Angier Man

Coroner Pate said that in an interview with Collins, the father-in-law had told him that Terry "had him down stompin' him. He said he tried to get through the window but couldn't make it. We found in the house that the bottom pane of the window was out."

Collins, the coroner said, had stated that he and the son-in-law had argued before. "He told us that every time Terry would come in drinkin', he wanted to start a fight - that he wanted to beat on him."

Terry's wife, Eva Belle, had gone off that evening, Pate said, to a drive-in on the Raleigh road, taking their 5 and 6-year-old sons with her. She was in a hysterical condition at learning of her husband's death and would not speak with the coroner.

Two neighbors, Mrs. Ernest Holland and Albert Adams, both testified at the inquest, held a few hours after the stabbing, that Collins came by their house afterwards and told them "he thought he'd killed his son-in-law."

They said he told them he had to do it to defend himself and that he wanted to call the law.

A new complaint about dust and smoke emanating from the Black River Mattress Co. was deferred until the next meeting of the board.

The council was not able to take final action on the garbage contract because contractor Herman Neighbors wasn't ready yet with the personal surety bond he needs before the contract signing can take place.

However, the board has already given its approval to letting the contract with Neighbors. Last year he first took on garbage collection chores at a contract rate of $31,200 for the 12-month period. For a similar 12-month period, however, the city will be charged $37,000-plus-a gain of approximately $6000 on what it had cost them previously.

Board members went ahead and signed the contract which places Jesse Hardison in charge of the upkeep of Dunn's two cemeteries, Greenwood and Veterans' Memorial, Bobbie Ray Pleasant, Joe C. Moaghue and Floyd Ferrell.

No-one appeared from the Junior Chamber of Commerce to press their request for leasing land near Tyler Park owned by the city. The club has proposed to build a tennis court there if means can be found to raise the necessary funds.

On advice of City Attorney I. R. Williams, the board decided that this lot is not under their jurisdiction, in any case, but is under the recreation commission and the city could not assign it over to the Jaycees even if they chose.

City Manager A. B. Uzzie, Jr., said today, however, that he interpreted this to mean that the recreation commission would probably have the right to do so.

Curb and gutter and paving were approved for Bob and Sam Baer on North General Lee between Granville and Cole streets. The board voted to put a stop-sign on Wilson street where it intersects with Granville. A tax payment on a wrong listing was returned to M. E. Wade.

The successful and only bidder on 7000 square yards of asphalt paving was F. D. Cline. Their bid was 64 cents a square yard. The paving is to be accomplished on various streets, scattered through the town.
