UNIONS REJECT JFK PROPOSAL

Graham, Jackson Are Sentenced For Rackets

GREENSBORO (UPI) — Two Fayetteville men accused of cheating the government of more than $100,000 in taxes while running a million-dollar wagering service had original fines reduced today and each was sentenced to 18 months in a federal prison.

U. S. District Judge Edwin M. Stanley also dismissed a felony charge that Daniel E. Graham and Neil Monroe Jackson had conspired to cheat the government of $100,532 in taxes.

Attorneys for the two asked Stanley to reduce original fines totaling $45,000 because it was "financially impossible" and "an absolute impossibility" for Graham and Jackson to meet them.

Stanley had ordered Graham to pay a $25,000 fine, an additional $450 in taxes and post $125,000 in escrow during a hearing here May 18. Jackson had been fined $20,000, ordered to pay the $450 tax bill and also told to post $125,000. Additionally, Graham was given a five-year suspended sentence and Jackson was placed on a four-year probationary term.

Preparing For Crippling Midnight Strike

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy called railroad labor and management heads back to the White House for a 3 p.m. test meeting today as he continued efforts to head off a nationwide rail strike.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Five rail unions today rejected President Kennedy's proposal to arbitrate their dispute with the industry and started preparations for a midnight strike that would hit the economy a crippling blow.

A spokesman for the unions said workers have been told to carry out strike instructions on any railroad that posts notices of new work rules, the issue in the four-year-old dispute.

But the unions said it looked as if Kennedy was working on "something else" in an effort to head off a national walkout.

Kennedy, has legal powers to halt the strike exhausted, held a round of urgent discussions with aides at the White House and told the union and management representatives to stand by.

The President said he would notify them whether he would call them back for another meeting.

MAY GO TO CONGRESS — One final avenue for Kennedy would be to turn the matter over to Congress to work out a settlement.

Sen. Peter Dominick, R-Colo., said he thought Congress should "pass, immediately, legislation to provide an 80-day cooling off period wherein negotiations . . . can be conducted."

The union spokesman said notices of the new work rules already had been posted on the Long Island, Norfolk & Western and the Chesapeake & Ohio's southern division.

He said workers would not be ordered to strike on roads which did not post the notices. But management spokesmen saw no chance of limiting any walkout to selected carriers.

The crisis headed toward a cliff.

Former Health Officer Wins Suit Against County Dr. Hunter Gets $3185

Dr. W. E. Hunter, former county health officer, Wednesday was awarded a verdict of $3,185 against the County of Harnett for accumulated sick leave and vacation pay he claimed he was entitled to receive.

Judge Robert B. Morgan rendered the verdict in Harnett Recorder's Court after hearing evidence based strictly on the written records in the case. County Attorney Nell McK. Ross filed notice of appeal to Superior Court.

Dr. Hunter, who served for 37 years as Harnett's chief health officer, was granted sick leave by the county health board on August 1, 1961.

State Senator Robert Morgan and Attorney Archie Taylor, his attorneys, told the court that while Dr. Hunter was recuperating in the mountains the health board, on motion of Dr. Clarence Roberts of Dunn, tried to rescind the action and then retired Dr. Hunter, allowing him pay through the month of October.

Dr. Hunter was receiving a salary of $725 a month and had 152 1/2 days of accumulated sick leave and 30 days of vacation pay coming to him, Senator Morgan told the court.

CONTRACT INTRODUCED — Morgan and Taylor produced records to show that both county commissioners and members of the health board had signed a contract with the State Board of Health agreeing to pay sick leave and vacation pay to health department employees, and argued that the contract was binding.

"If the board had fired Dr. Hunter before granting him sick leave," argued his attorneys, "then (Continued on Page Six)

Vice Scandal Trial Delayed

LONDON (UPI) — The vice trial of Dr. Stephen Ward, a key figure in the Profumo scandal, The President said he would allow the defense more time to prepare its case.

Old Bailey Judge Archie Marshall granted a postponement of the trial's opening from July 15 to July 22 after the defense counsel complained that the prosecution seemed to be in a hurry to dispose of the case.

Ward, 50, a society osteopath and part-time artist, is charged with seven vice counts, including procuring, counseling abortions and living off the immoral earnings of prostitutes. He has pleaded innocent to all charges, and has been free on bail for a week awaiting trial.

Morganton Ruling Indicates

Lillington Vote Can't Be Blocked

BURNSVILLE (UPI) — Attempts by four ministers to prevent the city of Morganton from holding a liquor referendum were blocked by a Superior Court judge who refused to grant them an injunction against the city.

Judge J. Frank Huskins denied the ministers' request because "the allegations and proof of the plaintiffs do not amount to a showing of irreparable injury or an invasion of property rights."

When the Lillington town board last week called an ABC election for August 26, Mayor John Aaron Senter hinted that ministers of the town might take legal action in an attempt to block the vote. The result of such action at Morganton indicates that such action might prove futile.

The ministers had sought the injunction which would have prohibited Morganton's mayor and city council from holding a city-wide election July 13 to determine whether an ABC store should be opened for the first time in the western North Carolina municipality.

Should voters approve the referendum it would be the first ABC store ever opened in Burke County as well.

The ministers had contended that state laws giving communities local option in the sale of liquor were unconstitutional.

Unless Owner Conforms, You Can Get Stuck!

Citizens Warned Against Buying Substandard Lots

Dunn's planning board today had a word of advice for citizens who might be interested in buying a lot in a subdivision outside the city limits but within a mile of town.

Their best advice is: Don't do it. And if you're talked into it, anyway, chances are you'll get stuck and be faced with a second financing problem.

The problem was discussed at a meeting of the board here Monday. The board meeting Monday at Home Savings & Loan Association Community Room held the first of its extra meetings scheduled for the next few months in order to speed up Dunn's Planning Program.

Present were Planning Board members C. W. Bannerman, E. B. Culbreth, and Earl Jones, who was attending his first meeting since his appointment July 3, 1963.

Also present were Arthur Denning, engineer with the Dunn Engineering Co., John Donnelly of the Community Planning Division of the State Department of Conservation & Development, and A. B. Uzzle, Jr., Secretary to the Board.

As the first item of business, it was pointed out that one land developer had stated he was planning a subdivision outside the Dunn city limits but within one mile of the Dunn city limits, which he did not plan to bring up to the standards of the Town of Dunn Subdivision Regulation Ordinance which also applies to this one mile distance outside the city limits if the developer uses town water & sewer facilities.

However, this developer does not plan to use town water & sewer facilities, but will have his own water & sewer system for the subdivision. While it is not mandatory that a subdivision located beyond the town limits shall comply with the requirements of the subdivision ordinance, unless such requirements are complied with, the town will not extend any public service and will not extend its water or sewer mains to any such subdivision or permit any connection thereto.

However the difficulty develops at a later date after the subdivisor has sold his houses and lots and the new owners want to come into the city limits and get town services such as street maintenance and water & sewer, garbage pick-up etc. These new owners will then have to spend hundreds of dollars, possibly thousands of dollars, to build the streets and water and sewer systems up to the requirements of the Town of Dunn before they can get these services. This is most unfair to all prospective home buyers if they do not know the situation before they buy. This is a cause of great concern to the Planning Board. Consequently they ask that publicity be given to this matter. Also, that the Harnett County Board of Commissioners be requested to adopt the provisions of the Dunn Subdivision Regulations for all of Harnett County as a protection for its citizens.

Also, the Community Planning Division of State Department of Conservation and Development was asked to contact the State Highway Commission to request that their standards for acceptance of streets for maintenance be relaxed to comply with the standards of the Dunn Ordinance.

A home owner in the one-mile radius of Dunn could easily get (Continued on Page Six)

Harnett Solons Busy

Harnett Senator Robert Morgan and State Representative Dr. H. D. Mabe had a busy time of it with local bills as well as with State measures, a review of the recent legislative session showed today.

There was a report that Mr. Baer has resigned, but Mayor Blacklock said Mr. Baer has not notified him of such intentions.

Miss Erwin In Swimsuit Division Tonight

Miss Dunn Has Lucky Charm

GREENSBORO (UPI) — As luck would have it, many of the 84 contestants will be relying heavily on rabbits feet, old coins and other charms to help them win the 1963 Miss North Carolina title.

The judging begins tonight and ends Saturday with the selection of the new Tar Heel beauty queen and her court.

Miss Dunn, Virginia Page of Bule's Creek, tonight will present her talent number, while Miss Erwin, Becky Stephens, will appear in the swimsuit division.

Contestants this year have been divided into "A," "B" and "C" categories and each group competes nightly in separate divisions — talent, swimsuit and evening gowns. Preliminary talent and swimsuit winners will be named nightly.

Janice Barron of Morganton, 1962 Miss North Carolina, will crown the new queen.

"I have a lucky Confederate ring given me by a 12-year-old boy in my swim class," said Miss Graham — Jeanne Swanner. "He asked me to wait for him while he grows up to 6 foot 5 inches."

Jeanne, the tallest of the national record number of contestants at 6 foot 3 inches is assistant manager of the swimming pool in her home town.

Olivia Ann Clayton — Miss Orange County — was given a "stack of lucky IBM cards by my boyfriend."

She said the cards are coded to spell out "You're going to win."

Sara Jean Barbee — Miss Cary — is carrying a rabbit's foot "given to me by a girlfriend." Cecelia Ann Budd, 19-year-old Miss Siler City, has a lucky silver dollar while Marie Scarborough — Miss Zebulon — and Ava Elaine Tvey — Miss Benson — are carrying old pennies. "Mine is an Indianhead penny (Continued on Page Six)
