Harnett Club Members Attend District Meeting

The annual meeting of the Ninth District of the North Carolina Federation of Women's Clubs in Rockingham on Monday attracted delegates from the Dunn, Lillington and Angier Clubs.

The Woman's Club of Rockingham was hostess to the meeting at the Rockingham Episcopal Church. There are 17 senior clubs and seven junior clubs in the Ninth District which includes counties of Cumberland, Harnett, Hoke, Lee, Moore, and Richmond.

Speeches by three State Federation officers and reports of local clubs marked the morning session which was concluded by a luncheon. Lillington Club invited the district to meet there in 1958. Angier entertained a similar gathering in 1956.

In her report, Mrs. F. G. Stephenson, president of the Angier Club, revealed plans by the Angier Club to convert the former Legion Hut in Angier into a Community Center under the guidance of the Woman's Club. Mrs. Stephenson said that only on the weekend the Angier clubwomen secured permission for a 39 year lease on the building, climaxing nearly two years persuasion of Legion members to lease the property. The Legion now is inactive in Angier. Plans call for installing a heating plant in the Center immediately. Angier Club women, Mrs. Stephenson said, have $4,000 ready to spend on improvements.

Miss Wilma Williams and Mrs. Robert Young also attended from the Angier Club.

Mrs. Guyton Smith, president made the report for the Dunn Senior Club stressing aid to the library and other club projects.

In the absence of Mrs. Lamar Simmons, Lillington Senior president, the report was made by Miss Lois Byrd. Programs keyed to conform to General Federation objectives, was the topic stressed by the Lillington club.

"The Federation is You" was the topic of the address of Mrs. Aubrey Mauney of Kings Mountain, president, N. C. Federation of Women's Clubs. Mrs. Mauney called on club women to "beware, to care and to dare." She reminded club women that their organization embraces eleven million women. She defined the general federation as one of the few groups devoted to many different causes, and as "great forces working constructively." She pleaded with club women to lift their sights from awareness of civic, cultural and welfare needs in their own communities to an awareness that in the present world today the forces of "Communism offer food in exchange for freedom." Many new avenues for club women to serve were cited by the president, including new efforts in international friendship, scholarships for deserving students and new efforts to promote interest in the fine arts.

Mrs. James M. Harper Jr., of Southport, second vice-president in charge of districts entitled her talk, "The Eyes Have It."
