Hoboes Rap Hitchhiking Girls

CINCINNATI, Ohio (UPI) — The hoboes of America have headed back for the open road, satisfied at having done their bit to smooth the path for the average American.

About 204 hoboes were packed into the 24-dollar-a-month apartment of their 75-year-old king, Jeff Davis, Monday night for a final round of resolutions to wind up their week-long 50th convention.

A rap at hitchhiking girls and a plug for the return of the nickel beer were among final measures. Davis said his boys adopted a resolution calling for a five-cent beer, even if it has to come in a small glass.

Another measure called for lower taxes on beer. And for the younger generation, a cut in taxes on soda pop with the price dropped to a nickel.

The group frowned on girls hitchhiking and suggested "no girl or teen-age minor be sold a ticket on a train, bus, boat or plane without written consent of parent."

Bandleader Ted (Is Everybody Happy) Lewis, a 35-year member of the group, was presented a gold pin, then the hoboes adjourned until next year's meeting in Buffalo, N. Y.

Little Rock Decision Riles Southern Foes

United Press International
Established southern enemies of integration were outspoken and bitter in their reaction to a federal court's latest action in the Little Rock school integration case.

Georgia Gov. Marvin Griffin said the decision to reverse a delay ordered by U.S. District Judge Harry J. Lemley indicated that the seven appeals court judges at St. Louis "propose to substitute the bayonet for the ballot." He called the ruling "most regrettable."

Roy Harris, a close associate of Griffin and new president of the Citizens Councils of America, commented: "I've been to Little Rock three times in the last 18 months, and it's my opinion there will be no race mixing in Central High School—unless federal troops are called back again."

Harry S. Ashmore, who won the Pulitzer prize for editorials on the Little Rock situation in the Little Rock Gazette, said at Panama City that the court's ruling placed the "full burden" of maintaining order on Faubus' shoulders.

Up To Faubus
"The city school board sought relief and didn't get it, so it is now up to the governor to determine what happens next," Ashmore said. "He's got to find some way to keep the schools open and avoid disorder. The responsibility rests very heavily on him."

The Rev. Martin Luther King of Montgomery, Ala., who has emerged as the key figure in efforts by southern Negroes to break down racial barriers, praised the decision as "one of the most fortunate rendered by a federal court."

But spokesmen for segregationists throughout the South and southern leaders in Washington expressed dismay. These were among the comments:

Sen. Spessard L. Holland (D-Fla.): "This makes it very clear that we can't expect any long period of waiting until the whole (Continued On Page Seven)

Equipment For Internal Security Only

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The United States announced today it is shipping "internal security" arms to the Indonesian government under an agreement signed secretly in Djakarta last Wednesday.

A State Department spokesman disclosed the agreement after U.S. Air Force C-54 transporters were reported flying into an Indonesian airport with small arms for the Indonesian army.

The decision marked another turn in relations between Washington and the neutralist government of President Sukarno.

For a year the United States has refused to permit the Indonesian government to buy about 700 million dollars worth of U.S. arms and military equipment it wanted primarily for use against the Sulu and Molucca rebels. The United States was accused by some Indonesians of supporting the rebels.

The rebellion has been virtually stamped out, but Communist and various dissident factions continue to threaten trouble.

The spokesman said the current sales are limited to small arms, trucks, jeeps, communications equipment and similar items needed by the Indonesian Army for internal security operations.

Dunn Market Is Ready To Go

Lord Mayor, Dunn Youth Have Session

WILLIAMSBURG, VA. — The Lord Mayor of London, England and a fifth grader from Dunn, N. C. had a brief encounter here Monday afternoon—and both of them seemed to enjoy it.

On a tour of the historic Shriners of this early American village, the Lord Mayor, his Lady and other members of his official party had stopped at King's Arms tavern for lunch.

When the distinguished British visitor walked out of the tavern he was confronted by a score of more photographers and cameramen. He's accustomed to that, of course.

But the thing that surprised him was that behind one of the movie cameras was a 11-year-old youngster in short pants, Brent Adams from Dunn.

The Lord Mayor walked over, patted Brent on the head and struck up a conversation with him. "I want to be sure and get a (Continued On Page Two)

The first of the great golden harvest which has given new sparkle to the eyes of local tobacco growers will reach the market here on August 21.

With the opening of auction selling just a week away, Dunn and other towns are already caught up in the growing excitement of what promises to be a big market year.

By late today the leaf will start to arrive in the warehouses which lie on opposite sides of town. This will be the 11th year for the Dunn market and should mark a dramatic upturn from last year's poor crop.

As a young old-timer in the tobacco game, the local market has a stand-out record for consistently showing "one of the highest price averages of any market in the state."

And this is the year that some veteran tobaccoists have confidently predicted will see "the highest prices in history."

One great and familiar figure will be missing from the scene this year. Buck Curran, manager of the Planters Warehouse, died this Spring without seeing the tremendous harvest and the ding-dong prices which have brought tobacco springing back after last (Continued On Page Seven)

Model Home Opens Before Labor Day

A model home, forerunner of the million-dollar housing project that is to rise near Erwin, will be opened to the public two days before Labor Day.

The timing is partly symbolic since the project was initiated by the Textile Workers Union of America and will benefit workers at Erwin Mills.

Sam Mirielli, business agent of the union and the man who conceived the project and sold to his own national headquarters and the FHA, announced that opening date for the sample house will be Aug. 30.

That falls on a Saturday. The home will remain open through Labor Day, September 1, with prospective house buyers invited to look it over and check plans for the seven designs FHA has approved.

Local 250 also has plans for a union hall, expects construction to begin the latter part of next week.

Jayne's Expecting, Bought New Beds

"No Excuses," Says Dunn Soap Box Racer

Ralph Takes Defeat Just Like A Champ

AKRON, Ohio — Dunn and Fayetteville's pride, Ralph Dudley, offered no excuse for his first round elimination from the 21st All American Soap Box Derby race here Sunday.

Ralph was disappointed but not downhearted by his early elimination and a chance at the $15,000 in prizes that were divided by the nine top winners.

The lad from Dunn was at a loss to explain his weaving pattern down the track.

The stocky 11-year-old refused to blame a brisk cross track wind for his unsteady run down the 975-foot course during the 24th heat of the 91-heat race won by Jim Miley of Muncie, Ind. Ralph lost his only heat to Du-luth, Minn. champ, Richard K. Chernugul by a car length. Peter Reiser of New Brunswick, N. J. (Continued On Page Two)

Faubus Won't Call Special Assembly

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UPI) — Gov. Orval E. Faubus declined today to call a special session of the Arkansas Legislature to deal with the new Little Rock integration crisis.

The new crisis was born Monday when the 8th U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals reversed a district court decision that would have let Little Rock's Central High School postpone integration until 1961.

Faubus said the reversal of U. S. District Judge Harry Lemley's de-integration decision by the Court of Appeals was "most regrettable."

"The higher court's decision indicates an indifference and disregard for the will of the people that is most alarming and dangerous," he said.

But at the same time, he said, the spotlight in the crisis has moved over "to the school authorities, the officials of the NAACP and the parents of the Negro children."

Waiting Policy
"Any action taken by the chief executive, the Legislature or the people before the attitude of these people is known might prove to be premature and unnecessary," he said.

Faubus had been expected to call a special session almost immediately to prepare anti-integration legislation. He apparently decided against it in a long conference with his advisers.

Faubus suggested that the city school board take advantage of a pupil assignment law approved in 1956, or try to talk the Negro parents out of forcing the issue. As a third alternative, he suggested that the board resign and "allow the people to select a new

Four Killed In Collision

FREMONT (UPI) — Four Kingston Negroes were killed and a fifth injured Monday night when the speeding car in which they were riding crashed into a bridge abutment near here.

The victims were identified as Charlie Lee Fair, 28, William Henry Fair, 41, Rosa Lee White, 32, and Floyd Cox, about 40. Annie White, 15, was treated at a Goldsboro hospital for a broken ankle and head and face lacerations.

Highway Patrolman W. I. Morrow said the car was traveling between 45 and 60 miles per hour in a 35-mile zone when it hit the guard rail of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad bridge two miles south of here on U. S. 117.

Morrow said the car bounced off the guard rail into the bridge abutment and burst into flames. He said the five occupants were thrown clear of the wreck.

James R. Nance To Speak At Campbell

Noted Attorney Will Address Grads

When James R. Nance speaks up, folks in Robeson and Cumberland counties have a way of listening. So do folks in Harnett and other neighborhoods round about.

JAMES R. NANCE

For this deceptively quiet-looking attorney of Lumberton and Fayetteville is noted for courtroom fireworks and is recognized as one of the top-ranking lawyers in this corner of the South.

To this year's Campbell summer graduates who know him, the fact that Mr. Nance is to be their commencement speaker compensates for the prospect of having to wear the traditionally stuffy academic caps and gowns during commencement exercises to be held in the high heat of August Thursday afternoon.

The Raleigh News and Observer's Jay Jenkins told the Fayetteville barrister's story as a Tar-Heel-of-the-Week feature some time ago. Jenkins' comment seconded a Lumberton editor, who had said that Mr. Nance is "uni- (Continued On Page Two)

Dunn Attorney Sworn In Today

Bryan Takes Post On Welfare Board

Dunn attorney Robert C. Bryan was sworn in early this afternoon as the third member of the committee which governs the activities of the Harnett County Welfare Board.

A Navy officer-turned-lawyer, Bryan was last year's "Young Man of the Year" in Dunn, led the United Fund drive and the Finer Carolina promotion, directed a vigorous if unsuccessful attempt to secure funds for the town library by a vote of the people.

Although two other board members asked him to serve with them approximately thirty days ago, his selection did not become public knowledge until today. Bryan succeeds Mrs. W. E. Nichols who declined further duty for reasons of health when her term expired in July.

Perry Brothers Get Tossed By Woodmen

Bill Twyford, Bobby Day Godwin and Humphrey Tart paid their respects to Perry Bros. last night as playoffs opened in the Dunn Softball League.

They cracked out extra base hits that gave Woodmen of the World an upset 10-5 victory over the regular season champs who have dominated play here over the past two years.

Twyford hit a double and two singles. Godwin had a home run and a single. Tart kept his nice and long hitting a triple as well as a home run.

The winning pitcher was Bill Stanley, the loser Harry Thompson. Top hitter for Perry Bros. was Teddy Eason with two singles in four times at bat.

In the other game of last night's double header, Godwin Building Supply beat the Presbyterian church squad 13-9.
