

NOT QUITE DEAD ENOUGH — For awhile it looked like Ed Black (left) and Bruce Byrd (right) of Star Furniture might have a disposal problem on their hands. If these pictures are legitimate, and the Record has no reason to suppose they are, the big 60-hour stayup during which the furniture company sold May-back into dreamland where the stores are only open from two to three p. m. Star Furniture winds up the marathon in 30 more hours, then the salesmen go home to their wives and try to pick up the pieces of their home life. (Daily Record Photos.)

It Takes

singing and dramatic readings. Can Come From Nowhere

In the old days it was nothing but beauty, but today a kid can come up from nowhere and have maybe come out a winner. If she can sing or show other talent. Margaret Gorman of Washington, D. C., was the first winner. All she had to do was to look pretty which she could do. That was in 1921 when they called it the Neptune Follies.

She didn't have to yodel or ride a horse or play the guitar. All she did was to show herself in a knee length bathing suit. The fact that Margaret, now married to a successful real estate man here, is trying to forget the whole thing is beside the point.

Margaret didn't run out to Hollywood and bust into a producer's office and say "Give me a script to read, I'm ready pal."

WON A TROPHY
Neither did she make the kind of money the winners today do, either. She got no scholarship. She was just a 16-year-old kid who won a trophy and a few pennies and came back home. Doty Lamour didn't quite make the grade on talent in the long ago, but she was smart enough to buy herself a sarong, and the salesman just happened to have her size.

But it's a little different these days. There is TV, which lives on talent, where the body and the voice or figures on the banjo don't count so much.

A youngster doesn't have to squeeze into a bathing suit anymore. That's only part of the judging. She also has to have the talent and it helps a lot if she is smart.

The University of North Carolina has admitted Negroes to its graduate schools for several years. Six Negro graduate students began classes at the university today.

Rapist-Killer

Hundreds of policemen had hunted him since yesterday morning, when he walked into the Daily News Building and shot Henry George, 45, the foreman. He had raped a woman during the night.

Police knew him to be crazed. Rendik said, each pointing a gun at the other.

Morabito started sidling away. Rendik maneuvered him toward an araway, telling him to drop his gun. Morabito would not, and Rendik fired one shot.

RUNS AWAY

Morabito dropped, pretending to be hit. Then as Rendik walked toward him, he leaped up and dashed away. Rendik fired a shot in the air, and two more after him. The shot missed. Morabito did not fire.

Other police were summoned. The three detectives, Harry Gozola, James Nihill and James Cooley, finally caught up with him near Morabito's home.

Police said that Morabito took a 20-year-old woman to a Lake Michigan beach last night and

HIS LAST FLING

"I've had a thrill, wine and now this," they quoted him as telling the terrified woman. "It's my last fling, and now my life is complete."

Morabito, a former mail room employe, fired two shots into George, a veteran of 16 years with the Daily News, then stood over the sprawled body and fired three more shots point blank, witnesses said.

The said the fugitive received mental treatment three years ago.

Godfrey

"If we were close enough for a collision, he would have been able to read my identification number in the air," he added.

Brown, who turned in a report to the home office in St. Louis, said "company regulations" forbid him from discussing the affair.

"I've been flying for 26 years," Godfrey said. "You don't fly that long if you take chances."

It was the second time the entertainer had been accused of endangering others with his souped-up converted airliner. On Jan. 7, 1954, he buzzed the traffic control tower at the Teterboro, N. J., airport while taking off.

He admitted that violation, after an investigation, and was grounded for six months.

Huge Crowd
