NEW YORK COMBED FOR GIRL'S BODY

DOESN'T UNDERSTAND IT — Joan Jeragan, who will play Billie Dawn in a local production of "Born Yesterday," enacts a scene from the play. Too dumb for her own good, Billie has been told to read the newspaper in the mornings and carve whatever she doesn't understand. It eats up a lot of crayon. The scene in which the newspaper is used as a prop actually has Billie reclining in a bed, but Joan said the bed could wait until the dress rehearsals.

JUDGE LEE HAS OPPOSITION

Spence Announces For County Judge

James R. Spence, Lillington attorney, today became the first candidate to announce for a race in the Democratic Spring primary.

The young attorney threw his hat in the ring as a candidate for judge of Harnett Recorder's Court. His action came within a day after charges of misconduct in public office were dismissed in Harnett Superior Court against the incumbent, Judge M. O. Lee. Lee had been charged by a grand jury indictment with trying to hold cases while intoxicated. Judge Lee is expected to seek reelection.

JAMES SPENCE

Spence, who has been practicing law for two years, is a native of Harnett County, the son of Mrs. Broughton Spence and the late Mr. Spence. He holds a L. L. D. degree from the University of North Carolina Law School, and also attended N. C. State College, Campbell College, and the University of North Carolina as an undergraduate.

After a brief period of practice in Wilmington, he located in Lillington where he is engaged in a general practice of law. He is a Baptist, a post commander of the Lillington post of the V. F. W., and an active member of the Junior Chamber of Commerce. He recently served as State chairman of the Voice of Democracy speaking contest for the Jaycee organization.

Versions Differ In Shooting Of Man

Charge and counter-charge had piled up by today from a fracas Monday night which put one man in Dunn hospital with a bullet slug in his stomach.

Osbert Barefoot has been charged by Lela McLamb, sister of the man he shot, with assault with a deadly weapon. But Barefoot has told Rural Policeman B. E. Sturgill, who is investigating the case, it was entirely self-defense.

The man, Warren Tart, was attempting to break into the home of Mrs. Floyd McLamb, said Barefoot. Barefoot claimed he was driving by in a pickup and spotted Tart with his shoulder against the back door. While others went for the police, he stayed and kept an eye on Tart who, he said, ran off into the bushes.

Coast Line Taking Dunn Seriously

In the past year, Atlantic Coast Line trains have struck down and killed three persons and injured several others on rail crossings in Dunn. The trains were not at fault.

Power Shutoff Sunday

The following sections of Dunn and vicinity will be without electric power Sunday, Jan. 15, 1956, from 2:00 until 4:00 o'clock Sunday afternoon, R. N. Hadley, District Manager, said today.

KEEPS HIM RUNNING — Wilburn Jones, 26, hired by the Suggs Company to maintain a new TV repair service, has found there are plenty of neurotic TV sets to be toyed with. Since going to work here a month ago, he has been working an average 14 hours a day to keep up with all the business that has come in. Twenty six years old, Jones is a graduate of Coyne Electrical School in Chicago, spent 1951-53 in Germany as an infantry sniper (but did no sniping), is now settled on Route 3, Clinton.

Abortions, Lover Facing Murder Count

NEW YORK (AP) — Police questioned garbage haulers and trash disposal workers today in a search for parts of the dismembered body of Jacqueline Smith who died Christmas Eve at the hands of an abortionist hired by her lover.

Chances were slim that any trace of the pretty, 20-year-old fabric designer would be found but the district attorney's office said the body was not essential to prosecution of homicide charge against Thomas G. Daniel, 24, the girl's lover, and Leo Pijuan, 46, the accused abortionist.

District Attorney Frank Hogan said Pijuan admitted performing an unsuccessful Christmas Eve abortion on the girl in Daniel's apartment. Daniel, who had called the hospital orderly to perform the illegal operation, rendered "some little assistance," Hogan said.

The girl, who had been living with Daniel and was six weeks pregnant, died during the operation and the panic-stricken pair cut up her body into small pieces, wrapping them in gay Christmas wrapping paper and distributing them in various trash baskets, Hogan said.

The dismembered body probably was consumed by the intense flames of the city garbage disposal plant, authorities said, but workers were questioned in the hope one of them may have seen one of the grisly packages or that one of the pieces may have been missed in routine trash pickups.

Authorities planned to base their case on the testimony of a Mexican doctor, an exchange intern at a New York hospital, who was called to Daniel's apartment after the girl died during the operation.

The doctor, Ramiro Morales, 26, tried to revive the girl but was unable to do so and pronounced her dead. Unfamiliar with local laws he then left and did not report the case. Morales was booked as a material witness but was released in police custody. Police said he was cooperating with their investigation.

Miss Smith, a pretty Lebanon, Pa., girl who came to New York to work as a fabric designer, shared an apartment with two other girls but had been living with Daniel for several months, Hogan said.

ACCUSED LOVER AND VICTIM — Thomas G. Daniels, 25, formerly of Warren, Ohio, attempts to hide his face with his hands as he leaves a New York police station. He has confessed that he assisted with a fatal abortion on Jacqueline Smith, 20, of Lebanon, Pennsylvania, shown below, and then helped cut her body into tiny pieces and dumped them into trash cans. Prostitutes In Tokyo Form Union

TOKYO (AP) — Some 5,000 Tokyo prostitutes organized the "Tokyo Women Employees Union" Thursday to fight an attempt to push an anti-prostitution law through the Japanese parliament.

The city's 18 red light districts were represented by 1,000 delegates. They passed a resolution calling upon the government to "give thought to unemployment, war widows and poverty before taking up the anti-prostitution law, for we cannot live decently until these matters are solved."

McNatt Gets 6-12 Months

The Harnett County Grand Jury, which finished its work on Tuesday after a day and a half of deliberation, returned six true bills, the smallest number of indictments brought by a grand jury in several terms of superior court.

True bills were returned against: Clyde Albert Favre, Ft. Bragg corporal indicted for manslaughter. Dan McNatt, Dunn Negro accused of assault with intent to commit rape. He was charged with an assault on Dec. 24 on a ten-year-old Negro girl. A jury found him guilty Thursday of assault on a female and he was sentenced to six to 12 months on the roads. The court ordered a physical examination of the prisoner before assignment to hard labor.

Willie Smith, first degree rape. The bill charges that on Oct. 30 Smith did "rape and carnally know" Frances Williams. Willie Strickland, 20-year-old Lillington Negro was indicted for first degree murder of Stanback McDougald, last Nov. 20 near Lillington. Strickland submitted to murder in the second degree and was sentenced 30 to 30 years in State Prison. Robert Atkins, charged with larceny, submitted to the charge and drew 12 months on the roads.

Erwin Super Market Open For Business

Carl Lucas' beautiful new Erwin Super Market was open for business today at Erwin, although the Grand Opening of Harnett's biggest and most modern independent food store won't be held until later.

Mr. Lucas' staff and construction men have been busy as bees for the past two weeks getting the old Colonial Store building into shape, making improvements and receiving new merchandise.

However, he pointed out today, there are still other improvements and finishing touches to be added before he has his grand opening. The date will be announced.

OWNS TWO FOOD STORES — In addition to operating the big new Erwin Super Market, Mr. Lucas will continue to operate Carl's Market and Grocery, which he established in Erwin eight years ago. Everette McDonald will serve as (Continued On Page Two)

On Trial For Manslaughter

Lions Honor Grid Players

Six football playing seniors from Dunn High received silver footballs from the Lions Club last night as the Lions threw their third annual banquet for the team at Johnson's Restaurant.

Clyde Albert Favre, young corporal from Fort Bragg, is on trial for manslaughter. He is pleading innocent to the charge and is represented by Taylor and Morgan.

Late yesterday afternoon State witnesses were Patrolman R. B. Leonard who investigated the fatal automobile accident on a rural road near Johnsonville High School. The car allegedly driven by Favre hit a telephone pole and fatally injured Cpl. John P. Jenkins, also stationed at Ft. Bragg. The accident occurred November 26, 1955 and Jenkins died next day at the Lee County Hospital in Sanford.

Dick Kluckhohn Gets New Trial

RALEIGH (AP) — The North Carolina Supreme Court ordered a new trial today for Richard Kluckhohn, son of noted Harvard faculty scientists who is under sentence for manslaughter.

HOOKS RAPS COMPANY PRESIDENT

Bonding Firm Gets Time To Pay Off

A request by State-wide Bail, a New Bern bonding firm for an extension of time to pay an unsatisfied judgment against the company for $1,500 was granted here yesterday by Superior Court Judge W. H. S. Burgwyn.

rest. Bailey was last in court on September, 1954. Whereabouts of Bailey are still unknown and his bond has not yet been paid. Last September the Harnett County Grand Jury recommended that the county courts accept no other bonds by State-wide Bail. This was the same grand jury which spent at least months investigating conditions of the Harnett Recorder's Court.

"I will give you until March to pay, and no further," said Burgwyn to the bonding company president. "Well, get Bailey or pay" promised Abernathy who had argued that unless the company was continued as the bonding agent it could not assist with location of Bailey. That was when Hooks commented, "You know you won't pay; you (Continued On Page Four)
