

+WEATHER+

Considerable cloudiness and little change in temperature today. Partly cloudy and somewhat colder tonight and Tuesday.

The Daily Record

VOLUME 10

TELEPHONE 3117 — 3118

DUNN, N. C. MONDAY AFTERNOON, DECEMBER 21, 1959

FIVE CENTS PER COPY

NO. 13

IKE IS GIVEN OVATION IN SPAIN

War Bride, Daughters Awaited Death

Korean Mom Ready To Starve

FORT WORTH, Tex. (UPI) — The world looked a little brighter today for Mrs. Marie Mackey, 25, a Korean war bride, and her two daughters, Beverly, 2½, and Judy, 1½.

Yesterday it looked hopeless. Mrs. Mackey and the two girls were sitting at home quietly awaiting death from starvation. They hadn't eaten for two days. "In Korea, people without food or money usually just wait to starve to death," said police patrolman R. I. Haddix, who found the family after a neighbor reported hearing the children cry all night.

"It looked like she Mrs. Mackey had resigned herself to the fact they were going to die. They were just awaiting death."

Haddix said there wasn't a crumb of food in the house when he found them. Beverly was wearing only a pair of panties and Judy was wearing a diaper.

Although Mrs. Mackey spoke little English, Haddix learned she hadn't seen her husband in four days.

In just a few hours Mrs. Mackey and the children had more food and Christmas gifts than they ever dreamed of.

While they were at a hospital, Mrs. Mackey's husband Jack, 26, was arrested at a washateria.

He denied he had neglected his wife and daughters.

"I took them some carrots, night before last," he told police.

Haddix had $3.82 in his pockets. He went to a nearby grocery store and spent it all on bread and milk. The store owner matched that amount and a customer chipped in. When he returned to the house, Haddix had $10 worth of food.

JEEPERS, WHAT A RABBIT — And it belongs to Arthur Allen, who can't account for the strange, acrobatic posturings of his pet but thinks they're wonderful. Arthur took rabbit to Scout net show Saturday, won a first-prize for "Best Trained Pet." Record Photo by Ted Crail.

Ermon Godwin Photo of Cage Star Joni (Circa 1975)

Man Is Guilty In Corn Theft

First case to come before the Harnett recorder's court Thursday was that of Harry McClutchen charged in two counts of larceny of corn from Mrs. Paul Turlington.

The defendant pleaded not guilty on both counts but was found guilty, and received nine months in the first and the same in the second. He was committed to the road on the first, while the second nine months was suspended.

The corn has been gathered and stored by the tenant on the Turlington farm who had missed the sacks on Saturday. They were found in McClutchen's crib. Rural policeman L. L. Upchurch, investigated the robbery and told how he found the corn, five bushels, at the FCX store in Dunn where the defendant had carried it to sell. The other sacks were found in the crib. Upchurch said that his investigation had shown

(Continued On Page Eight)

Turlington Renamed To National Post

Members of United Duroc Swine Registry held the personnel of the organization's board of directors intact for the coming year when they gathered for the annual meeting in Peoria on December 5.

Included in this capable group is the vice-president, Mr. H. A. Turlington, Sr., Dunn, N. C., who was re-elected to the board and subsequently named to succeed himself in the vice-president's chair.

Few men in the official family have earned comparable respect and warm regard enjoyed by Mr. Turlington throughout the Duroc fraternity.

A member of the Registry for "I don't trust him."

Says Dunn City Manager

'Joint Planning With County Needed'

City Manager A. B. Uzzle, Jr., said here today that a joint planning agency for Harnett County and the city of Dunn may be vital to future development of this area.

Mayor George Franklin Blalock last week pressed a move to seek active consultation with the county on zoning provisions to keep "obnoxious businesses" off the residential outskirts of Dunn.

Uzzle said there are several problems on which a joint approach might be of value.

He suggested that the responsibility toward rural fires of the county and the city might be disussed within such a framework. Dunn commissioners accepted Blalock's proposal to approach the county board on zoning and are planning to meet with the county panel.

(Continued on Page Five)

Inquest Tonight In School Bus Case

In Clinton tonight there will be an inquest into the death of Ray Frank King, 6-year-old Negro schoolboy, who died in Dunn after an accident at a school crossing.

Highway Patrolman D. D. Williams said the youngster was trying to board a school bus when he was struck by a car allegedly driven by B. H. Bass. Bass, 62-year-old resident of Roseboro, Route 2, told the investigating patrolman that he didn't realize the bus was stopped until he was too close to the boy to avoid hitting him.

Two Dunn attorneys will be on opposite sides and represent the

(Continued on Page Five)

Lady Cries Rape, Attorney Says Hooley

The way in which a 24-year-old Negro cut his tongue—and had to have it stitched together again—became one of the key issues in an attempted rape hearing held today in Dunn Recorder's Court.

A powerfully-built Negro woman, seven years older than her alleged attacker, claimed she had tried to bite it off just before she was knocked cold.

Ernest McDowell was charged with attempted rape rather than the completed crime because Ann Matthews claims she was battered unconscious during a struggle in the back seat of a moving car and doesn't know what happened after that.

The defense did not offer its own explanation of how McDowell cut her tongue, but otherwise countered her story at every point.

Judge H. Paul Strickland, said, "Somebody is lying," concluded he didn't know who it was—and had

McDowell bound over for trial in Harnett Superior Court under $1000 bond.

Ann Matthews, as tall as most men and considerably heavier (she refused to tell her weight on the stand and Judge Strickland gallantly let her withhold it), admitted that she was more than able to protect herself from men.

"When I see something to protect myself with," she said. She said McDowell's attack on her came after she upbraided him for allegedly raping another woman and "laughing" because he had not been attended to by police.

Defense attorney Duncan C. Wilson rip-roared his way into a stand-up argument over whether he had the right to shout at the comparatively colored prosecution witness.

"You can't shout at my witness," (Continued On Page Eight)

Tells Crowds He Came To Ask For Peace

By MERRIMAN SMITH
UPI White House Reporter

MADRID, Spain (UPI) — President Eisenhower arrived in Spain today on the last leg of his peace journey around the world and made another plea for "peace and friendship in freedom."

The President told welcoming crowds, including Generalissimo Francisco Franco, that he came here "with a message from the American people to the Spanish people" about "a brighter future in cooperation for the noblest of all human causes: peace and friendship in freedom."

Eisenhower's plane landed at nearby Torrejon Air Base at 4:22 p. m. 10:22 a. m. EST after a flight from Paris where he attended a Western Big Four heads of government conference and discussed serious Franco-American differences with French President Charles de Gaulle.

The Western leaders invited Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev to an East-West summit meeting in Paris next April 27 in the continuing drive for world peace.

The President will wind up his journey to three continents with a visit to Morocco tomorrow and a return to Washington tomorrow night for the Christmas holidays.

First in Spain
Madrid seemed determined to outdo - or at least match - the best of the welcome Eisenhower has received so far on his dramatic tour that has taken him to parts of Europe, Asia and Africa and which will wind up with a televised report to the American nation Wednesday night.

When the President's plane set down, the skies were darkening

(Continued on Page Five)

Dancer Jailed, 'Forgot' Child

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI) — Mrs. Maria Leen, 24, who sent her 5-year-old daughter alone and penniless on a 42-hour bus ride from Miami to New York, told police here today she "forgot" to warn anyone the child was coming.

Mrs. Leen, a nightclub dancer, sat in jail here facing a vagrancy charge as she told how she put the tot on a bus and told her she was going to live with her stepfather, Jung Leen.

(Continued on Page Five)

Dunn Attorneys Are Opposing Counsel

Inquest Tonight In School Bus Case

In Clinton tonight there will be an inquest into the death of Ray Frank King, 6-year-old Negro schoolboy, who died in Dunn after an accident at a school crossing.

Highway Patrolman D. D. Williams said the youngster was trying to board a school bus when he was struck by a car allegedly driven by B. H. Bass. Bass, 62-year-old resident of Roseboro, Route 2, told the investigating patrolman that he didn't realize the bus was stopped until he was too close to the boy to avoid hitting him.

Two Dunn attorneys will be on opposite sides and represent the

(Continued on Page Five)

Lady Cries Rape, Attorney Says Hooley

The way in which a 24-year-old Negro cut his tongue—and had to have it stitched together again—became one of the key issues in an attempted rape hearing held today in Dunn Recorder's Court.

A powerfully-built Negro woman, seven years older than her alleged attacker, claimed she had tried to bite it off just before she was knocked cold.

Ernest McDowell was charged with attempted rape rather than the completed crime because Ann Matthews claims she was battered unconscious during a struggle in the back seat of a moving car and doesn't know what happened after that.

The defense did not offer its own explanation of how McDowell cut her tongue, but otherwise countered her story at every point.

Judge H. Paul Strickland, said, "Somebody is lying," concluded he didn't know who it was—and had

McDowell bound over for trial in Harnett Superior Court under $1000 bond.

Ann Matthews, as tall as most men and considerably heavier (she refused to tell her weight on the stand and Judge Strickland gallantly let her withhold it), admitted that she was more than able to protect herself from men.

"When I see something to protect myself with," she said. She said McDowell's attack on her came after she upbraided him for allegedly raping another woman and "laughing" because he had not been attended to by police.

Defense attorney Duncan C. Wilson rip-roared his way into a stand-up argument over whether he had the right to shout at the comparatively colored prosecution witness.

"You can't shout at my witness," (Continued On Page Eight)

THE SPIRIT WAS THERE — These elaborately costumed Dunn folks were part of large-scale nativity at Baptist Church which started on church steps, continued into the church yard and included livestock on the hoof. Robed as wise men (top photo) were Wiley Oakley (left) and Roger Thomas. In lower photo, Joseph (Emmett Aldredge) reaches for his staff. Mrs. Aldredge (right) was appropriately cast as carpenter's wife. (Record Photos by Ted Crail.)

Convict Takes Four With Him For Christmas

ROCKY MOUNT (UPI) — A convict commandeered a prison truck taking a road gang to work today and raced off with four other prisoners who didn't have time to climb out of the truck cage.

Prison officials were uncertain of whether the four had joined in the escape plan or were unwilling companions of Lacy Webster, the driver of the truck.

The road gang of eight prisoners was being unloaded from the rear of the caged truck at the time of the escape. Three prisoners had filed out and were picking up tools when the fourth one, Lacy Webster, stepped to the ground.

He darted around to the truck cab, found the keys in the ignition switch and sped away. Four prisoners, who were to have followed Webster out of the truck, were thrown to the floor when he lurched off along U. S. 64 about six miles west of Rocky Mount.

The convicts abandoned the truck after traveling about three miles. They took off on foot through a wooded area, prison officials said.

Officers brought in bloodhounds to aid in the search. By noon, none of the prisoners had been recaptured.

Wanted Bandit Dies In Wreck

TULSA, Okla. (UPI) — Thomas Oliver Moore, a 35-year-old bandit-murderer who was to have been named by the FBI tomorrow as one of its "ten most wanted men" was killed in a weekend traffic accident, authorities said today.

The FBI identified Moore as a "sullen, unbalanced criminal." He was killed Saturday night with Erceel B. Miller, 30, LaFayette, La., in a high speed accident.

Miller's father, Roy, reached in Dallas, Tex., theorized that his son had been kidnapped by Moore and wrecked the car deliberately "to call his bluff."

Tulsa authorities described Miller as "a clean young man." They said he had a passport and was planning to leave soon for Central America to work as a helicopter pilot.

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Convict-author Caryl Chessman today was sentenced to die in the San Quentin gas chamber on Feb. 19, marking the eighth time his execution has been set since his conviction nearly 12 years ago.

Former Teacher Tells of Assault

Terrorized Wife Through With Mate

"This Christmas is no different than any other Christmas," Alice Chandler told a Dunn judge this morning.

"On January 15, I'll have been married six years and I can't take any more. There's been beatings and kickings, knocks and bruises."

Mrs. Chandler, a Negro woman and a former teacher with an M. A. degree, accused her husband of terrorizing her in a darkened house and boasting he could kill her and get away with it.

"He said he could kill me and pretend he's crazy and they won't be able to do anything about it."

Judge H. Paul Strickland ordered her husband, Edward Chandler, to leave her alone or face a year in jail. He suspended the jail term on condition he pay a fine of $10 and court costs and comply with restrictive orders placed on him by the court.

Chandler, taking the stand in his own defense, admitted the assault — he was accused of putting a knife to her throat and choking her—and said, "I was damn sorry about it."

Said Dunn solicitor Charles Lee Guy, Jr., "You ought to be horse-whipped."

The husband related that after he was charged by police he had returned home and found his wife had taken their 5-year-old child and left to live elsewhere.

Asked by the judge whether there was a chance for reconciliation, Mrs. Chandler said no. "I'm afraid of him," she said. "I don't trust him."