

BULLETINS

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Democratic National Committee challenged Secretary of State John Foster Dulles today to produce the names of money-giving Democrats who got ambassadorial jobs from the Republican administration.

MIAMI (UP)—A threatened system wide strike Friday by National Air Lines ticket agents and clerks has been postponed pending federal mediation attempts. The 1,700-member Air Lines Agents Assn., called off strike plans Tuesday and agreed to meet with company officials before the National Mediation Board next week in Washington.

BAHREIN, Persian Gulf (UP)—British and Muscat troops advanced today to the village of Izz, 14 miles from the rebel stronghold of Nizwa. No contact with rebel forces was reported.

WASHINGTON (UP)—Administration lawyers today worked on a new compromise to the civil rights bill. The Republicans sought to find a way to limit the bill's jury trial amendment so it would be acceptable both to the House and Senate and President Eisenhower.

OAKLAND, Calif. (UP)—American and Russian engineers are pitting their industrial know how against one another on the plains of India this summer in a unique battle whose key is the making of steel.

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—Oscar and Emmy soon will be joined by a third "star" of the speeches-and-statuettes circuit—an "Eddie" award given to the top recordings of the year. The singers and musicians who entertain on phonograph records are banding together for the first time into their own honorary academy and will hand out their version of the movies' Oscar and TV's Emmy honors.

WASHINGTON (UP)—Congress, which is used to making all-or-nothing choices on civil rights legislation, must decide this year whether to choose compromise instead. Some of the advocates of strong legislation are beginning to say it would be better to pass no bill than to take what they can get from the Senate this year.

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Eisenhower grin told the world the results of the First Lady's operation: She came through fine. Mrs. Eisenhower underwent a two-hour internal operation by a gynecologist Tuesday to relieve a condition similar to a type that afflicts many women after they pass middle age. The President paid her a late afternoon visit at Walter Reed Army Medical Center.

NEW LONDON, Conn. (UP)—Atlantic Fleet Headquarters of the U. S. Navy appoints a board of inquiry today to investigate the underwater collision of two submarines off the New Jersey coast. The submarines Tusk and Cobler collided at 4:39 a. m., e.d.t., Tuesday during routine maneuvers in the Atlantic about 100 miles south of this submarine base.

WASHINGTON (UP)—An order to the military services to slash civilian employment was the latest piece of "bad news" handed out by Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson in his final days as a cabinet officer. Wilson, whose successor was expected to be announced today, ordered the services Tuesday to halt civilian hiring immediately and work out plans for reduced civilian employment.

MERCURY, Nev. (UP)—Demonstrators faced with possible imprisonment today indicated they would defy the Atomic Energy Commission for the second time and enter the Nevada Proving grounds in a protest against nuclear testing.

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Senate Rackets Committee called for expert testimony today on the crux of its New York hearings—the charge that James R. Hoffa, Teamster Union vice president, used Johnny Dio's underworld henchmen to rig a union election. Counsel Robert F. Kennedy said the committee planned to call 10 witnesses, most of them union officials connected with Dio. That would clear the way for Dio's scheduled appearance Thursday, he said.

TOO LITTLE, TOO LATE
FLINT, Mich. (UP)—Police waited patiently through the hot summer months for the arrival of their new lightweight uniforms, replacing the heavy winter garb that had been worn year-round. Monday, when the first shift to wear the new uniforms reported for duty the temperature had dropped to 46.

ATTENTION TRAFFIC COPS
CHICAGO (UP)—An economy-minded policeman helped a motorist see the light. Instead of fining the motorist $10 for driving without a left headlight, policeman James Massa escorted him to a service station and told him to buy a new headlight for three dollars.

Bunlevel Man Enjoys Job Of Supplying Fishermen

By FRANK JETER, JR.
In The Fayetteville Observer
You might say that C. H. Bethune of Bunlevel is retired, if he didn't get so much pleasure out of helping other people have a good time.
But since people do have some leisure time these days, he's not. Instead, he's in the worm business. Some people would call his small "store" a place where fishing supplies may be purchased for moderate prices. And they'd be right. He does keep a stock of poles, lines, artificial lures, and all sorts of other stuff, even to crackers and soft drinks, for the convenience of his friends—and customers. (They are the same people.)
But C. H. Bethune wouldn't use any fancy language like "fishing supplies emporium" or anything. He's got worms. He sells worms. His customers get results with the worms he sells. It's as simple as that.

Varied Types Of Bait
He has variety in his fish-bait. For example, he not only has the kind of worms you dig up out of the ground, handily placed in big troughs around his place of business, but he has "tobber worms" as he calls 'em. (A State College zoology professor would put it more correctly. Catapa worms—so named from the trees that nourish them.)
C. H. Bethune also has tober trees, two hundred and eighty of them. The big fat fuzzy caterpillar-type varmints just have a big time eating leaves, until one day they are removed to become food for fish.
The dirt-type worms are "Red Wigglers" and if you look at a fresh handful of them, taken from the loose earth in the troughs, you'll see that they deserve the name.
Besides these, C. H. Bethune has crickets, which some fish like, and minnows, which appeal to still others. He also has a few "artificial" worms of various types—probably a dozen in the whole place.

Owens Pond
In case you don't know a place to go fishing, after you get your worms, the genial proprietor may let you go to his own pond, now being fished for the first time in eight years. People are pulling out bass up to seven pounds and bream that average 12 ounces apiece.
Business is good, both in the bait and fishpond trade, because "tobacco and cotton have been cut so much that people have time to fish," according to Bethune.
Fishing tackle also moves fast, just like the worms. So does seasonal merchandise such as the juicy watermelons that are lined up

Actual, C. H. Bethune should be retired. Despite his good health, he is 67 years old.
"But my children are all grown up and married and gone," he says "and this work is just a hobby—not real work like the store I used to have down the road. We sold everything from nails to mule collars there, but I quit six years ago."
"Tore down the store and built houses with the material," he goes on, "and still have some property. But it's rented out."
Children
The three children have done well. His daughter Hilda is married to a Baptist clergyman, the Rev. P. E. Jones of Gray's Creek. They now live near Wilson.
W. A. Bethune, one son, is with a life insurance company in Charlotte. He's married and has four
