To Do Canning Now Is The Time

By MRS. RUBY PARKER
NOW IS THE TIME TO --

1. Now is a good time to consider using pork.
2. Stretch your meat dollar by making a little meat go a long way. Cook meat with vegetables, rice, macaroni or spaghetti, or serve it with a well seasoned dressing to extend flavor. Use the less expensive cuts from the forequarter instead of the luxury cuts from the hindquarter.
3. Can or freeze a supply of baking hens for use later in the home since the hen market is very low. Poultry meat is one of our better sources of high quality protein.
4. Conserve apples by canning, making apple sauce and jelly stock. Be sure to store some fresh apples for multiple uses later.
5. Store beets, carrots, turnips and rutabagas in the field now by covering with two inches of soil before freezing weather. Harvest pumpkins and store in warm place before frost.
6. Control plant lice and cabbage worms on collards, cabbage and greens.
7. Seed lettuce, turnips, mustard, kale and radish in your old protected plant bed for fresh greens this winter.
8. Build up next years garden spot by planting a winter cover crop now.
9. Treat dry beans and peas with heat or carbon tetrochloride to prevent weevil damage.
10. October is cheese festival month. Look for "specials" in a variety of cheeses at the dairy counter. Cheese is plentiful - nutritious and economical.
11. Eggs should be used in the convenience, digestibility and economy.
12. Eggs are excellent for children and teen-agers, providing stamina and helping to take care of body's food needs during periods of rapid growth.

Harnett's

"Families try to hide them, for one thing."

Miss Hall said that, in addition to the advantages for the child of exceptionally low mental ability, having adequate schools is important to the normal children in a family.

"Those who have to have constant attention can deprive the normal child of his own fair share of the parent's attention," said Miss Hall.

The Harnett Welfare superintendent said the county has, at present, a single class at Coats which has been developed for the mentally retarded.

When a new training school for feeble-minded youngsters was established at Goldsboro, she said, the institution at first begged for applications but the situation has now drastically changed. They, too, have developed a waiting list.

Miss Hall said there was no question that the children currently on the waiting lists from Harnett need the institutional care they cannot get without going to the special facilities.

"I know the ones on the waiting list should be there," she said.

have I.Q.'s below 70 (100 is average) and are ranked into the categories (1) educable (2) trainable and (3) requiring custodial care.

Children who will never be able to do actual school-work may often be taught to do simple things—tying shoes, brushing teeth, working at certain kinds of jobs—which will remain beyond the mastery of the still more retarded youngster.

"One thing that concerns us at Welfare," she said, "is that we have no control over when the children will be accepted."

"Many parents seem to think we do have a control and they blame us for not getting their child in."

According to J.W. Umstead, no solution remains for the state except to increase the facilities since the retarded children are in no position to fend for themselves—nor, in most cases, are their parents able to secure adequate care for them.

The provisions of the October 27, bill which will help the retarded, he said, are a crisis measure.

not married and the welfare was assisting her in support of two illegitimate children.

Solicitor J. T. Lamm drew from the witness the name of the father of the children. She said the September check was not received, and she later learned it had been mislaid to Coats, Route 1.

Later the defendant carried an iron to Delser and this, the State contends, was bought with the check. A clerk from a Coats store took the stand to say he sold the McNeill woman the iron and cashed the check.

Probable cause was found and the defendant was bound over to superior court under a $500 bond. Later she pleaded guilty to a lesser offense of obtaining money under false pretense. She is to reimburse the check, pay the court costs and $50 fine in lieu of an 18 month sentence.

Meantime, the solicitor ordered warrants issued for the alleged father of Delser's children.

Fight At School
Willie Mason Jr., 19, of Olivia was charged with assaulting John Leonard Holder, a minor on October 9. Mason pleaded guilty to hitting the Holder boy with his fist.

Young Holder testified Mason slapped him in the hall of Benhaven school, and tried to choke him. To appease him afterwards, Willie had given him a stick of chewing gum, the boy said not to tell anyone. His parents had taken the child to a doctor when he was too nervous to go to school.

The boy said he had not told his parents what actually happened because he was afraid Mason would kill him if he told on him. Ricky Smith and Tim Smith corroborated the Holder boy's account of the assault.

Mason who did not take the stand had served time in a youth camp for breaking and entering and was paroled last January. The judge continued judgment for one week, pending further investigation. All boys are eighth grade pupils at Benhaven school.

A preliminary hearing was waived in the murder charge against Leroy Clegg for killing Milton Elliott. Clegg is accused of administering a fatal head blow to Elliott, who himself had been cleared of a murder charge in Wake the previous day. The case is expected to be heard at the November term of superior court.

Other Cases
Tyree Carroll, guilty of assault on his wife, Lubern Carroll, received 9 months sentence, suspended two years on condition he remain sober, not molest or assault his wife, and pay costs of court.

Red Avery and Leon Baker paid costs for public drunkenness. Case against Ishmael McNeill, Lillington, Route 2 charged with public drunkenness and assault on Dunk McLean was continued until next Thursday. The prosecuting witness is in the hospital.

ed for an outlay of 50 million. "That meant some towns had to give way," said Blalock.

Geckos, which can emit a faint squeak when excited, are the only lizards known to have voices.

When Dunn files application for the four-year delay, he said, there would be an accompanying letter to explain why the town believes this is a reasonable request.

One factor, he declared, was the fact that no drinking water is taken from the streams where Dunn now dumps primary-treated sewage. Neither humans nor fish can be shown to have been affected. And it is some 85 miles before the tributary streams go into the Black River.

Blalock asserted that some communities are dumping directly into the Cape Fear and said this is far from being the practice of Dunn. The town has agreed, he said, to extend some piping on a nearly-immediate basis so sewage now going into a sluggish area will be put in mid-stream and travel.

"We're in good shape," Blalock said. "I think we will get the time we need to raise this money without resort to bond issue."

and burial, and Mrs. Nora Edgington Flynn Haymes, his second wife.

Miss Wymore, who was estranged from Flynn, arranged for the service with burial following in Forest Lawn.

Miss Aaland sought to have Flynn buried in Jamaica, saying he hated Hollywood, but the teenager had to give in to the wishes of Miss Wymore.

Flynn's parents, Professor and Mrs. Theodore Flynn, flew here from London for the services.

Lilli Damita Absent
The actor's first wife, Lilli Damita, remained at her Florida home.

Jack Warner, head of Warner Bros. Studio, was selected to read the eulogy at services conducted by the Rev. Kermit Castellanos of All Saints Church of Beverly Hills.

Flynn's body arrived Sunday from Vancouver, B.C., where he died last Wednesday, in a plain black casket. The body was taken to Forest Lawn Mortuary where it was transferred to a bronze casket.

Miss Wymore ordered the casket to remain closed at the mortuary.

Need Two
Between that goal, and the present status of Campbell, some hard fund-raising will have to be done.

A quarter of the two-million dollar goal is to be raised here in Harnett and tonight there will be an on-campus rally for workers in the special gifts campaign.

This section seeks to raise gifts of $1000 to $30,000 from individuals and corporate enterprises within the county. This phase of the campaign will be in progress for the next month at least and will give way to the general solicitation, which is to conclude with the end of December.
