

Crowd Jeers Miss Keeler

LONDON (UPI) — A jeering crowd of more than 1,000 persons surged toward Christine Keeler today when she left Old Bailey Court after testifying in Britain's sex scandal. Two eggs were thrown at her, but missed.

A squad of police protected the 21-year-old play girl from the mob and hustled her into a taxi.

Christine had just appeared for a second time on the witness stand at the vice trial of Dr. Stephen Ward, 50-year-old playboy whose introduction of the red-haired call girl to War Minister John Profumo led to the uproar that nearly toppled Prime Minister Harold Macmillan's government.

Obviously shaken, Christine admitted on the stand that Ward once took her to the police and asked them to make her quit smoking marijuana and to stop running around with colored men in West Indies.

Crowd Turns Hostile
As she left the court after testifying Christine looked around for the autograph seekers that have followed her since Profumo quit his post with an admission of an affair with her. But the heady wine of notoriety suddenly went flat when the mood of the crowd changed from good-natured curiosity to outright hostility.

Surprised police locked arms as the crowd pressed forward, jeering and booing. A couple of eggs came flying toward Christine, and one of them splattered on a newspaper photographer. The other struck a policeman on the arm.

Keeping a lane open to the street, police rushed the white and shaken Christine into a taxi and rolled up its windows. As the taxi sped away Christine's tense face could be seen peering through the rear window at the crowd.

Shortly after Christine testified the prosecution rested its case in the trial of Ward who is accused of living off the earnings of prostitutes. The defense then opened.

Not Christine's Day
It was not Christine's day. Some of her brazen self-confidence seemed to have gone before the mob incident.

When she came into court to testify anew at the request of the defense she was wearing a cream-colored coat but her hair needed attention and she nervously twisted a tissue in her hand as she gave evidence. She was aided by defense counsel James B. ...

"Is it not true that Dr. Ward took you to Scotland Yard and asked them to tell you not to smoke Indian hemp and not to go to clubs frequented by colored men?"

"Yes," said Miss Keeler. Ward, who is accused of living on the immoral earnings of Miss Keeler and others and of seducing young girls into sin, scribbled notes as she spoke.

In previous testimony Miss Keeler has admitted sex relations through not for money — with West Indians Aloysius (Lucky) Gordon and John Edgecombe.

Gordon is appealing a three-year sentence levied for beating her last April 18.

Sets Off Scandal
Edgecombe is serving seven years for trying to shoot his way into Dr. Ward's flat to see her last Dec. 14 — the incident that contributed to the uncovering of her bizarre sex life, the ruin of Profumo and debates in Parliament on security and slum racketeering.

Burge wanted to know today why Miss Keeler had testified earlier that Dr. Ward never took her to Scotland Yard.

"It is quite true," the witness admitted. "He did take me."

Christine said she could not understand Ward's feelings about her association with West Indians because he also went to the clubs they frequented in London.
