New Hurricane Named Janet On The Way

MIAMI (AP) — Hurricane Janet generated 115-mile-an-hour winds today before she was 24 hours old and bore down on the Windward Islands in the West Indies with all her fury.

The San Juan Weather Bureau located the storm at 11 a. m. EST 140 miles southeast of Martinique 12.9 north latitude, 59.8 west longitude. It was moving westward at 15 miles an hour. Janet's present course would take her across the Caribbean Sea and into Central America.

The Weather Bureau raised hurricane warnings in the Windward Islands from St. Lucia to Grenada and storm warnings north of St. Lucia to Dominica and south of Grenada to Tobago. The powerful hurricane, discovered by ships only last night blasted Bridgetown, the capital of Barbados Island, about noon.

The 10th tropical tempest of 1955 passed a few miles south of Barbados but the big storm sent its gale force winds outward 120 miles in the northern half and 80 miles in the southern half.

The San Juan Weather Bureau said the already-powerful blow would continue to increase in intensity and size.

WITH A PORKER ON TOP — Just returned from Cincinnati, the general manager of Colonial Frozen Foods, Al Wullenwaber, holds the giant trophy won by his company for the top "heavy country" ham in a national competition. Casting his eyes on the rogue pig which sits atop the trophy looking like he produced the prize-winning ham himself is Herbert Monte, Jr., sales manager. Wullenwaber's ham was adjudged best in the nation. (Daily Record Photo by Ted Crail)

Delivers Major Policy Speech At UN Meet

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) — Secretary of State John Foster Dulles today offered Russia an "overall plan of European security" in exchange for the reunification of Germany.

In a major policy speech to the United Nations General Assembly, Dulles said international cooperation could make the next 10 years "the healing decade of true peace" if the "new spirit" achieved at Geneva is carried out.

MOLOTOV APPLAUDS Soviet foreign Minister Yacheyev M. Molotov, who will address the A-assembly tomorrow, joined in the rolling round of applause from 1,000 delegates as Dulles concluded a 40-minute American foreign policy review.

"The German people," Dulles said, "have now been forcefully divided for over 10 years. The perpetuation of this division is a crime against nature."

UNIFIED GERMANY He pointed out that some countries feel their own security requires a unified Germany as part of Western European defense arrangements. Others, he said, "profess to feel that a united Germany within NATO would endanger them."

"To bridge this difference," he said, "the Western powers are ready to advance some overall plan of European security which would give the Soviet Union substantial additional assurances . . ."

"The present opportunity is so unusual and so full of constructive possibilities that it can be hoped that the forthcoming four powers foreign ministers meeting in Geneva next month will find a solid basis for the reunification of Germany within a framework of European security."

Dulles also called upon Russia to free its satellites, and demanded that Red China reject the use of force.

Japan had its first known contact with the West when a Portuguese ship off course arrived in Japanese waters about the year 1542.

He Used 4 Names, Now Has Number

Spencer Lindberg Williams has at least four names he has gone under (the other three are Lonnie Wiggs, Lindberg Wiggs and Lindberg Jones). Now he's about to get a number.

Williams was sentenced to a year on the roads today by Judge H. Paul Strickland in Dunn Recorder's Court. The charge was "assault with a deadly weapon." He fired a pistol bullet through the right arm of Thomas Holmes. His plea was not guilty.

Judge Strickland found "probable cause" this morning for the action against Edna Williams and Junior Presley, so they have been bound over to Superior Court under $500 bail each on a charge of assaulting Benjamin Millford with a knife. The warrant alleges there was "intent to kill."

Mack Everett charged with trespassing, plead guilty. A 30-day jail sentence was suspended on condition Everett stay away from the premises of L. C. Coats. The state took a nol pro in the case of Earl Long, who had also been charged with trespassing.

Richard Graham, who pled guilty to assault on Wade Graham his wife, was fined $10 and costs. Two charges against James Vernon Smith, 507 E. Vance Street—possession of non-tax paid whiskey and obstruction of an officer—brought him a $100 fine and costs, with a six months suspended sentence.

Remodeled Hood's Is Holding Opening

Hood's Drug Store, the new remodeled one which has been taking shape for several weeks, is celebrating its Grand Opening today, Friday and Saturday.

One of the oldest firms in Dunn, the store has undergone renovations, which make it one of the most completely modern drug stores in North Carolina.

As a proper way of celebrating the opening, the store owners, Paul Hood and Herman Lynch, have scheduled a giant sale and are going to give away many prizes. History of the drug store goes back to 1891, but not in more than sixty years of filling prescriptions has it ever looked as it does now. Coral and colonial green is the color scheme, with touches of canary yellow and a specially designed gold wall paper, give it a clean, bright cheerful interior.

ALL NEW FIXTURES The all new fixtures, booths, glass counters and soda fountain have been installed so each department is a unit unto itself. The gift department, with brass and china, the toy department, baby needs and cosmetics sections are all well developed.

In this area, Hood's has an exclusive on Helena Rubinstein cosmetics, and Mrs. Claude Cheek is in charge of the department where they are sold.

Prescription service has been modernized, for efficiency and speed. Free ice cream and favors will go to children during the

Vickie Happy; She Cries All Night

CHARLOTTE, N. C. (AP)—Vicki the wayward elephant, was so happy to be back home that "she cried all night last night," her owner said today.

"Big tears just rolled down her face," said Jack Partlow, who was "Pretty tickled" himself that Vicki's 11-day hide-and-seek game with searchers had ended.

"I think Vicki is just as glad to be back home as we are to have her back," he said.

A throng of some 100 elephant hunters captured the 2,700-pound pachyderm last night after flushing her from a heavily-wooded area near the airport amusement park where she fled the zoo.

"She's in excellent condition, better than we thought she would be," said Partlow. "But I'm having a veterinarian give her a few shots of penicillin for some minor scratches that got infected."

Partlow, who purchased Vicki for $3,200 several months ago in New York for an attraction for the amusement park, said he doesn't know yet what plans he will make for Vicki.

"She's the world's most publicized elephant and some people are pretty crazy with their money," he said. "But I'll tell you frankly I don't know what I'm going to do."

Partlow said a swarm of persons (Continued On Page Six)

15 Killed Plane Crash In Desert

TRIPOLI, Libya (AP) — A British airliner carrying 47 persons dipped a tree in a midnight landing attempt today and crashed in the desert, killing 15 of those aboard.

Thirty-two others, belted in by safety straps fastened for their landing, survived. Most of them received injuries but only one was reported seriously hurt.

First reports said the British Overseas Airways Corp. Argonaut, a four-engine airliner, crashed three-quarters of a mile short of the runway at Idris Airfield outside Tripoli after crossing the Mediterranean from Rome.

The most succulent, flavorful, best smelly country ham in this whole great nation was chosen at a food locker convention in Cincinnati, Ohio, this week and where do you suppose it came from?

From Dunn.

And where is it going? To somebody's mother-in-law in Texas.

Immediately after judges had chosen the ham, entered by Dunn's ever-more famed Colonial Frozen Foods, the Colonial General Manager Al Wullenwaber, sold the ham at the regular retail price of 93 cents a pound.

"You aren't going to keep a grand champion ham like that?" he was asked.

THOUSANDS LIKE IT Wullenwaber shook his head and said there was nothing special about it—not in Dunn, anyway.

"We've got six or seven thousand just like it," he said. "I just took a look at all the people rushing up trying buy the ham from me," said Wullenwaber today "and I sold to the ones who got there first. I figured that was fair."

"They were a Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Johnson of Conroe, Texas, and Mr. Johnson told me his mother-in-law did love the country-style ham, they wanted to do something for her."

Wullenwaber himself just returned from Cincinnati this morning, but he's already starting to feel the effects of the big win at the convention.

Defendant Placed At Murder Scene

SUMNER, Miss. (AP) — A witness testified at the murder trial of two white men that he saw a Negro resembling slain Emmett Till being taken toward a barn from which he later heard "hollering" and that he spied a co-defendant coming from the building wearing a pistol.

Willie Reed, 18-year-old Negro farm hand, was brought to the stand at the murder trial of white half-brothers Roy Bryant and J. W. Milam as the first of five "surprise" witnesses turned up by the state.

He followed Mrs. Mamie Bradley, grief-stricken mother of the 14-year-old Till, who said the body that came to her in Chicago for burial was that of her son who had been visiting in Mississippi.

Judge Swango sent the jury out of the room shortly after defense attorneys began putting questions to Mrs. Bradley as to what Chicago newspapers she read and about her warnings to her son to "get on his
