 10 a.m. The usual hour for sessions of both houses is 11 a.m.

Also Requests Increase In Postal Rates

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower today asked Congress to hike postal rates and increase the pay and benefits of federal workers at a cost to the government of more than 394 million dollars a year.

He said in twin messages to Congress that the mail rate increase will be in the public interest to assure efficient service of the Post Office Department, and the pay raise boost is essential to the further improvement of the federal career service.

He is expected to ask Thursday for pay raises for members of the armed forces.

In an effort to make the Post Office Department self-supporting, he proposed that the postal rates on the first three classes of mail be increased. He did not spell out the actual proposed increases.

However, the administration stand has been that three-cent postage on out-of-town mail should be increased to four cents and air mail upped from six cents to seven.

PAPER INCREASE Included in the postal rate plan was a recommendation that the second class rate on newspapers and magazines be increased until such matter makes a fair and reasonable contribution to postal revenues.

The President recommended that the rate increases be regarded as tentative pending congressional establishment of an independent commission which would have the authority to prescribe future adjustments.

He recommended what amounted to an approximate 5 per cent pay raise for all federal civilian workers. He said that for the classified or civil service employee this would add about 210 million dollars to the federal payroll.

First steps to assure Harnett County a long-to-be-remembered centennial celebration were taken Friday at public meeting held in the Lillington Community Center.

In the informal discussion of a celebration to mark the formation of Harnett County 100 years ago from territory which previously was within Cumberland County, there was mention of an historical drama utilizing school children and emphasizing music, and a museum to display treasured relics of Harnett life in the past century. But growing of beads to lend an historic atmosphere was ruled out. Around 30 persons from all parts of the county attended.

Leon McDonald of Olivia was elected chairman of a temporary steering committee. He was designated to select four other persons to aid him in naming a permanent steering committee to manage the centennial celebration.

This temporary committee of five was instructed to fix a date, name a place, present a permanent slate of officers for the centennial committee, and fix procedure for the (Continued on Page Two)

LEON GETS A PATENT; BOY ALMOST GOT WED

Leon McKay of Dunn, president of the John A. McKay Manufacturing Company, has discovered that the Government Patent Office in Washington works a lot slower than the wheels of commerce.

By the time it takes to get an invention patented, it can become obsolete on the market.

The Daily Record received notice from the patent office the other day that the young Dunn industrialist had been issued a patent on an adjustable mounted stalk cutting implement.

Sensing a story, we called Leon to ask him about it.

"Oh, that thing," said Leon, "I'd almost forgotten about it and as far as I'm concerned they can forget about it, too."

Leon said that at the time he applied for the patent it was a good thing and he was using it on some of the farm equipment his company manufactures.

"But since then," he explained, "we've made still other improvements and it's practically of no use at all now."

To add to Leon's harrassment, it was late at night and we had got (Continued On Page Two)

Woman Gets Year For Bootlegging

Cattie Bailey Spencer, Lillington Negro woman, was convicted late Monday in Harnett Superior Court by a jury of four counts of violation of the prohibition law.

She immediately was sentenced by Judge Chester Morris to a total of 12 months in the Woman's Prison. She posted bond of $1,000 to guarantee her appearance on Thursday afternoon when commitment will be issued. Judge Morris allowed her the time to make provision for her elderly and blind mother who has been making her home with the defendant.

Specifically the defendant was appealing one year prison sentences received in Harnett Superior Court. She was charged with possession of a quantity of tax paid beer on the premises for sale on September 31, 1953, and again for illegal possession of non tax paid beer on August 7, 1954.

Witnesses were Rural policemen C. E. Moore and J. S. Byrd who raided the home of the Bailey woman who lives less than a mile from highway 210 near Lillington. They told how on the first raid they found 96 cans of beer in the seat of an automobile which drove up to the house with Cattie, son, Bobby, at the wheel. They also told of finding draft glasses with odor of non tax paid whiskey in the house, a litter of empty beer cans and fruit jars around the premises.

In the second raid a year later Policeman Moore told on the stand how he entered the house with a search warrant to find the woman (Continued On Page Two)

Premiere Is Shown Under Sea By ALINE MOSBY United Press Staff Writer SILVER SPRINGS, Fla. (AP)—A motion picture premiere, was held under water for the first time Monday night, but I was too busy trying to keep from drowning to see the film.

RKO Chief Howard Hughes had 150 members of the press flown from Hollywood and New York to witness the screening of this sea horse—opera "Underwater" 20 feet under the water at this famed Florida resort.

Most of the press, plus actresses Debbie Reynolds and Barbara Darrin, observed the film from the comfort of porches in two submarines. One reporter said he preferred to wait until the picture came to his neighborhood swimming pool.

But 24 of us shivering scribes braved the deep to attend the special underwater theatre set up in the crystal clear water near the shore.

JANE LEADS WAY Jane Russell, the star of the picture, led the way with two oxygen tanks on her back, declaring, "Well, I've had to do everything else, I might as well do this."

I, too, had to don an aqualung, consisting of the heavy tanks and a harness; a bathing suit and cap, rubber foot flippers, a face mask and an underwater watch.

Several scribes brought along ballpoint pens to write such underwater reviews as, "In 30 yards the movies have gone from flappers to flippers."

It takes much awkward struggling to learn to be a deep-sea skindiver, and Silver Springs churned all day with reporters making wet (Continued On Page Two)

Palmer Will Speak At Chamber Event

Fred Palmer of Columbus, Ohio, nationally-known after-dinner speaker and sales consultant, will deliver the principal address at Dunn's annual Chamber of Commerce banquet on Friday night, January 21 at 7 o'clock in the Dunn High School cafeteria.

His acceptance was announced this morning by Chamber Manager Ed Carroll.

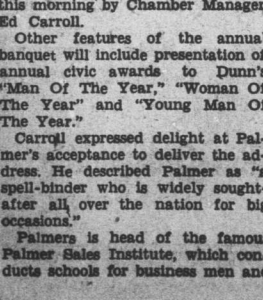

Other features of the annual banquet will include presentation of annual civic awards to Dunn's "Man Of The Year," "Woman Of The Year" and "Young Man Of The Year."

Carroll expressed delight at Palmer's acceptance to deliver the address. He described Palmer as "a spell-binder who is widely sought-after all over the nation for big occasions."

Palmer is head of the famous Palmer Sales Institute, which conducts schools for business men and sales personnel throughout the nation.

Hubert Peay, president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, is general chairman of arrangements for the banquet and a group of Jaycees are serving with him. At this meeting, Retiring President Grover C. Henderson will render a report on activities and progress made by the chamber during the past year.

Emmett C. Aldredge, newly-elected president, and other new officers, will take over at this meeting. Carroll said he was expecting an attendance of 300 or more. Reservations notices have already been sent out to the membership.
