NEW YORK, UP—Baseball undeniably entered a new era today as managerial discretion finally overcame hope-inspiring valor.

Once upon a time—and it happened every spring, children—each major league manager was expected to predict that his stalwart heroes would win going away. By August, he usually was hoping that they'd just go away.

But how times have changed. This year, of the 16 pilots on the big apple only one—Marty Marion of the Chicago White Sox—has come right out with a flat-footed announcement that "you bet I think we'll win."

Offhand you might think from this that the Pale Stockings are a shoo-in. But it is possible that Mister Bones is simply applying reverse psychology. He was canned from his last job for assertedly being of a "defeatist" attitude. Said job having been at Baltimore, you can almost understand the "why" in both cases.

DRESSEN SEES ADVANCEMENT

In the American League the "catch-me" clubs are the Indians and Yankees. Both managers respectively, Al Lopez and Casey Stengel, are singularly reticent when it comes to prophetic discussion. Neither is going to give the October critics any extra fodder. And, after Chicago, the other five bench directors are well-nigh gloomy.

Chuck Dressen of Washington appears downright brash when he admits to designs on the first division "and maybe a pennant in two or three years." That gives him quite a bit of leeway. Bucky Harris at Detroit cautiously avers that his Tigers may finish "anywhere within the first five," and that not a high in optimism.

Even with Ted Williams returning, Boston's Pinky Higgins sees a "rough road ahead with only a few bright spots." And Baltimore's Paul Richards shatters a spring tradition by saying he doesn't have "the foggiest notion" where his gladiators will wind up but figures it will be "somewhere in the middle of the pack."

Lou Boudreau of the Kansas City A's shows some of the old-time spirit by complimenting his crew on the grounds that he never managed a club with "more cooperation and spirit." Said attributes may be unproductive because he admits "we'll be satisfied to get out of the cellar."

THE "LIP" SILENT

Charley Grimm of the Braves and silent Walt Alston of the Dodgers are the most daring souls in the National League. Grimm admits "we have as goody" while Alston asserts that "we are as strong, if not stronger, than the Giants."

Leo The Lip Durocher of the Giants for once says nothing.

Birdie Tebbets of the muscular Cincinnati Redlegs ventures a tentative suggestion that "we are solid enough to be contenders" but tempers it with a warning anent his pitching. Mayo Smith of the Phils pleads that his club must strengthen its defense and bench while Eddie Stanky of the Cardinals hedges that "we'll go as far as our pitching takes us."

Debating for the Cubs, Stan Hack insists stoutly that his warriors "are not a seventh place team"—and who wants to finish sixth? Meanwhile, Fred Haney of Pittsburgh, after two years in the basement will go no farther than to suggest that "we are not thinking about finishing eighth." Maybe they're going to try a new league.

All in all, the gentlemen are exceptionally wary. Marion seems to be the only one who didn't receive the new script.

Angier PTA Will Meet Tuesday

Mr. R. G. Banks, principal of Angier High School, has announced that the regular meeting of the Angier PTA is scheduled for Tuesday. The teachers will be in their individual rooms for conferences with parents before the group congregates in the auditorium at 7:30.

Mrs. Bennie Mangum, program chairman and chairman of the Parent Education Committee, has used as the topic of this month's program the theme, "One Ship Drives East; Another Drives West." The school bond issue will be discussed by two of the local board members, Mr. Joe Curran, son, Margaret Cummings, Gerry Matthews, Stanford Godwin, Barbara Hudson, Annie Leigh Frazier, Maureen Parker.

chairman, and Mr. D. W. Denning, Jr. Mrs. Royster Young will show slides of various Harnett County schools.

There will be talk on the Boy Scout's Organization. The nominating committee will present nominations for new officers for next year's PTA.

Of particular interest also will be a chalk talk given by Jeanette Pleasant, a senior. Because of her talent in art, Jeanette was voted by the members of her class as the most talented girl in the senior class.

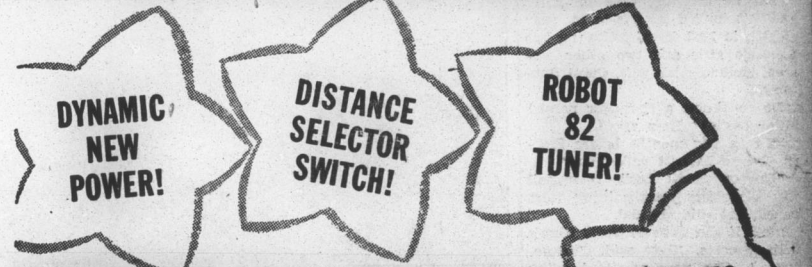

Mrs. G. Vann Stephens, wife of the Baptist minister, will have charge of the devotional program.

Members of the Beta Club will keep babies in the first grade room for parents who wish to attend the PTA.

All parents and friends of the school are urged to attend this meeting, as a very interesting program has been planned.
