JACKSON PLEADS GUILTY IN HOLD-UP

Alleged Driver Of Car Enters Innocent Plea

RALEIGH.—John Charles Jackson, 34-year-old Dunn man, pleaded guilty to charges of bank robbery for the Nov. 25 hold-up of the Angier branch of the First Citizens Bank and Trust Co., in U. S. District Court in Raleigh this afternoon.

The slender, neatly-dressed man stood beside his attorney, Duncan C. Wilson of Dunn, as he heard U. S. Attorney Julian Gaskill read the charges against him.

Attorney Wilson answered "guilty as charged" as Gaskill finished reading the charges and then Jackson sat down and listened calmly with no show of emotion as the government started putting on evidence.

Jackson is charged with the actual $33,000 robbery of the bank, all but $200 of which was recovered.

Aide Pleads Not Guilty
The alleged driver of the getaway car, James E. Oloizia, 18, of Fresno, Calif., on trial with him, entered a plea of "not guilty" through his court-appointed attorney.

ALPHIN BROTHERS, HEATH STAFFS HOLD PARTY—The combined staffs of Alphin Brothers Store and Heath Frozen Custard in Dunn held a gala Christmas party Monday evening in the George Pope Room of Porter's Restaurant. Manager A. Lincoln Faulk of WCKB was the speaker. Pictured here are,

THE MANY FACES OF JESUS—Painters through the ages have tried to envision the face of Jesus. The reproductions above show Jesus from birth (oval at bottom) to The Last Supper and the Crucifixion. Shelba Matthews, a clerk at Rose's Five and Ten, is holding two of these artists' conceptions. There are many calls for them at Christmastime. (Record Photo by Ted Crail.)

These Little Things

WOMEN, BROADS, ICE CREAM TREES; OTHER LITTLE NOTES

Mr. and Mrs. A. Lincoln Faulk celebrated their seventh wedding anniversary on Monday. Carl Lamm kept kidding them all day and threatened to dedicate to them a recording of "Seven Years With The Wrong Woman." "And I sure am glad," said Aunt Polly with a big smile, "that he couldn't find that record." That night Uncle Link spoke at the Christmas party held by the combined staffs of Alphin Brothers and Heath Frozen Custard. His talk, appropriately enough was entitled "Women." Trying to get some good quotations on his speech, we asked Uncle Link later if he gave the group his definition to a woman. "No Sir," he laughed, "you can't define a woman—they're indefinable." Frank Sinatra says in one of the current magazine articles that "a broad is just a woman with sex appeal." Members of the Harnett County Medical Society entertained their ladies at a Christmas party last night in the new Chicora Country Clubhouse. It was the first event held in the handsome new structure. Rev. and Mrs. Bob Palmer left this morning to spend Christmas with Mrs. Palmer's parents in Missouri. On Sunday night, the Dunn minister will fill the

ATU Men Get 'Big Outfit'

Ray Messer Nabbed During Still Raid

Raiding a big liquor-making outfit in Cumberland County, officers collared Raymond Messer, a 24-year-old resident of Coats, Route 1.

Messer and an unidentified companion who sprinted off were allegedly in the process of operating the distillery when the officers pounced on them shortly before eight o'clock this morning.

George Yutze, ATU agent attached to the Dunn post of duty, said that the officers found twenty 445-gallon submarine-type stills. "It was a big outfit," he said. They also seized a Chevrolet truck (three-quarter ton) and a Ford farm tractor and trailer. Yutze said there was evidence that the truck had been used to service the set-up of stills. The trailer carried gas tanks for the fuel which fires the stills.

The ATU men from Dunn and Fayetteville and Cumberland County ABC officers seized and destroyed 8,240 gallons of mash.

Scant hours after his arrest, Messer was taken before U. S. Commissioner T. L. Hon in Fayetteville and released under $1000 bond after he had waived preliminary hearing.

Commissioner Hon ordered him bound over to the March term of Federal district court in Fayetteville. He is charged with violation of the internal revenue laws.

Yutze said that Messer had suffered a previous conviction on a similar charge.

BOTTLES MUST GO

NEW YORK — The state bureau of motor vehicles Monday opened a campaign against the hanging of baby booties and other toys in front of automobile windshields. The bureau said it would ask the legislature to outlaw the hanging of "good luck toys" which limit motorists' vision.

Heart Broken, Shoots Self In The Heart

WILSON — A 16-year-old boy, smitten by jealousy, shot himself in the heart because his girlfriend refused to "go steady" with him, police reported today.

The teen-ager lived, despite the bullet wound through the center of his heart and the left lung. He underwent heart surgery today at Duke Hospital in Durham.

A Wilson physician, Dr. M. A. Pittman, said the small size of the .22 caliber pistol bullet, permitted the heart wound to close itself and prevented immediate death.

Perky Blonde Does Skiing In W'Chair

SANTA MONICA, Calif. — A perky, blonde coed who only three years ago was America's ski queen, rushed through final school-work this week in order to spend her Christmas vacation at her first love, skiing—even though she does it now in a wheelchair. "They just sort of bolt these special skis on the bottom of my chair, the kids give me a shove and I yell if anyone gets in the way," Jill Kinnmont explained with a smile.

Jill is the pretty blue-eyed girl with the vivacious manner and voice—now a UCLA student—who broke her back and was paralyzed from the neck down three years ago in a skiing accident. She was trying out for the U. S. Olympic ski team at the time. The American women's slalom champion, she was considered a cinch for the team berth. But she slammed into a spectator and a tree, ending her skiing career—possibly never to walk again.

Shelby Getting Big Glass Plant

RALEIGH — Gov. Luther H. Hodges announced today that Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co. will build one of the world's largest continuous fiber glass yarn plants at Shelby.

The announcement was made simultaneously with one in Pittsburgh by Robert A. McLaughlin, general manager of the company's fiber glass division.

McLaughlin said the multi-million dollar Shelby plant will employ approximately 850 persons at capacity operation.

Ike Flying Home; Happy Over Meet

PARIS (UP)—President Eisenhower flew home to Washington tonight happy with the results of the historic NATO summit conference. Much of its success was due to his presence and to his enormous personal prestige in Europe.

The President left Orly airport aboard his plane, Colombine III, for the overnight transatlantic hop. The plane was scheduled to land in Washington early Friday morning.

The President closed the final session of the four-day NATO meeting with a request that the other chiefs and their staffs pause with him for 30 seconds of silence "in the hope that our work has not been in vain."

His own presence had done much to dispel the gloom that enveloped Western Europe on the heels of Soviet missile and satellite successes.

Refused Thanks
He successfully led the other 14 NATO nations over such barriers as the reluctance of many of them to have U. S. nuclear missile bases on their soil.

In the end, he had refused to allow the final communique to express gratitude to the United States from the other nations for its physical and moral support. Eisenhower said there was no need for that since "we are all equal members of the same alliance."

In a final speech he told the other 14 nations here that the decisions they reached will make "war less likely, peace more sure."

The President kept up a driving pace throughout the four-day conference, but it did not appear to have bothered him, despite the mild stroke he suffered Nov. 25.

Before the session this morning, the President received a gold medal from Count Francois de Vogue, head of the French Farmers Society in "recognition of the fact the President has a farm at Gettysburg, Pa.

Mooching Minnie Writing Her Story

GOOCHLAND, Va., (UP)—Minnie C. Mangum, the Norfolk spinster who embezzled nearly 3 million dollars from a building and loan firm, was reported today to be writing her autobiography in prison.

A former inmate at the state said the book is "all about her industrial farm, for women here" (Continued On Page Seven)

Woodmen To Throw Party For Orphans

A hundred orphan children from the Falcon Orphanage and Dunn Free Will Baptist Orphanage will meet with Santa Claus tomorrow night.

He has promised to show up for a special party, sponsored by Woodmen of the World, in the Dunn High auditorium. Better yet, he is bringing individual gifts for all the children from the orphanages who attend.

J. E. Williams, who announced the party, said that bags of fruit and candy will be given out.

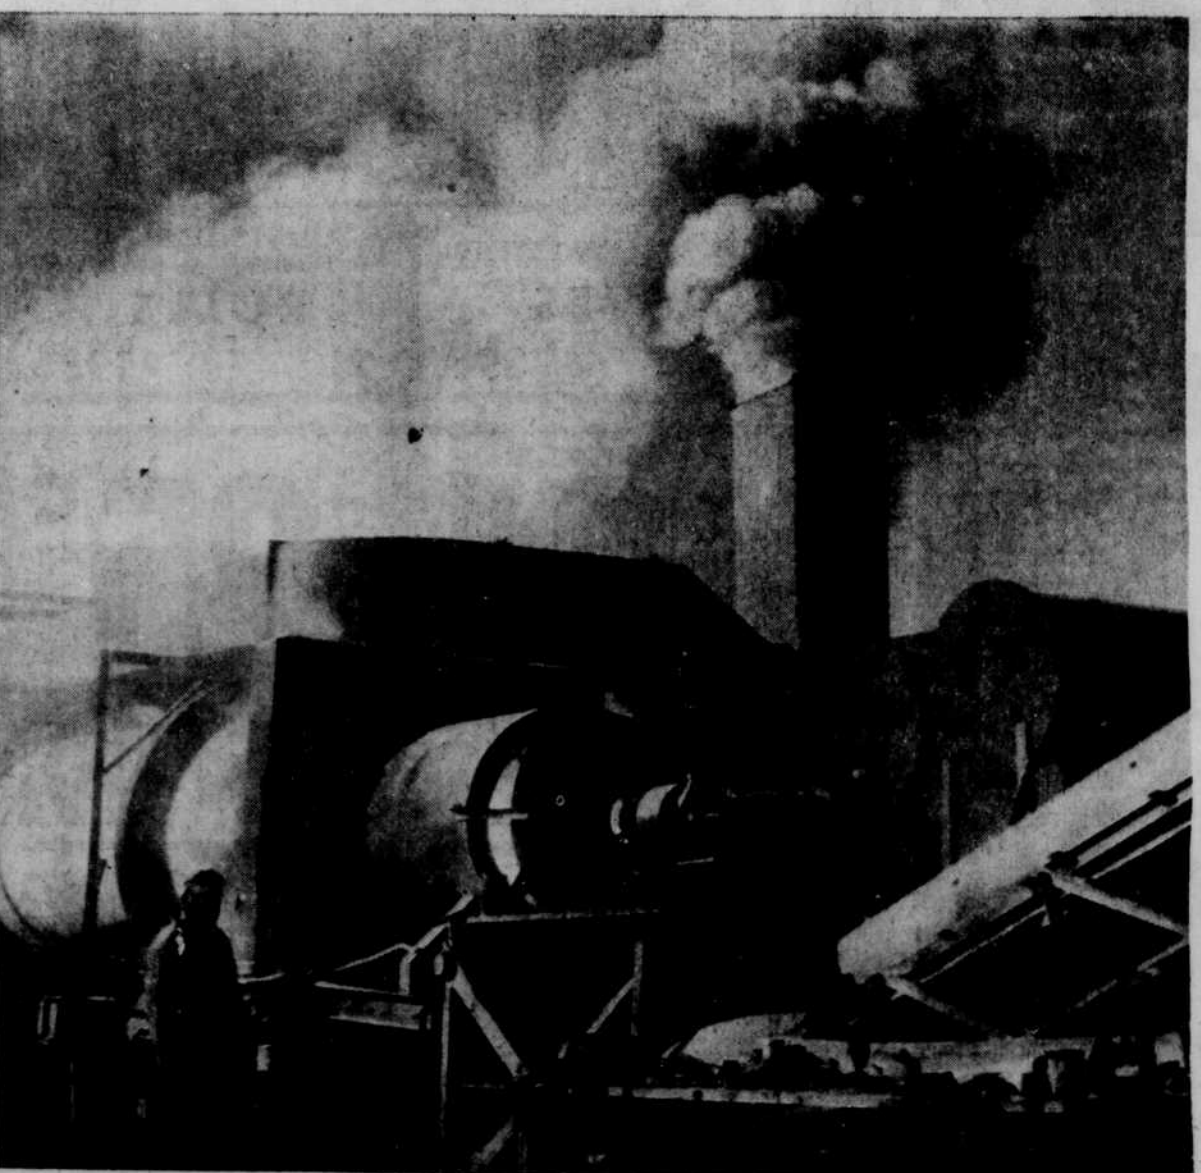

The program is part of state Yuletide party will be E. C. Hood, district manager of Woodmen of the World, from Fayetteville. The program begins at 7:30; will include songs and skits by the youngsters.

wide activities which Woodmen under take at Christmas time as a whole, some 1500 children will receive Woodmen-inspired gifts.

Local Woodmen and their wives will attend the program in the high school and will have a chance at door prizes. Presiding over this Yuletide party will be E. C. Hood, district manager of Woodmen of the World from Fayetteville.

The program begins at 7:30; will include songs and skits by the youngsters.

CLOSED UNTIL SPRING—It can't fly south like the bluebirds do but this great asphalt plant (photo shows boiler where stone is heated before mixing) has been shut down until warmer months when highway work will resume. The new Highway 301, supplied with asphalt from this plant, couldn't be finished before the cool weather set in so now operation will end, except for some grading, until Spring. This great asphalt plant is portable, will eventually be moved to another site when roads here are completed. (Record Photo by Ted Crail.)
