PEACH CROP HARD HIT

By UNITED PRESS

Carolina peach growers, facing near-ruin in the wake of a record early-spring cold wave, estimated orchard losses in the millions of dollars today. State and federal aid was sought.

Representatives of the North Carolina peach industry scheduled a meeting at Raleigh tomorrow night with Gov. Luther H. Hodges and State Agriculture Commissioner L. Y. Ballentine to discuss the situation.

In Washington, Rep. C. B. Deane (D-NC) said he was asking the Agriculture Department to determine what aid might be available.

Unofficial estimates placed losses in North Carolina from the shriveling of looms alone at more than 3-million-dollars. Other millions of dollars may be lost if trees also were killed by the bitter weekend cold wave.
