WHAT THE WELL-DRESSED HARNETT MAN WILL WEAR — To be in keeping with the spirit of things, the well-dressed man in Harnett County will wear some sort of a beard and that between now and the end of Harnett's Centennial Celebration in October. To illustrate the point, Albert Dockery, manager of Leder Brothers Bepartment tStore, invited three of Dunn's black-bearded Jaycees in to be photographed by Waller's Studio representative, who will be at the store through Saturday. These three Jaycees are so handsome that Mr. Dockery is using their pro-files in his window to entice others in to have their pictures made. In three striking poses are Corky Cretini, top, Tommy Godwin, center, and Lamar Stone, bottom. "You get the derbies down-stairs," Mr. Dockery was telling 'em this morn-ing. Incidentally, if your wife won't give you per-mission to grow a beard, you can get a shaving permit for five bucks from Bob Hadley. (Photo by Waller.)

Mary, a smiling, light-hearted little girl, was kidnapped Monday evening. Sne was on her way back from a drug store, where her mother had sent her with 15 cents to buy a rubber nipple for her 9month-old- baby brother.

The child's ravished body was found yesterday by three street cleaners. It was lying in a dank, dark viaduct that runs a half block under the Pennsylvania railroad tracks. Old newspapers and broken beer bottles lay in a welter beside

That meant the killer had kept Mary alive during Monday night, subjected her to vile abuses. The viaduct had been searched and found empty Wednesday, so police theorized Mary's body had been brought from somewhere nearby during the night and thrown in

MOTHER FAINTS Police Lt. James McMahon, chief f homcide, turned away with a shudder when asked what Mary had endured before her death. The child's mother and aunt both fainted when they saw what the killer had done to the child. Mary's father, Dominic, 45, repeated over and over "he was a beast. The man was a beast who did that to my little girl."

Veteran police officers said Mary's murder was easily the most brutal crime against a child in Chicago since the kidnaping, strangling, and dismemberment of 6-year-old Suzanne Degnan in (Continued on Page Two)
