ERWIN MILLS, UNION REACH AGREEMENT

PRETTIEST GIRL IN THE HOSPITAL — 17-year-old Joyce Ivey, paralyzed from the waist down in an automobile wreck some time ago, had some unexpected visitors yesterday. Making a tour of the hospital so they will better understand its problems, Mrs. Pat Lynch (center) and Mrs. C. L. Corbett were part of a Women's Auxiliary group which stopped to chat with Joyce. They were quick to admire the massive jigsaw puzzles she has worked. Joyce and other patients will profit from a magazine exchange and other services which the Auxiliary, soon to get underway, is planning. (Daily Record Photo by Ted Crail.)

Terms Of New Contract Not Yet Made Public

Both the company and the union were closemouthed today about an agreement to extend the present contract between Erwin Mills and its workers for another year. The old contract expired at midnight.

Lacy Dawkins, manager of the Textile Workers' local at Erwin, began conferences with company officials with a statement that the union had 16 demands which they would press.

Today he stated that the agreement reached with Erwin Mills provides for changes in present conditions in four respects. He said workload and seniority sections of the contract were improved, and that a change in grievance procedures should be beneficial. He also said the hospital and accident insurance provisions were improved.

Neither union nor company would elaborate on the specific terms. Erwin Mills negotiators included Vice-president Carl Harris, in charge of personnel and industrial relations, and the personnel and industrial relations director, R. H. Lewis.

Lewis, who confirmed an agreement had been reached, would say only that it was a satisfactory one.

LONG NEGOTIATIONS

Negotiations were begun January 10. The contract was due to expire yesterday midnight. Meetings between union and company were intermittent over the approximate two-week period.

Dawkins stated at the outset that the union was not asking renegotiation of the general wage contract, but did want certain specific changes "for the good of the workers."

These he listed as a pension plan for the retired, at least one extra paid holiday each year, better work load protection, posting of daily wage earnings, an increase in hospital insurance protection, and an adjustment in wages for several specific departments, particularly in the boiler room.

DEATH IN A FIELD — Marie Sorrell (inset) met sudden and tragic death last night not far from her Angier home. Her wrecked car which spun on the frosty highway and overturned twice

FROST, HIGH SPEED CAUSES WRECK

Pretty Phone Operator Killed

Frosty roads and a high rate of speed combined to take the life of pretty Marie Sorrell of Angier at 3 a. m. this morning.

The 22-year-old native of Angier was coming home from Raleigh where she had a late shift on the switchboard for the telephone company. She was a mile from Angier on Highway 55 when the accident occurred.

A farmer nearby heard the sound of the car wrecking, got up and went to look. He found Marie dead. Highway patrolmen who soon reached the scene estimated that the car rolled twice and said it must have been going fast to carry so far from the road.

A popular and attractive girl, Marie graduated from high school in Angier in 1952. Mr. and Mrs. Clyde N. Sorrell, her parents, survive. So do her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Sorrell of Dunn, and five brothers and sisters.

Funeral arrangements are incomplete, pending word from her brother, Bobbie, who is stationed with the Army in Hawaii. The Red Cross is working to get him home as quickly as possible.

Two other brothers are in this county—Floyd lives at Angier, and Edgar is on Dunn, Route 3. Two surviving sisters are teen-aged Jean, a senior in high school, and Mrs. Bob Fulmer of Angier.

The Overby Funeral Home, which is in charge of arrangements, said there will be an afternoon service at Angier Baptist Church when the date is set. It will be conducted by Rev. G. Vann Stephens, pastor, and Methodist Church Pastor Rev. E. E. Hanley, Jr.

TO PRAY FOR TRUSTEES — The 133,000 members of the North Carolina Presbyterian Synod will observe Sunday, as a day of prayer for the board of trustees of the new consolidated Presbyterian college.

Duke Hospital Head To Speak

These Little Things

CRAFTON, A. B. RUTH, JACK AND OTHER GUYS AND DOLLS

Bob (John Deere) Bass of Johnson Cotton Company is back after ten days in the Middle West. He visited the main factory of John Deere in Iowa and took in a number of other agricultural events in that part of the country. James (Big Jim) Thornton, honorary mayor of the Broadleaf section of Dunn, has made it doubly official now. He just bought a Dunn city license tag for his car. He wants everybody to know where the capitol of Broadleaf is. For the first time in many years Lillington is without direct mail service to Raleigh or Fayetteville. And citizens of the county seat think Republicans are taking

Ross Porter, administrator of Duke Hospital at Durham, will come to Dunn on Monday night to address a county-wide audience made up of women who intend to join the hospital auxiliary corps.

They will be meeting at 8 p. m. in the city courtroom because that is the only place, outside of a full auditorium, which could hold the expected crowd.

Plans have been shaping for the formation of this auxiliary since the hospital board, under the chairmanship of Myres Tilghman, determined that only with such a group could the hospital give the best service to patients and visitors.

GAVE HER THE JOB

The original organizer of the auxiliary is Mrs. T. H. Sansom, housekeeper at Dunn Hospital, in whose hands the board put the task of taking the necessary first steps in getting Harnett women interested.

Mrs. Dorothy Lynch, who is one of two acting co-chairmen presently heading the auxiliary, said, "Mrs. Sansom was my home economics teacher when I went to high school so I felt I'd better do as she asked." So she would have something

Gal Kisses Guy, So He Gets 30 Days

MIAMI — Magazine salesman John Thomas, 22, must spend the next 30 days in jail for what happened when he talked with an attractive prospective customer about Emily Post's rules of etiquette.

Thomas claimed that Mrs. Shirley Richard, 26-year-old mother whose husband was away at work, began kissing him after he opened his sales talk last Dec. by quoting the etiquette authority on the proper way for a man to meet a woman.

Mrs. Richard testified that she had to fight off the six-foot salesman.

"Emily Post's rules of etiquette saw that a man does not shake hands with a woman unless she proffers her hand first," Thomas said he told Mrs. Richard.

He said the attractive woman then began hugging and kissing him.

Court of Crimes Judge Gene Williams found Thomas guilty of assault and battery yesterday and sentenced him to 30 days in jail and a $100 fine.

GUY GETS "STARVATION" SENTENCE

Rich Wife Gets $35 Of His $55 A Week

NEW YORK — A restaurant cashier today faced the staggering financial problem of living on $20 a week and contributing the remaining $35 of his take-home pay to his wealthy wife who is living in luxury in a $186-a-month apartment.

Sol Randall, 37, the cashier, said he became enmeshed in the problem in the first place because he didn't make enough money to satisfy his wife.

He said she cost too much. But his wife, Yolaine Randall, a 26-year-old fashion model and the daughter of a wealthy manufacturer, said she wouldn't live with Sol under any circumstances.

"There is no possibility of a reconciliation," she said. Supreme Court Justice Samuel Gould handed the starvation sentence to Randall. He granted Yolaine a legal separation, custody of the couple's child, Robin Sue, 3, child support of $25 a week, and $10 a week for Yolaine's maintenance.

CAN VISIT CHILD

Gould said it was all right for Randall to visit his child.

Randall testified yesterday that he married the striking brunette beauty in Miami Beach on October 24, 1950, while she was a senior in college.

For almost six years Sol and Yolaine had a blissful wedded life. He became a caterer and part owner of a midtown restaurant. She became a model at $90 a week.

Yolaine's father, Murray Gross, a retired brassiere manufacturer, helped out. He saw to it the couple moved into the plush Century Apartments on Central Park West. When Randall's fortunes ebbed Gross helped pay the rent. He even shelled out $40,000 to furnish the apartment for his daughter and son-in-law.

But Randall's financial difficulties became worse. On June 12 the marriage broke up.

When Gould handed down the decrees Randall was living in a low rent flat. Yolaine was still living at the Century. She said she would stay there.

Truman Says Ike Would Be Clobbered

By EARL WILSON
Record Columnist

KANSAS CITY — Nobody can say cocky, happy Harry S. Truman isn't acting "Democratic" these days.

He even thinks Ike'll get clobbered if he runs.

I'm no political expert — and I'm going to ignore those cries of "You said it, Buster!" — but I cover personalities. Mr. Truman's a champion, so I flew here hoping to see him.

"I believe the Democrats can win the 1956 Presidential election no matter whom the Republicans run" was one quote he said I could use.

No names were mentioned — but you just know who's "Whom." He feels farmers and labor had their "change" — and don't like it. Mr. Truman's been voicing his opinion about Ike's chances here. I asked to see him. At 9:03 A. M.,

Liquor Violations Head Light Docket

Liquor law violations composed the majority of cases heard on Thursday in Harnett Recorder's Court when court officials enjoyed a "light" docket.

The snow last Tuesday prompted Judge M. O. Lee to cancel court and all cases set for Jan. 24 automatically were set for next Tuesday, Jan. 31.

Eugene Gray, Negro, 40, of Cameron, Route 2 was acquitted of illegal manufacture of whiskey. Gray had been captured last Nov. 25 by rural police as he walked from the direction where officers later seized a still, 500 gallons of beer, and a condenser.

Policemen Leon Smith and B. E. Sturgill, hidden in the woods, told how they saw Gray and Rollie Street come from the direction of the still they had located earlier.
