Rape Effort Foiled Today

BURLINGTON (UPI) — A Negro attempted to rape a white mother near here today when she returned from taking her children to school.

Sheriff Joe Cole said the unidentified man forced Mrs. E. N. Starnes into her house and choked her but fled when she said she expected a son home in a minute.

Mrs. Starnes, who fought the man for 25 minutes, was taken to a local hospital for treatment. Her condition was undetermined.

Cole quoted the woman as saying the man asked to buy a pack of cigarettes. He left and returned a short time later to ask for a match. Cole said the man then grabbed Mrs. Starnes and forced her into the house where he tried to rape her.

Deputies and bloodhounds were trailing the suspect in woods near the scene of the attack.

Planning Board Allows Changes

The town Planning Board has tentatively approved some changes in plans for developing portions of Lakeside Village.

Ralph Hanna proposed to the board that Dunn Enterprises be allowed the option of acting either on the pre-existing plan of making these changes:

Closing Queens Avenue from the eastern margin of Cooper Street to its east end at the east border of the subdivision; and similarly closing Davis Avenue, North Wade Avenue and Stanfield Street at indicated points.

The planning board approved the request on Hanna's suggestion that this would permit subdivision of the area involved into half-acre tracts.

Hanna stated Dunn Enterprises was also considering installing individual pumps for water supply and septic tanks for sewage disposal but it was pointed out that

Gates Named Deputy Sect.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Eisenhower today announced his selection of Navy Secretary Thomas S. Gates Jr. to succeed the late Donald A. Quarles as deputy defense secretary.

Eisenhower will submit Gates' nomination to the Senate Tuesday.

Gates resigned earlier this year as secretary of Navy, effective on May 30, to return to the investment banking business. But apparently after the death of Quarles the President and Defense Secretary Neil H. McElroy persuaded him to remain in government.

The announcement came soon after McElroy announced he had called in Adm. Arthur W. Radford, retired, as consultant during the absence of Gen. Nathan F. Twining, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. Twining is recuperating from a lung cancer operation.

Chief Cobb

that he expects Chief Alton Cobb to remain at his helm.

At the same time, he disclosed that "one or two" members of the police department had allegedly "talked sides" in the recent city election against the express orders of the chief.

Blalock did not name the officers involved, but stated that one was being "checked."

Blalock said that in any future election, while he is mayor, all city employees will be strictly enjoined to take no sides for him or any other candidate.

"The only place they're supposed to take sides is inside the voting booth," he said.

Blalock said he has conferred with Chief Cobb since taking office, has made some suggestions about the department, and was told by Chief Cobb that he will have his "fullest cooperation."

The new mayor pointed out that city manager A. B. Uzzle, Jr., has the power to appoint or dismiss the police chief and said, "Chief Cobb's a good man. If anybody wanted to fire him, they would have to fire Mr. Uzzle, too."

On Thursday night the city council will have the option of appointing three of the town's top officials—the city manager, the city clerk and the city attorney—and Blalock indicated that he expects nothing unusual.

He has voiced support a number of times for the city manager and said today of City Clerk Charles Storey, "It would be foolish not to support a man with 15 years experience who knows his job like he does."

Blalock said of the city manager, "We're going to work together. We'll have disagreements, I know, and I'm going to respect his opinion and he'll respect mine."

In fact, said the new mayor, he expects no changeover whatsoever in "key personnel" of the city.

Blalock said he was convinced, "You aren't going to get college graduates for your police department when a patrolman draws $265 a month."

Over 130 Treated After Trains Crash

CHICAGO (UPI) — An elevated train smashed into the rear of another during the morning rush hour today, and more than 130 persons were treated or examined at hospitals for shock and injuries.

The trains were on the Logan Square branch which taps Chicago's northwest side. Both were jammed with passengers, and the impact threw standees to the floor in struggling heaps.

The Chicago Transit Authority said it believed between 600 and 800 persons were in the two trains, of six cars each. A spokesman said an earlier delay had backed up traffic on the line and had halted the first of the two trains involved in the collision.

Some of those aboard said they knew the collision was coming, but were unable to get a warning to the train crews in time.

Pearl Upton was on the first train, which was standing at the time of the crash.

"The woman next to me looked back," Miss Upton said, "and said, 'Isn't he going to slow down?'"

"The next thing I knew, we had been thrown to the floor. A couple of people near me seemed to be crushed, but I don't know how badly they were hurt. I was only a couple of people distant from the end of the train."

She said she finally was able to get up and out of the car. She walked down a catwalk to the Western Avenue station, as did hundreds of others.

St. Elizabeth's Hospital received the majority of the injured. At noon, it said it had received 87 patients, but only a dozen were retained for further treatment. Many were merely shaken up.

Some passengers told of shouting at the motorman of the second train to try to warn him that a collision seemed sure. The motorman, Dominic Parise, was trapped in his cab for about a half hour, and was freed by firemen using crowbars and jacks.

New Zoning

council to begin consideration of a classified zoning ordinance which would break down the present broad classification of "business" and "residential."

He expects to recommend that the business classification be broken into subdivisions describing particular types of firms permissible in a given area.

This question was first raised at the closing meeting of the old town board. Mrs. M. M. Driver had requested property near the hospital rezoned but was turned down, after protests, because several local physicians expressed fear that a filling station would go in there.

The protesters indicated they might not be equally resentful of a different, quieter enterprise.

The new mayor also said today that within a year he expects to come up with a concrete plan for a new city hall to be financed without a special bond issue.

"I think what we might need," he said, "is to have a committee

Snead Fires Best Round In 25 Years

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va. (UPI) — Sam Snead swept to the most spectacular victory of his career Sunday, firing a seven-under-par 63 final round to win the Sam Snead Festival golf tournament with a record-tying total of 259.

Climaxing the greatest tournament performance in his 25 years as a professional, Snead shot the 72 holes in 21 under par and fashioned a victory margin of 11 strokes over Mike Souchak of Grossinger, N. Y., whose final round 65 gave him a 270.

E. J. Dutch Harrison of St. Louis, who started out the day in second place, eight strokes behind Snead, finished third with 273. Al Bessinger of Merchantville, N. J., shot a final 64 for 275 and fourth place.

of top citizens so we could sell this to the public. And if you make it clear there isn't going to be a bond issue — because then you wouldn't be able to sell it, I'm satisfied of that."

Also on the agenda for discussion Thursday:

(1) Whether court costs ought to be raised with the added funds to be used for police equipment like cars.

(2) A request to rezone from residential to business a block of Lakeside Village and a portion of C. J. Hanna and Son's land.

(3) A suggestion by former mayor Ralph Hanna that the town furnish pipe and close ditches on his property "if town policy is changed" (past policy has been to furnish labor only).

(4) A protest against "dogs running loose" near homes in the vicinity of the Open Air Market. City Manager Uzzle said vaccinated dogs, under current ordinance, are not restricted.

(5) Mayor Blalock's suggestion that the general election and primary for the town of Dunn be combined into a single election to save expenses. He has already stated that he will try to have a bill introduced in the legislature which will accomplish this.

(6) Request from the hospital board that the stop-light governing traffic at the intersection of North Ellis and Harbott to be off from 10 p. m. to 8 a. m. to save hospital patients from noisy gear shifting and braking by big trailer trucks passing along 301 North, which coincides with North Ellis on the strip going past the hospital.

gan, "Pepsi Has the Light Look... Pepsi Has the Swirl."

The local Pepsi-Cola executive emphasized that while the new bottle is "all dressed up outside," it contains the same formula light refreshment that Americans and people the world over have been enjoying at an ever-increasing rate for years.

Commenting on the bottle's unusual Swirl-Shape design, Mr. Minges declared:

"The recent trend toward stay-at-home entertainment has resulted in new consumer habits that call for dramatic revision of packaging techniques aimed at meeting the changing requirements of this

"Things are not nearly as bad as we feared," the former President said after his 74-year-old wife had been in surgery for two hours.

Truman managed a smile as he spoke, but his face was drawn and he appeared tired. He asked photographers not to make pictures and said it would be several hours before he would make another statement.

The surgery was performed by Drs. Wallace Graham, the former White House physician and Truman family doctor, and Philip Reister, Graham's office partner.

area's highly competitive soft drink marketing structure."

The local Pepsi-Cola executive pointed out that the new Swirl-Shape bottle was designed to harmonize with the finest of table settings. Its slim, modern, sleek lines make it an attractive part of any arrangement on a buffet, sideboard, party table or refreshment tray.

"The development of the new Light Look and Swirl-Shape bottle is the result of several years of research and testing by Pepsi-Cola Company designers. Its design and distribution is another manifestation of Pepsi-Cola Company's setting the pace in modern taste and convenience," the executive concluded.
