Masked Men Parade Before Iowa Girls

DAPENPORT, Iowa (AP) — A weird band of young men wearing white masks and with crosses taped on their bare chests prowled city streets Thursday night in defiance of a police "shoot on sight" warning.

Twelve members of the strange band drove up to a home where a party was in progress. They honked their horns and then, in parade fashion, circled the block three times in their three cars.

The procession was witnessed by two baby-sitters next door. They said one of the group jumped from his car and made a dash for the house door before the caravan drove off.

On two previous nights this week, about 10 members of the "white mask" band surrounded groups of young women or girls and danced around them in silence. The women were not molested.

Police arrived on the scene too late Thursday night to carry out their warning that they would route the night prowlers with gunfire if necessary.

Thursday night's band was dressed in the same manner as the young men who have previously appeared on Davenport streets. White masks covered their faces and they had white adhesive tape in the form of a cross on their chests, their only clothing was white shorts.

Police Chief Harvey Smith said the men might be pranksters. If that's the case, he said they are "not aware of the danger of their actions." Police may shoot them on sight, he said.

The "white maskers" first appeared before a group of nurses from St. Luke's Hospital as they picnicked in a local park. The nurses took pictures of them.

On another night the masked petition and some 75 to the county petition.

City School Supt. C. Reid Ross and County Supt. F. D. Byrd Jr. said the petitions will be presented to the respective boards "at an early date."

At High Point, school officials said they would refer to the full board a petition from the NAACP which contended the board should "take immediate steps to reorganize the public schools under your jurisdiction on a non-discriminatory basis. . . . The time for delay, evasion and procrastination is past."

At Rockingham, the crisis centered on a school bond issue. New York bond attorneys telephoned to advise that a $1,665,000 issue approved by public vote last May was "void." They explained that its provisions were contrary to the Supreme Court's decision against segregated schools in that they specified funds would be for "certain white and colored schools."
