Pineau Reports Russians Sent Arms To Tunisia

NEW YORK (AP) — French Foreign Minister Christian Pineau said today that Anglo-American shipments of arms to Tunisia did not head off possible arms deliveries from Moscow to that North African country. Instead, he said they only succeeded in greatly angering French public opinion.

Pineau made his statement shortly after arriving here from Paris on his way to Washington and talks with Secretary of State John Foster Dulles. The United States and Britain decided last week to supply small arms and ammunition to Tunisia, a former French protectorate. Pineau in effect denied a statement made by Sen. Henry Jackson (D-Wash.), who said the Anglo-American arms move was necessary to counteract a potential Soviet supply of arms.

Pineau said he had been assured by Moscow that it did not plan to send weapons to Tunisia. He also asserted that Tunisian President Habib Bourguiba does not desire arms from the Soviets.

Communist Victory "Never since the war has the Communist Party gained such a victory in France," the tired foreign minister said at Idemild Airport.

"These (arms) shipments have been a very bad preparation for the NATO meeting. French public opinion is very troubled by this question. It is not my intention to increase this trouble, but in Washington I must say sincerely what is the state of this opinion."

Thousands Of Chocolates Damaged

Fire At Wellons Candy Company

Thousands of chocolate drops, almost ready for the Christmas market, and some candy-processing machinery were damaged in a fire yesterday at Wellons Candy Co. a mile north of Dunn.

Owner Johnny Wellons said a crew worked all day yesterday clearing up after the fire, but today the plant was back to normal operation except for one production line.

Wellons, who started with a small candy store and eventually built it into one of the most thriving industries in this area, said that a fire-sprinkler system had prevented the plant from going down in flames.

"Most of the actual damage was done by water," he said. "There wasn't so much damage from the fire itself."

Night watchman Alonzo Walker went off duty almost two hours before the fire was discovered, but he heard the fire alarm go off when he stepped out on his porch near the plant. The Dunn fire department was summoned and Wellons credited them with fast action.

Walker, he said, had found smoke pouring out of the building. The sprinkler system kept the fire in control while the fire department was on its way. Howard M. Lee, secretary-treasurer of the Dunn fire department, said ten men and a truck went to the scene but 13 men and two other trucks were standing by at the station in case they were needed.

The alarm sounded at 8:48 Sunday morning. The firemen were back to the station at 9:30. Lee estimated the water and smoke damage at several thousand dollars. Wellons said he had not calculated the loss but had fire insurance to cover it.

His candy company, which distributes its product through 25 or 30 states, is about two weeks away from the end of its busiest season. Christmas production has been in full swing for several weeks with Wellons expecting to complete this special business by Dec. 1.

The fire was traced to an air-conditioning unit. Wellons said an insulated ceiling had taken fire, setting off the sprinklers. Machinery and candy in the wrapping and packing room were damaged.

In this room were 500 trays of chocolate drop centers — 10 lbs. to the tray — 40 drops to the pound. Enough to fill a lot of stockings. (Continued On Page Two)

Collaborate In Distillery Drive

Officers Round Up 28 Whiskey Stills

Sixteen officers from Harnett and five surrounding counties went on a distillery drive last week and succeeded in capturing and destroying 28 stills.

On Benson, Route 2, they also captured Walter L. Beasley and Aaron Jernigan who were scheduled for a preliminary hearing before U. S. Commissioner Malie Jackson on a charge they had violated the internal revenue laws. Caught while allegedly fleeing from a still, Beasley and Jernigan were bound over to federal court for trial on April 7. They appeared before Commissioner Jackson on Saturday and she found probable cause. They were released under $500 bond each.

Results of the joint raids were announced here by the Dunn ATU post, the office through which the raids were conducted. All the stills rounded up were in Harnett, Johnston and Wayne counties, but officers from other counties also took part. They did so, said an ATU officer, because "the liquor was finding its way to their counties, too." The drive took place last Tuesday. (Continued On Page Two)

Gas Attendant Claims He Saw Patrolman Killer

MIAMI (AP)—Authorities in two South Florida counties touched off a huge manhunt today on a gas station attendant's tip that killer Frank Wetzel was spotted near Ft. Lauderdale, Fla.

Wetzel, 36, escaped from a mental hospital at Willard, N.Y., Oct. 21 and, according to the FBI, is responsible for the Nov. 5 slaying of two North Carolina policemen.

The man identified as Wetzel stopped at a service station near Fort Lauderdale and told the attendant to fill the car with gas. The attendant, who asked that his name be withheld for fear Wetzel would return and kill him, said he noticed "a gun strapped in a holster on the front seat right where the driver could get at it with his right hand."

The attendant said he noted the gun when the man went into the rest room. "When the man came out, I (Continued On Page Two)

Writer Denies All 'Spaceman' Story Had Its Believers

By TED CRAIL, Record News Editor At this point I'm inclined to believe there are certain types of newspaper stories which, if printed at all, should be accompanied by the statement, "This is a dirty old lie."

That could be slipped in, I believe, in a dignified manner and would help keep people straight on when the writer is fooling and when he isn't.

A few days ago, you may remember, I cooked up a story about four space-men who landed on the Dunn High football field. The gist of the tale was that I had invited these gents to spend the night with me and in the morning they confessed they were a little down on their luck and willing to accept a handout from the County Welfare Department until they could get their space-ship going again.

I received the first hint that there might be an unexpected reaction when a sixth-grade friend came flying at me, pointing at the headline and saying, "That ain't true—IS IT?"

Later I was told that some of the paper-boys carried bottles with them that night as they delivered their papers. In case they met any old space-men, they were going to be prepared.

TWO DAYS after the story appeared, there had been on particular development although I had to assure a few of the town's younger fry that it was just a (Continued On Page Two)
