Lynch Manufactures Cheap Harvester

By TED CRAIL Record Staff Writer

Pat Lynch, who wears a baseball cap and looks something like a good-natured umpire, has invented a tobacco harvester for the small farmer which he expects to sell as fast as World Series tickets.

Two weeks from now—two or in a month, at the latest, says Pat—his Lynch Manufacturing Co. will be all set to build the harvester sets at the rate of one an hour.

Lynch, who didn't really finish his engineering studies at North Carolina State (they shipped him out in his sophomore year for "hazing" a junior who, he says, hazed him) has invented all the other equipment he manufactures but this harvester, he believes, is his most important achievement.

The frame-work will retail for $500 to $600 locally. It is used with a one-row tractor—which most farmers own already. Nine people are required to operate the setup, a driver four croppers and four loopers.

"My rig will get out as many sticks as a big harvester," said Lynch. "They should buy one of those big things to use just six or eight weeks a year? Mine, you can make a swing out of for your kids when you aren't harvesting."

He was in a cheerful mood today as he reviewed some of the orders already on hand for the harvester and recounted the reception his equipment received at the state fair in Raleigh.

"Fifty thousand people sat down on it at the fair. They paid more attention to it than to a two-headed cow."

Lynch started his manufacturing company about six years ago in 1949, leaving John A. McKay Co., where he held a one-fifth interest. He has made money with his new plant but the firm has been showing losses the last two years.

HE'S GOT 'EM "We'll come out of the holes on this," he said. "The big fishes have been eating the little fishes, you know."

Big Air Event Here Sunday

Local folks whose closest acquaintance with an air show is the ferris wheel at a carnival can expect a real thrill this Sunday afternoon when special air contests will be held at the Dunn-Erwin airport.

Among the spectacular events which will be participated in by one hundred to one hundred and fifty pilots from all over North Carolina will be a peculiar and exciting exhibition known as "ribbon-cutting."

The "ribbon" is a roll of toilet paper, tossed out at two thousand feet. Pilots will turn, spin and roll into this ribbon as it descends -- and before it reaches the thousand foot mark -- trying to cut it as many times as possible.

With a good man at the stick, the plane may cut the ribbon as many times as possible.

The air show Sunday is being planned by local members of the North Carolina Aero Club. Bob Bass, who expects to fly in it himself, was at the meeting with other North Carolina flyers last Sunday at Salisbury and he said the response to the proposed air show among flyers was very great.

"There were 160 of them there," said Bass, "and they all said they'd be here."

editor and radio commentator well known as an amateur flying enthusiast, will announce the various events such as a spot landing contest.

This will be the first air show of its kind for the Dunn-Erwin vicinity according to Bob Bass. About 15 or 20 local pilots will participate with state flyers zooming in to swell the lists. Bass said all types of privately-owned aircraft will be represented in the show.

Final details were settled at a meeting last night of the Harnett flying club at which Keith Finch, acting head, presided. The club plans to use the proceeds to promote flying in this vicinity and condition the airfield.

Ike Predicts Success At Geneva Meet

DENVER (AP) — President Eisenhower predicted hopefully from his sickbed today that the Russians in the Big Four foreign ministers meeting which opens at Geneva Thursday would supply evidence of a "genuine spirit" for peace.

In a public statement, he commended to the Soviets the Western three-power plan for European security which Secretary of State John Foster Dulles will present to the Big Four.

The so-called package plan designed to lead to German reunification was approved by the President in a hospital bedside conference with Dulles last week, before the secretary left for Europe.

The President, in his public statement from Fitzsimmons Army Hospital where he is recovering from a Sept. 24 heart attack, said the Western proposals "will be designed to promote a peace of justice, with increased security and well-being for all."

"They will reflect," he said, "a genuine spirit of conciliation and accommodation. If the Soviet Union responds in a similar spirit, much progress can be made. That is my personal hope, as I am confident, it is the hope of the American people."

Endorsed by Big Three The security plan endorsed by the President was approved over the past weekend in Paris by Dulles, British Foreign Secretary Harold Macmillan and French Foreign Minister Antoine Pinay.

"We shall all of us follow with eagerness the developments at Geneva," the President said today "for they will go far to demonstrate whether the 'spirit of Geneva' marks a genuine change and will actually be productive of the peaceful progress for which the whole world longs."

The "spirit of Geneva" to which the President referred was the generally easier attitude of the Soviets toward the West following comment on Margaret's romance with the handsome Royal Air Force group captain.

If Margaret and Townsend decided on marriage, it said, "The Princess will be entering into a union which vast numbers of her sister's people, all sincerely anxious for her lifelong happiness, can not in all conscience regard as a marriage."

Opposition of the Church of England to remarriage of divorced persons, even innocent parties to divorce, was reaffirmed by Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, Archbishop of Canterbury, who pointed out that "a reasonable church does not change its teaching every few minutes."

The government of Prime Minister Anthony Eden drew fire from the Daily Mirror, Britain's largest circulation newspaper, for failure to tell Parliament Tuesday if there is to be a marriage.

Eden ignored a written question concerning Margaret's marriage plans submitted in the House of Commons.

'Top Secret' Exams Given

Four of Dunn High's top students took a top-secret exam this morning that could lead to their being awarded $4000 scholarships, good at any college and for any course of study.

Mrs. Ophelia Matthews, high school principal, said those selected from here to compete in the National Merit Scholarship program were Virginia Turlington, president of the student council, Donald Gardner, president of the senior class, Mary Allred, editor of the annual, and Bobby Johnson.

OPERATING LAMP — Ed Boyette, commander of the local American Legion post, and two other members made a visit to Dunn Hospital yesterday to look at the lamp which their organization bought for the hospital. Showing them through surgery and explaining arrangements was Dr. A. L. Corwell (left) administrative officer of the hospital. L. R. Norris, adjutant, and Lewis Gavin (far right), finance officer, were present on the tour. The 400-watt operating lamp cost the Legion $895, has been in use for a month or more. Two Taken At Liquor Stills

Harnett rural policemen captured two men and destroyed three whiskey stills in two raids early Tuesday morning as they continued war on bootleggers in the county.

L. B. Coats, 64, of Dunn, Route 4, and Johnnie McLean, 29-year-old Negro, also of Dunn, Route 4, were arrested while operating two 300-gallon whiskey stills in Duke Township.

WATCHED THEM AT WORK Rural policemen Clarence Moore, B. E. Sturgill, Walker O'Quinn, Stanley Byrd and Bernice Temple hid in the wooded area about 7 a. m., watched the two men arrive and fire up the still. They let them run the distillery for about an hour before closing in on them.

Both operators tried to run but were quickly taken into custody. The officers found another whiskey still just outside Dunn on the

UNITED FUND DRIVE $5,000 Reported

The first five thousand dollars for the United Fund — about one-seventh of the town quota — had been tabulated by this morning from collections yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. Marjorie Warren, executive secretary of the Fund, stated that this represented only a percentage of collections. The $5,106 so far tabulated was in pledges from business houses.

The house-to-house residential canvas does not start until Thursday.

"We feel that for the percentage reporting, our figures so far look very good," said Mrs. Warren. "We are confident that our goal will be reached."

This year's quota of $34,460 — a thousand more than last year — will go to benefit ten agencies: Boy Scouts, Red Cross, Florence Crittendon Home, Girl Scouts, Dunn Recreation, Falcon Orphanage, Free Will Orphanage, Carolina's United and N. C. Society Children's Home, Medical Research, and Salvation Army.

Educators Speak At Harnett High Meet

Students from colored schools in Harnett and adjoining counties put on a series of playlets on economic themes during a three-hour conference yesterday at Harnett High School.

Santa To Ride In Dunn's Yule Parade Again

There's going to be a Santa Claus in the Dunn Christmas parade. The parade tentatively scheduled at a meeting last night for December 2.

Charlie Hildreth, chairman of the Retail Merchants Association which will sponsor the parade, said details for the big event have not been worked out yet but that he will announce names of the committee members shortly.

The date for the parade was set last night at the special meeting of the merchants which convened at City Hall.

Hildreth said another topic at the meeting was the possibility of buying street decorations and saving rental fees on such equipment.

"We hope with the cooperation of merchants and workers, the biggest and best parade of our history can be produced this year," Hildreth said.

Wed Fish-Eating Man If You Want Daughters

TOKYO (AP) — Marry a fish-eating man, a Japanese professor told women who want daughters instead of sons.

"The more virile and younger the husband," says Prof. Hajime Uda of Meiji University, "the greater the chances for birth of a female."

He adds that a survey he took in 10 towns and villages in the fishing villages, where men are well nourished from protein contained in fish, shows the birth tendency is for girls.

Reward Money Of $30,000 Is Offered

CHICAGO (AP) — Thousands of school children, utility workers and county employes today joined the hunt for the sadistic killers of three young boys.

Police enlisted the aid of rank and file Chicagoans with an admission the killers' trail has grown cold and they are starting their investigation over again, practically from scratch.

$30,000 REWARD MONEY Reward money of more than $30,000 awaits whoever can put his finger on the slayers of three "wonderful" boys, Robert Peterson, 13, John Schuessler, 13, and his 11-year-old brother, Anton.

A task force of officers was assigned to interview about 25,000 high school students in the Northwest side area where the boys were killed on the night of Oct. 16.

The youngsters were asked to tell police of any sex deviates they may have encountered within recent months.

Meanwhile, 10,000 telephone company installers and linemen and other utility employes were instructed to look for the boys' clothing, which was stripped from their bodies after their murder and has not been found.

The utility and telephone employes, whose work takes them into private homes, were asked to search in basements and subterranean passageways.

In another development, police announced a Chicagoan picked up in Hastings, Minn., will be questioned about the triple slaying.

The man, who was picked up in connection with a burglary, rates as a "logical suspect" in the Chicago manhunt because he disappeared on the night of Oct. 16.
