LAKE TO FIGHT IT OUT WITH SANFORD

LAKE STRONGHOLD — Harnett County, home of two of his strongest supporters, turned out to be a stronghold for Dr. I. Beverly Lake. Photographed as votes were rolling on Saturday night, he pointed to spot on map where he expected crucial tallies.

His Forces Seem Sure Of Victory

RALEIGH — Dr. I. Beverly Lake, the segregationist champion, announced at a press conference this afternoon that he'll battle it out with Terry Sanford for the governorship in a second primary on June 25th.

The announcement was not unexpected and Lake supporters quickly predicted that he would defeat the front-running Sanford by "a tremendous majority" despite the fact that Sanford led Lake by more than 80,000 votes in the first primary.

State Campaign manager Robert Morgan of Lillington said Dr. Lake had been overwhelmed with phone calls and telegrams and well-wishers asking him to call for the runoff.

Senator Morgan said he was happy beyond words with the vote Dr. Lake received on Saturday. He entered the race late and without money against Sanford, who had been running for years, and two other professional politicians.

"If Sanford couldn't win the nomination in ten years of campaigning, how does he expect to win during the next 30 days?" asked a Lake supporter.

It was evident today the segregation will be the top issue of the race. Lake supporters have branded Sanford as the candidate of the NAACP and today were compiling the vote in the big Negro precincts, which they say proves it.

In Raleigh precinct No. 10, Sanford got over 1,000 votes while Lake received five. In one of the Negro precincts in Greensboro, Sanford received over 800 votes while Dr. Lake got only six.

Sanford Says He Won't Take Abuse

RALEIGH (UPI) — Terry Sanford, front-runner in Saturday's gubernatorial primary, said today he was going to wage a "positive campaign" for the second primary but was not going to be "abused" on the race issue.

"I have no position which can't be defended," he told newsmen in discussing the possibility of a run-off with segregationist I. Beverly Lake.

At the same time he urged newsmen to share the responsibility for avoiding a campaign highlighted by the race issue — the main theme of Dr. Lake's campaign in the first primary.

"We could do what we have to do a lot better without stirring up" the race issue, Sanford added. A moderate, he said he favored North Carolina's school laws that have allowed token integration.

Discussing the returns which gave him more than 40 per cent of the record vote, Sanford said he was surprised at the way a few of the counties went but had anticipated carrying about 70. He did not expect to lose some of the southeastern counties to Lake, he said.

He attributed his victory in Northampton County, in an area of Lake strength, to an intensive crossroads campaign. "That's the key to the second primary," he said. "We went to the crossroads and explained some of the major issues to the people."

Henry Vann Loses In Sampson Race

Sampson County's Tom Newman barely defeated Henry Vann in the race for State Senator in Saturday's Democratic primary and at the same time, the voters turned out in moderate numbers to give Fayetteville lawyer Terry Sanford a decisive nod in the North Carolina Governor's race.

The hotly-contested race between Newman, the incumbent, and Vann, a former State Senator who had served three terms before stepping down four years ago, was decided by 152 votes. With 21 out of 21 precincts reporting, Newman had 2,678 votes (Continued On Page Two)

Harnett County Democrats marked up two major upsets in Saturday's primary by going for Dr. I. Beverly Lake, the segregationist champion, and United States Senator B. Everette Jordan.

Prior to the voting, Harnett had been practically conceded to gubernatorial candidate Terry Sanford and to senatorial candidate Addison Hewlett.

Dr. Lake not only carried the county but received a clear majority over all three of his opponents, Sanford, Malcolm Seawell and John Larkins.

The unofficial vote:
Dr. Lake 3795
Terry Sanford 2876

Arson Is Suspected At Erwin

The Erwin fire department agreed with owner Pauline Tart that it looked like a case of arson.

Early Sunday morning a house in which she was storing furniture — the old Jim Lucas mansion — burned to the ground. The Erwin fire department couldn't save it.

But tracks leading from the house, and the coincidental fire of a few days earlier at one of Pauline's stores, roused considerable suspicion.

When Erwin fire chief R. N. New talked with Pauline, he reported, she was "trembling all over and very upset."

The fire at the old house on the Dunn-Erwin road near Antioch Church was spotted about 3 a. m. by two men who were fixing a flat tire. They told firemen they saw flames jumping from an upstairs window. By the time the department arrived, the roof was caving in from a swirl of flame.

Sheriff's Deputy Clarence Moore was called in. He tried to get bloodhounds to put on the trail leading from the burned mansion but none could be obtained for the chase.
