GOV. WALLACE FORCED TO YIELD

FOUR-COUNTY FAIR TIME AGAIN — Dunn's 16th annual Four County Agricultural Fair, sponsored by Dunn Post No. 59 of the American Legion, swung into high gear last night, and Record photographer Russell Bassford was on the mile-long midway of Palmetto Street to film these shots. The girls, of course, just love those cuddly animals, it wouldn't be a fair without a ferris wheel. The biggest drawing card of all, of course, is lovely living dolls like this one at the girlie show. And cotton candy seems to be coming King Size this year. The mammoth agricultural and entertainment exposition will continue through Saturday night.

Flays Kennedy Action As Purely Political

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI)—Gov. George C. Wallace said today he would obey federal court orders restraining him from interfering with racial integration in Alabama schools because he "could not fight" bayonets with my bare hands.

Wallace, dapper in a blue suit and refreshed after a stormy night, said there was little he could do before the "whole armed might" of the United States.

"The court orders breaches of the peace. My duty is to preserve the peace. The governor is caught in the middle.

"I can't fight bayonets with my bare hands."

The scrappy segregationist said he would continue to "resist integration" by filing court suits attacking the 1954 Supreme Court decision outlawing school segregation.

The governor said the federalization of Alabama National Guardsmen by President Kennedy was "another long step toward a military dictatorship."

"Mr. Kennedy, consumed by his doubtful re-election, is taking complete charge. The Kennedy forces are laying the predicate for the jailing of the governor Alabama," he said.

"Is this being done because it has been announced that I might participate in some of the presidential primaries?" Wallace asked.

"When we come around to jailing political opponents we still have taken another long step toward a military dictatorship and we have several examples of these in banana republics of Central and South America."

RECORD RELEASED

Charles Lee Guy, III, son of former Dunn attorney and Mrs. C. L. Guy, may be on his way to fame and fortune.

Capital Records, one of the largest companies in the business, has just released an album by Guy entitled, "Prisoner's Dream." It includes about 10 or 15 selections written by Johnny Cash and other big-name artists while Guy was serving a prison term in California for slaying his mother's boy friend.

Three Facing Liquor Counts

Sheriff's deputies have arrested three men and charged them with violations of the state prohibition laws.

Junior Byrd of Banner Township was charged with possessing a 200-gallon, vat-type still and 500 gallons of mash and with manufacturing illegal liquor for the purpose of sale.

Glenn Johnson of Cleveland Township was charged with possessing a 60-gallon, copper still and 150 gallons of mash and with manufacturing illegal whiskey for the purpose of sale.

Delma E. Jernigan of Banner Township was charged with possessing a 60-gallon, copper still 140 gallons of fermenting mash, 11 gallons of white whiskey, and with possessing the distillery and materials for the purpose of manufacturing the illicit liquor for the purpose of sale.

The raids were made by Glenn Cobb, Daley Stewart, Fulton Moore, Braxton Hinton, and H. H. Olive, Jr.

FATHER DIES

Paul Ledford of Toxco, Ga., father of Poe Ledford of Dunn, died this morning. The body will be at Matthews Funeral Home there. Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

Too Many Actresses Taking Off Clothes

HOLLYWOOD — Stella Stevens says too many actresses are taking off their clothes — and blaming it on art.

"It's insecurity that makes actresses pose in the nude—not art. There's more art when something is left to the imagination," argues the beautiful blonde.

What makes Stella's opinion more newsworthy than most is that she once posed for a seven-page nude layout in Playboy magazine.

"My insecurity was money — lack of it. I was flat busted financially."

What started Stella off on the nude stride was a reference to the recent Jayne Mansfield layout in the same magazine.

"Jayne said she did it for art. What a laugh. She's insecure about her acting ability—and she panicked."

"Every actress who announces a nude pose is in the midst of an acting slump. I hope I never have to do it again. I was embarrassed."

Stella said she posed for the layout not long after 20th Century-

Dunn Hits Highest Avg. Tuesday

Dunn Tobacco Market hit its highest daily average of the season yesterday and its highest poundage in any one day.

The market in Dunn averaged $58.42 per hundred pounds yesterday for a total of 395,130 pounds for a total of $229,038.90.

The quality was extremely good. Farmers continued to pour their tobacco onto the warehouse floors in Dunn last night and today and a good break of tobacco was forecast for today too.

Tomorrow the market, along with other markets on the belt will go on a four hour sales day instead of the regular 5 and a half hour day.

This means the number of baskets per warehouse that can be sold will be 800 a day instead of 1,100 per warehouse thru next Monday.

Tomorrow opening sale will be at the Big Four Warehouse and the second sale is at the Planters.

Over 20,000 Tar Heels Served Green Reports 14% Increase By PCA

More than 20,000 North Carolina farmers were being served with nearly $85 million in short- and intermediate-term credit on July 31, 1963, by the 24 production credit associations in North Carolina, according to Herman P. Green, general manager of the Dunn Production Credit Association.

Mr. Green, who has just returned from a meeting of PCA executive committees held at Goldsboro, reported that the loan volume of these farmer owned and operated credit cooperatives has increased by 14 percent during the past year in meeting the increased credit needs of agriculture.

The theme of the meeting centered on keeping credit service geared to the needs of farmers and Mr. Green said, "It is necessary that North Carolina farmers employ more good management on their farms and do more sound financial planning in order to handle the increased amount of capital required on North Carolina farms today."

Dr. C. E. Bishop, head of the Agricultural Economics Department at North Carolina State College was guest speaker at the meeting and spoke on "The Changing Credit Needs of Farmers."

Mr. Green was accompanied to the Goldsboro meeting by the following officers and directors of the Dunn Association: E. E. Seay, president, Sam F. Hudson, director, James L. Warren, Clinton office manager and H. Ralph Kennedy, assistant secretary-treasurer.

In Slaying of Wife's Lover

A Harnett County man, accused by his estranged wife as the slayer of her lover at Sanford last Wednesday, has been requested by Lee County authorities to take a lie detector test, it was disclosed today by Lee Sheriff D. F. Holder.

Andy Mack Thomas, about 45, of Lillington, an ex-convict and the slaying suspect, reportedly has refused to take the lie test, but this fact could not be confirmed today.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Thomas, who unabashedly confessed she loved Harry Woodrow Fowler, 45, of Sanford although both of them were married to others, has been quoted as threatening to swear out a warrant for Thomas herself charging him with Fowler's murder.

Fowler was shot to death Wednesday night about 9 o'clock as he talked on the telephone in a trailer belonging to Mrs. Thomas in Sanford where she is employed.

Thomas has denied the shotgun slaying and claimed he was asleep at his home in Lillington at the time. By coincidence, his attorney, state Senator Robert Morgan of Lillington, filed a suit for divorce for Thomas against his wife in Harnett Recorder's Court on the very day of the killing.

Pretty Teenage "Other Woman" Says It Isn't True

Myrtle: Jury Wrong

Myrtle Naylor is an extremely cute little teenager, shapely, blonde, with a milk and honey complexion and a smile and personality that simply glows.

As State Senator and attorney Robert B. Morgan of Lillington described Myrtle, "she's as cute as a little doll."

So she is, reminding you of the girl-next-door who might have just stepped out of the church choir. She has poise, charm, personality, speaks politely in a delightful crystal-clear voice.

She definitely doesn't strike you as the sort of girl to fit the role she played last week, one that landed her in headlines all across the State and had a big part of the population of Harnett and the rest of the State talking and asking, "Who is Myrtle Naylor?"

For last week in Harnett Recorder's Court she was cast in one of the leading roles in the sordid, sensational divorce case of Charles and Rose McLamb, described by lawyers on both sides as "the meanest, most common case of its kind in all the history of Harnett County."

"OTHER WOMAN" Few people, if anyone, would ever picture Myrtle Naylor as "the other woman" in a love triangle that ended a marriage of over 15 years. Yet a jury late Friday afternoon found after more than two hours deliberation that Charles McLamb and this innocent-looking little doll had committed adultery Brought up by strict parents in a good home, Myrtle gave part of her side of the story today.

"Pretty perhaps — that's what they tell me," said Myrtle, "and popular — but what wants THAT kind of popularity? I'm ruined for life... I think I'll leave the State."

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Naylor, formerly of Dunn, and attended Dunn schools before moving to Erwin.

There was evidence that Myrtle had been living and carrying on an affair with Charles McLamb, well-known Dunn-Erwin business man.

ADMITTED NOTHING "The papers said I readily admitted being intimate with Charles McLamb," she related today. "I was asked this three times in court and denied it three times."

Rural policeman Carson Hall had testified he went looking for Myrtle at the request of her parents and found her at McLamb's home in his bed. The officer quoted the pretty young girl as admitting they had engaged in sexual intercourse on a sofa downstairs before she went upstairs to bed.

"I have never said that Charles and I slept together any."

and Rose McLamb was granted an absolute divorce, now being appealed by her husband to Superior Court.

Myrtle says the "jury was wrong" is just isn't true.

$50,000 Asked In Case Sent Back By Supreme Court

Trial Of Damage Suit Opens

Testimony was being heard today in Harnett Superior Court in the $50,000 damage suit brought in the death of Cecil Mack Ennis, 8-year-old boy.

Defendant in the suit is Mrs. Sarah Dupree Talley of Angier, a teacher in the Coats school and driver of the car which struck and fatally injured the child.

At an earlier term of court, the case was non-suited, but the State Supreme Court reversed the trial judge and ordered the case tried.

Mrs. Talley had testified the first time that the youth appeared suddenly in front of her car, explaining, "It looked like he dropped down from Heaven."

The Supreme Court held that he couldn't have dropped down from Heaven, as claimed, and remanded the case.

Dunn attorney Everette Doffermyre and State Senator Robert Morgan are representing the boy's estate, and Franklin T. Dupree, Sr. and son, Franklin, Jr., are defending Mrs. Talley.

First witness was Bill Ragsdale of Smithfield, a surveyor who testified the woman had 31 feet of visibility in front of her in which to see the child. The fatality occurred Feb. 16, 1959 as Mrs. Talley was enroute to her home in Angier from the Coats school.

Bennett May Manage Campaign

Judge Preyer In Governor's Race

GREENSBORO (UPI) — A three-man fight, contrasting the extremes in political ideologies, is shaping up for the 1964 North Carolina Democratic gubernatorial primary.

I. Beverly Lake of Raleigh is at one end of the political spectrum; L. Richardson Preyer of Greensboro is at the other, and Dan K. Moore of Canton is somewhere in the middle.

Preyer became the second of the three to announce his intentions. He told a hastily-called news conference Monday that he would resign as U. S. district judge to seek the Democratic nomination.

Moore, a former Superior Court judge, had previously announced he would seek the nomination and Lake, an attorney, has all but thrown his hat in the ring.

There will be at least one other candidate in the primary — R. J. Stansbury of Hillsboro — but observers feel the fight will be between the three previously mentioned candidates.

Three other prospective candidates — Bert L. Bennett, Robert W. Scott and Thomas Pearsall — have not yet committed themselves, but it is doubtful that they will enter the race.

LAKE STILL OUT FRONT Lake will represent the conservative wing of the party, Preyer the liberal and Moore presumably the moderate. Moore has not aligned himself as yet with any group, nor has he indicated what his platform would be. However, followers, including Sen. Sam Ervin, D.-N.C., have indicated he would take a moderate path.

At this stage, the fight looks like one of political ideologies rather than personalities, although the effects of the latter will no doubt be felt as the campaign picks up steam.

Preyer said he would withdraw (Continued on Page Six)

Would Raise County Taxes 50c Per $100 Valuation

School Vote To Be Oct. 19

The Harnett County Board of Commissioners, after a well-attended public hearing Monday morning, voted to go ahead with plans for a $4,000,000 bond election for consolidation of the county's high schools.

Saturday, October 19th was set as the date for the election.

Under the plan, the county's present ten high schools will be consolidated into three large consolidated high schools, with a minimum enrollment of from 800 to 1,000 each.

One disclosure that brought raised eyebrows at the hearing was a statement from County Auditor Herbert D. Carson that approval of the bond issue would mean an increase of from 50 to 60 cents per hundred dollar property valuation.

This means that a family owning a home or other property valued at $10,000 would pay an additional $50 to $60 a year in taxes.

It had been hoped that the consolidation could be accomplished with a smaller tax bite.

Chairman Lofton A. Tart of the county board presided. All other commissioners were present. They were Jack Brock of Erwin, Worth Lee Byrd of Lillington, A. C. Barefoot of Angier and Alex Cameron of (Continued on Page Six)
