Brownell Now Considering Ark. Action

WASHINGTON (UP) — President Eisenhower said today that Atty. Gen. Herbert Brownell Jr., is investigating the use of National Guard troops to prevent school integration in Little Rock, Ark.

He said Brownell will set his course of action after a conference with the federal judge who ordered the integration.

The President also told his news conference that the overall progress of school integration is bound to be slow. He said tension between races can be licked only by Americans being true to themselves and not approaching the problem emotionally.

Arkansas Gov. Orval E. Faubus called out National Guardsmen to prevent Negroes from registering for the fall term at a Little Rock high school. Faubus said the move was aimed at preventing "violent and bloodshed."

Other news highlight: Eisenhower said that while he is not advocating a buyers' strike, he thinks Americans should buy more selectively and carefully to combat inflation. He called inflation our major internal problem.

Irrked at Congress
He said he had not materially changed his view that the record of the 85th Congress in its first session just ended was tremendously disappointing.

He said Congress actually cut his appropriations budget between 900 million and one billion dollars which, he said, is not a sufficient saving to justify a tax reduction in the near future.

He took a somewhat pessimistic view toward the London disarmament talks, saying he could see no constructive new step possible by the United States. Any move toward improving the situation, he said, will have to come from the Russians. And this, he said, seemed unlikely this morning.

He warned against placing full credence in the Russian announcement that Soviet scientists had developed and fired an inter-continental ballistic missile. He said for a long time a long-range missile would not be the best method for the delivery of an explosive charge. He pointed out in this connection that there is a tremendous difference between the test firing of such a missile and actually

Gov. Defies U. S. Order With Guard

ATLANTA (UP) — Racial integration of public schools spread uneasily further into the Southland today, but Arkansas Gov. Orval E. Faubus defied a federal order and blocked with troops integration in a Little Rock school.

Atty. Gen. Herbert Brownell Jr. began an immediate investigation of the use of the National Guard troops to prevent obedience to the court orders.

President Eisenhower told his news conference today that the overall progress of school integration is bound to be slow. He said tension between the races can be solved only by approaching the problem calmly.

A shower of pebbles, hoots and jeers greeted 13 Negroes who entered the Sturgis, Ky., high school under watchful eyes of state troopers. No one was injured.

"Get out of her, you old black man" were words shouted at the Negroes who arrived in a five-car caravan at the Kentucky integration hot spot. But the crowd of some 200 persons outside the school began to disperse as the Negroes entered the building.

Negroes Kept Out
Little Rock's Central High School, where about 15 Negroes were to have enrolled today, was a tense scene of bristling armor of the National Guard—halftracks, rifles, clubs and pistols.

A cordon of some 250 guardsmen and state troopers — being used by the Arkansas governor as an "arm of the militia," ringed the school to prevent integration. The attempt was 100 per cent successful. None of the Negroes whooped up.

The Little Rock Board of Education appealed to the Negroes not to enter the Central High School or any other Little Rock school.

Greensboro, N. C., trying integration for the first time, reported a similar experience — threats and jeers but no violence.

N. C. Integration Reality

GREENSBORO (UP) — Public school integration became an accomplished fact for the first time in North Carolina today.

Amid jeers and catcalls — but without violence—five Negro pupils were escorted into a previously all-white school here by a policeman, and attended classes with white students.

One of them, a 10-year-old girl, was crying and tears streamed down her cheeks as a group of about 10 white teen-agers, apparently high school students, screamed and shouted at her.

The Negro pupils sat side by side at the rear of the school auditorium while being assigned to classes. As they were assigned, they left the auditorium and crossed a walkway to the main portion of the building housing class-

Death Toll Is Nearing 200

Defective Wheel Blamed For Tragedy

KENDAL, Jamaica (UP)—A survivor of one of the worst railroad wrecks in history said today that a defective wheel slipped off the speeding train just before it crashed.

The accident occurred half a mile from Kendall Sunday night as an excursion train sped back to Kingston from Montego Bay with 1,500 Roman Catholic weekend vacationists aboard. The death toll neared 200.

The 12-car train hit a curve and leaped the tracks, demolishing coaches and spreading disaster. More than 700 were injured.

There were tales today of dramatic escape. One of those who survived was Pauline Donald, a teen-ager whose aunt died in the crash. It was she who indicated the possible cause of the disaster.

"They had trouble with a wheel on the way out and some men tightened it at Montego Bay," she said. "But it gave trouble again on the way back."

"It flashed fire and seemed to be slipping. We were going very fast and someone said, 'The wheel has slipped off.' Then—crash, smash—everything came off."

Pauline was riding in the fourth coach from the end. It ran off the tracks and mounted an embankment, but she escaped.

Board Asks Delay In Opening Bypass

County Commissioners acted quickly in adopting a resolution calling on the State Highway Commission not to open the new 301 super highway until it can link with Highway 701 and the overhead bridge near Smithfield.

Dunn restaurant and motel owners, disturbed over a report that two lanes will be opened this year to by-pass Dunn like an island, pointed out that only nine miles had been completed.

Earl Westbrook and J. D. Barnes of Dunn were on the commissioners' doorsteps asking relief shortly after the session began.

They explained the situation and termed the matter "grave" for Dunn business firms.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (UP)—The nation's foremost beauty contest, the Miss America pageant, begins today with 51 talented beauties vying for the title of "Miss America 1958" and the multitude of glories that go with it.

Preliminary peeks at the home folks choices from 45 states, three major cities, two territories and Canada indicated it would take the mirror of Snow White's stepmother to determine who is the fairest of them all.

EVERY MINUTE BUSY

From this point on, every minute of every waking hour will be plotted for the young misses. The hectic pace began this morning with the bathing suit picture, posed along the colonnades outside Convention Hall, the traditional grouping of the girls which has graced as many saloon windows as Custer's last stand.

The first of the dazzling performances — with no slight meant to the bathing suit appearance — takes place tonight when the girls participate in the American beauty illuminated parade.

In all, 29 floats and 25 bands will be in the line of march with the tootlers including the Charleston, W. Va., high school band and the band of gold from Inman, S. C., a subtle reminder that last year's Miss America was a South Carolina girl.

101st Backing Plans For Lee Memorial

Comrades of General William C. Lee will be joining in the effort to raise a civic center in his name here in Dunn.

Local Attorney Robert C. Bryan, who went to Pittsburgh this weekend to solicit the support of the 101st Airborne Association, reported the board of governors of that group passed a favorable resolution.

The 101st Airborne, the outfit which General Lee commanded, was holding a convention at the Penn-Sheraton Hotel.

Bryan invaded the convention and, with the help of Dunn men—Morris Wade and Wayne Justeson—who formerly were in the 101st gained acceptance for the plan worked out to raise funds.

The civic center will cost about $290,000.

Scandal Jury Sees Where Maureen Made Love

Jury At Scene Of Cuddling

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—The confidential criminal libel trial focused today on one of Hollywood's famed landmarks—Grauman's Chinese Theater where the magazine claimed actress Maureen O'Hara cuddled with a "Latin lover."

The jury was to journey to the theater by bus shortly after the trial resumes today in Superior Court. The six men and six women jurors were to form an "on-the-spot" opinion if it could have been possible for Miss O'Hara to have staged a torrid love scene in the loges of the theater.

Prosecutor William Ritz claimed it would have been impossible for the "love making" described in the lurid story to have taken place in theater seats. Defense Attorney Arthur J. Crowley was just as sure the story, "It Was The Hottest Show In Town When Maureen O'Hara Cuddled In Row 35," was true in every spicy detail.

Both the prosecution and defense have made the Miss O'Hara story a major issue at the trial, now in its fifth week. The prosecution has indicated it may call the red-haired actress to the stand as a rebuttal witness.

Miss O'Hara angrily denied out-of-court that the episode ever happened.

Ritz predicted the trial would last at least another two weeks. The trial was in recess over the Labor Day weekend and will be recessed again Thursday for a day because of a crowded court calendar.

Seventy Models Lined Up For Splashing The Fashions

The time required for a woman to put on her clothes is well-known so don't be surprised that many of Dunn's fairest are already preparing for a Fall fashion show that won't hit the boards until September 19.

Dottie Muller announced today that 70 or 80 persons, including some only semi-reluctant male models, will have an actual part in "Fashions for Fall and Winter." This spirited showing of the newest clothes will be sponsored by the Dunn chapter of the Business and Professional Women's Club, whose 51 members are up to their ears in planning it all out.

The fashion show was first held last year.

"Not all of the local stores would go along with us," said Mrs. Muller. "I imagine they weren't sure it would turn out like we wanted it to. But it was a great success and we haven't had any trouble in getting all the stores to help us this year."

Fall cottons, back-to-school skirts and sweaters, church dresses and suits, assorted office wear, after five and cocktail dresses and all the other paraphernalia of the modern woman's wardrobe will be shown.

The models will come right down the aisle and onto the stage as Harriet Presley, well-known radio commentator for WPTF conducts a commentary. Mrs. Blanche of Falcon will be the organizer.

Younger-set clothes will be styled by children and a number of men have been induced to model dress suits. Mrs. Muller said she didn't know exactly how the men been talked into it unless it was for the chance "to look at some pretty girls."
