YALTA PAPERS STIR CONTROVERSY

Disclosure Of Papers Draws Varied Reaction

By LYLE C. WILSON
United Press Writer

WASHINGTON — (AP) — A political and diplomatic storm of hurricane force was blowing up today around the long-suppressed records of the Yalta conference where the late President Roosevelt dealt Communist Russia into the war against Japan.

Yalta proved to be a good deal for the Russians. Their armies struck in the East only five days before Japan accepted unconditional surrender.

The State Department made the Yalta papers public Wednesday night in a hurry-up climax to a series of maneuvers which, like the Yalta record itself, was confusing and open to various interpretations. Also published were the records of the conference at Malta where the late President Roosevelt met British Prime Minister Winston Churchill before proceeding to Yalta as Generalissimo Josef Stalin's guest.

There are shocks and some surprises for those at home and abroad in the Yalta documents. Germans may flinch to read of Mr. Roosevelt's "bloodthirsty" attitude toward them and the Yalta plan to dismember their nation. FEARED GERMAN OPPOSITION Churchill will be unhappy. He has opposed publication of the Yalta conference details at this time. Churchill is the lone survivor of the Yalta "Big Three."

The State Department had delayed publication to avoid what was described as international complications. There was anxiety here and in Britain lest blunt Yalta references to Germany, as revealed today, might strengthen German political opposition to a military alliance with the West.

Waggoner To End Services After 8 Years

Coach Paul Waggoner of Dunn High School resigned last night at the peak of a controversy over his coaching methods after eight years service at the local school.

The veteran Dunn High coach tendered his resignation to Dr. Clarence Corbett, chairman of the Dunn district school board, and later told newsmen he did so to avoid disharmony and dissension in the local school.

"I think too much of the Dunn school and the people of Dunn," said Coach Waggoner, "to be a party to any controversy or dissatisfaction which might prove harmful to either the school or the community."

His resignation followed by one night a meeting of the Dunn district board, at which charges were leveled against the coach that he had taught his Dunn players unnecessary roughness and had condoned, unsportsmanlike tactics.

COACH REFUTES CHARGE Coach Waggoner said the controversy "came at news to me" and emphatically denied that he had ever taught or advocated anything except the highest type of sportsmanship.

"I believe in keeping my boys in good condition," he said, "and I believe in playing hard, but I have always insisted that they play fair."

Meanwhile, a group of about two dozen students, including many members of the football team, issued statements to the press, de-

Pat Ward Names George White

By JACK WOLISTON

United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK. — (AP) — Pat Ward dropped the name of another of her love-customers into the Jelke vice trial today and also testified a George White once told her he might give her a part in a play he was producing.

Miss Ward, 21, in school-girl attire of a blouse and skirt, took the witness stand for the 4th day at the retrial of Oleo heir Minot (Mickey) F. Jelke on two counts of compulsory prostitution.

Shortly before noon, Miss Ward broke down in tears and Judge Francis L. Valente adjourned court until the witness could regain her composure.

She had just completed testifying to an argument which had occurred between her and Jelke while they were living together at the Blue Bay Motel in Miami Beach. She said Jelke had struck her after an argument in which she told him she couldn't continue the type of life she was living.

CHASED HIM WITH KNIFE She said she chased him from the room with a kitchen knife.

In reply to his question, Miss Ward said she met White once or twice but never went out with him.

Later, she testified, she discussed White with Jelke and told the former playboy that White was producing a new show and had told

Opening Of A&P Proves Big Success

Thousands of people visited Dunn's new $125,000 A & P Super Market last night and today and Manager Locke Muse and officials of the company hailed the grand opening event as "a tremendous success."

The big opening event will continue through Saturday night, with a Westinghouse television set and a big array of other valuable gifts to be given away.

Open House was held yesterday at 5 o'clock when Manager Ed Carroll of the Dunn Chamber of Commerce cut the ribbon.

Despite a hard driving rain, a large crowd was on hand for the opening and the crowd grew increasingly larger throughout the evening.

The beautiful new self-service store, the last word in modern food retailing, is located in the new Quinn Shopping Center between the forks of West Cumberland and West Broad Street.

COMPANY PRAISED

President Emmett Aldredge of the Chamber of Commerce, in his speech, paid high tribute to A & P for its confidence in Dunn in making such a big investment here. Aldredge said the town would continue to go forward with such progressive business enterprises.

J. L. Creed of Fayetteville, district supervisor, also spoke and expressed appreciation to citizens of the area for their support, which made establishment of the new and larger store here necessary. A & P has been operating in Dunn for many years.

Manager Muse, one of Dunn's most popular citizens and a man with 26 years experience with the company, also spoke briefly and expressed his appreciation to the public.

"We are happy and proud to have been able to secure this new store for Dunn and the surrounding area," said Mr. Muse, "and we want all of you to enjoy using it."

Baby Market Being Probed

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The Children's Bureau is trying to find out how many babies are being adopted through black marketing.

As far as the government bureau knows, no organized black market baby rings now are operating in the country. But it suspects some black marketing — arranging adoptions for a price — by individuals, a spokesman said today.

"Unquestionably some individuals are serving as intermediaries for money," Social Worker Margaret Thornhill said.

INFORMATION SCARCE

Miss Thornhill, who is making a year-long survey of adoptions for the government agency, said information on baby black marketing is very difficult to obtain. No one involved talks about it. Even officials in communities where it is suspected cannot estimate how many babies may be involved, she said.

Her survey is aimed at finding out why some 20,000 adoptions a year are arranged outside of established public, private, or church

Mrs. Harrington Finds Her Man

The postman recently brought Mrs. Inez Harrington, county register of deeds who has a reputation of knowing the name of almost everybody in Harnett County, a friendly request that really put her on the spot.

In a letter postmarked Monday, N. J. Frank B. Bronander of 4 Curtis Terrace, wrote:

"Dear Mrs. Harrington: Bill Eanes left his credentials and wallet in my car in Memphis, Tenn. I don't know his address, but I am sending his credentials to you in hope that you may be able to return the contents of this letter to their proper owners."

Now, Mrs. Harrington had never heard of Frank or Bill, both apparently in the Navy. But it was Bill, William Arthur Eanes, Jr. of Erwin — she was supposed to find.

Morgan Introduces His Tax Measure

RALEIGH — (AP) — Bills to raise state individual and corporate taxes one per cent were introduced in the Senate today.

Sponsor of the measures, Sen. Robert Morgan of Harnett County, said the increase in personal income taxes would cost taxpayers about 6 million dollars a year but would bring in 9 1/2 million dollars a year in additional revenue for the state. He explained the cost would be less than the actual revenue received by the state because taxpayers would receive a further reduction in figuring state income taxes in filing federal taxes.

Morgan's bill to increase corporate taxes would apply to income in excess of $25,000 a year. He said the increase would bring in an additional 6 million dollars annually at a cost of $2800,000.

Both measures would apply to income earned by taxpayers in 1955.
