Pollock Lauds Erwin 250

Erwin Local No. 250 of the Textile Workers Union of America (AFL-CIO) came in for high praise Saturday from William Pollock of New York City, General President of the nation-wide union and one of the country's top labor leaders.

"Erwin Local 250 stands out as a beacon light in the midst of an area not fully organized," declared Pollock, principal speaker at a Mortgage Burning Ceremony at which the mortgage on the handsome Union Hall building at Erwin was burned.

President Pollock had praise for President Joseph L. Smith, Business Manager Lloyd Byrd and all the other officers and members of Erwin's local. He recalled that it was his pleasure to be present for the first meeting held in the new hall when it was first opened Nov. 1, 1958.

He praised the union's progress and success and its record in paying off the mortgage on the $16,000 building two years before it was due.

Pollock was one of several prominent labor leaders present. Also present were W. M. Barbee of Durham, State CIO-AFL president; Julius Frye of Greensboro, State Director; Paul Swaity of New York, national education director who conducted an education institute that morning in Erwin; Jerry Blackwell, State public relations and publicity director; H. S. Williams, State vice president and Charles Austerlind, administrative director, all of Charlotte; Scott Hoyman of Spartanburg, S. C.; Clement D. Fowler of Spray, director of the Five-County Joint Board there; Dave Harrison, his business manager, and a number of others.

One page of the mortgage was burned by President Smith and Mr. Pollock and the other page by Red Sessoms, B. H. Hall, J. W. Strickland, and Harvey Tyndall, all retired charter members.

Full responsibility for the fact that earnings of North Carolina's factory workers are "at the very bottom of the national ladder," was laid at the door of the textile industry Saturday by William Pollock, General President of the AFL-CIO Textile Workers Union of America.

Barbour Buys Anderson Arms

The Anderson Arms Apartments in Dunn, sold at auction under mortgage today at the county courthouse in Lillington, was bought by Ellis Barbour, prominent Dunn insurance and real estate dealer.

Mr. Barbour's bid of $80,000 was tops.

Attorney Max McLeod, who sold the property as trustee for the mortgage holder, predicted Barbour's bid would be raised. Under the law, it has to stand open for ten days.

Original cost of the building was estimated at between $125,000 and $150,000.

Rep. Lacy Tells Harnett GOP

Sanford Diverting Food Tax He Pledged To Use For Schools

Republican State Representative Philip L. Lacy charged that while Governor Terry Sanford goes about the State preaching "quality education," he keeps diverting food sales tax revenue to the State's general fund for less important purposes.

Charging that the Democratic administration is currently spending seven per cent more than comes in from taxes, Lacy said the general fund has gotten into such bad shape from overspending that revenue from license tags, and gasoline tax marked for road work is also being diverted. He said the upcoming school bond election to decide on the issuance of $100 million in school bonds would not be necessary if the administration had used the food tax money for education purposes as Sanford had promised it would be used. The special session of the legislature to redistrict the Senate, said Lacy, cost $6,000 and is another example of waste and overspending. He said it could have been done during the regular session and should have been done then. Lacy was addressing the Harnett County Young Republican (Continued on Page Six)

High Tribunal To Hear Case Of Tar Heels

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court today ordered an appeals court rehearing of the narcotics conviction of Vito Genovese, recently identified as "boss of all bosses" of the Cesa Nostra crime cartel.

In a brief order vacating the 1959 convictions of Genovese and nine co-defendants, the high court directed the 2nd U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals to take another look at the case in light of a Supreme Court decision last term.

The supreme court also granted a hearing to Jesse James Arnold and George Dixon, two Negroes under death sentence in North Carolina for a 1961 robbery - murder near Kinston.

The court will schedule arguments on the appeal later this term and will follow with a written opinion.

The victim of the slaying was George T. McArthur, whose body was found in his small store.

The appeal said systematic exclusions of Negroes from the Lenoir County grand jury invalidated the indictment.

Today's action does not mean an automatic retrial for Genovese. Nor does it mean that he can now (Continued on Page Six)

Officer's Wife Claims Rape

LEAKSVILLE (UPI) — A Recorder's Court hearing today was continued until next week for a young mill worker charged with the attempted rape of a policeman's wife shortly after midnight.

Judge Herman Peters postponed the hearing until Oct. 26 to allow Buck K. Barrow, 28, time to hire a lawyer to represent him. Barrow was charged earlier in the day with assaulting a female with intent to commit rape, assaulting a policeman, and resisting arrest. Bond was set at $8,000.

Authorities said Barrow went to the home of officer Allen Page, a neighbor, and attempted to assault the policeman's wife while her husband was on duty. Mrs. Page said she called for help and (Continued on Page Six)

Campbell Board Honors Westbrook

At their regular meeting last Thursday, the trustees of the school raised the tuition that Campbell College will charge all students next year by $50. To the fees of out-of-state students they added an additional $50, for a total increase of $100.

In beginning their sessions, the trustees honored the late Earl McD. Westbrook of Dunn and Herbert W. Jones of Kinston, former trustees who had died since the last meeting of the group. Tributes were spoken by Rev. Tom Freeman, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Dunn for Mr. Westbrook and by Spurgeon Boyce of Durham for Mr. Jones.

A principal speaker of the session, Ben C. Fisher, executive secretary of the N. C. Council on Christian Education, said that he does not subscribe to the commonly held view that within 15 to 20 years church - related colleges generally will be out of business. "The poor ones will," he said. "The good ones are here to stay."

Under the new tuition rule boarding students from North Carolina will pay a minimum total of $926.50 and out-of-staters, $976.50 for a two-semester stint at Campbell. The cost to day students will be $536.50.

In announcing the action of the board, President L. H. Campbell explained that the increase was further planned adjustment of Campbell's income to meet greater expense of operating as a senior college. Campbell, in the third year of a new senior college program is continuing to install required upper level courses and employing instructors academically qualified to teach them.

Normal operating costs have risen for all schools, the college head noted, and the present increase does not represent a departure from Campbell's traditional policy of charging the minimum amount possible to a school not supported by public funds, he said.

Harnett County leaders today were still trying to analyze the results of Saturday's school bond election which defeated more than two-to-one a proposal to issue $4 million in bonds for consolidation of the county's 10 high schools into three senior high schools. Some observers attribute overwhelming defeat of the proposal to local pride in existing schools as many communities disliked the idea of giving up their local high school, but a majority agreed the real reason was the 45-55 cents tax increase which would have resulted from the indebtedness.

Whatever their reasons, Harnett citizens left no doubt about their feeling in the matter. With a total of 4660 ops cast, 3241 opposed the consolidation issue and only 1419 voted in favor of it.

Judge Sets Aside $10,000 Verdict Given Mrs. Capps

A Harnett Superior court jury awarded Mrs. Gladys McLamb Capps $10,000 for the wrongful death of her nine-month-old child killed in an automobile-truck collision that also claimed the life of her husband.

However, when jurors brought in the verdict, Judge Q. K. Nimmons of Fayetteville who had presided, set the verdict aside.

Mrs. Capps, as administratrix of the estate, sued J. C. McLamb and Alexander Smith, seeking $25,000 compensation. The child was killed in an accident on December 16, 1962 on State Road 2042, west of Bunnlevel. Mrs. Capps' husband was the driver of the pick-up truck in which the baby was riding, and Alexander Smith was the driver of the car which collided with the truck. Smith was negligent, the complaint alleged, and caused the death of the child.

Two issues were sent to the jury. (1) Was the plaintiff's intestate killed by the negligence of the defendant Alexander Smith as alleged in the complaint? The answer was "yes". (2) In what amount, if any, is the plaintiff entitled to recover? The answer, $10,000.

Matthew Demery Capps, father of the 9 months old child also died of injuries received in the (Continued on Page Six)
