

Texas Ranks 1st, Navy 2nd

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stamping Texas improved its No. 1 ranking today in the run-away race for the 1963 national college football title.

Thirty-two coaches — one more than last week — rated the Longhorns first in the United Press International ratings on the strength of their perfect record, the only one among the major powers.

Pittsburgh and Michigan State negotiated the only change in the top 10 from last week, the Panthers taking over fourth place from the Spartans, who replaced them in fifth.

Navy, enjoying the highest ranking ever held by a service team in the history of the ratings, fastened its hold on second place, drawing two No. 1 ballots. Mississippi slipped but clung to a three-point lead over Pittsburgh in third. The Rebels received the other first-place ranking from the 35-man board.

Increase Point Totals

Oklahoma, Alabama and Illinois each increased its point total in sixth, seventh and eighth, respectively. Ninth-ranked Nebraska and Auburn, No. 10 had the same totals as last week.

While the top 10 went undefeated last weekend for the first time this season, the second 10 was jolted severely with losers Washington No. 11, Baylor No. 14, Missouri No. 15 and Ohio State No. 17 dropping out of the ratings completely.

Syracuse, Penn State and Mississippi State moved up to take their places as the 11-12-12 teams. Southern California and Arizona State winner of seven straight tied for 14th and Wisconsin re-entered the ratings in 16th.

Memphis State, in the listings for the third consecutive week, finished in a 17th-place dead-lock with Kansas.

Utah Enters List

Eight-game winner Utah State entered the top 20 for the first time in 19th, and Georgia Tech and Army tumbled into a tie for 20th with the Air Force. The Cadets and Engineers were 12-13 last week, but were drubbed thoroughly last Saturday.

Texas rests this Saturday before completing its regular season Thanksgiving Day against Texas A&M.

The three biggest games between ranking teams take place this weekend, with bowl bids at stake in each one.

Illinois collides with Michigan State at Lansing, Mich., with the Big Ten title and a trip to the Rose Bowl riding the outcome. Nebraska, at home, tangles with Oklahoma, the winner to collect the Big Eight championship and an Orange Bowl invitation; and Penn State and Pitt meet in their annual rivalry at Pittsburgh with an Orange Bowl bid probably in the offing.

Senator Sam Ervin

WASHINGTON — The Senate foreign aid debate has hit hard at costly, wasteful, and unrealistic practices which have been a part of the AID program for years.

Many of the current criticisms, some of which have been winning amendments to the bill, have been voiced for a long time. But this time, there is a realization that with a serious U. S. trade deficit running in our balance-of-payments accounts with other nations, with a tax reduction bill before the Congress, and foreign competition becoming more keen than ever, it is time to take another look at foreign aid.

At stake is the necessity of bringing order, intelligence, and forthrightness into this instrument of foreign policy. At the same time, Congress has no desire to legislate foreign policy which is the undoubted prerogative of the President. It is charged with the duty of overseeing the expenditures of tax dollars and it intends to discharge that function.

What started out as a 4-year program, advocated as the Marshall Plan, has become an annual burden on the taxpayer. Just as Congress must question the usefulness and the wisdom of every appropriation for domestic purposes, it has a duty to question foreign aid in the same way. The fact that the program has not received such a critical review as this in recent years has in no way diminished the need for it. The Senate thinks the time is ripe for a reappraisal.

What the debate has produced is a detailed record on the program. Foremost in this record is that contrary to the annual protestations of reform there is still a lot of waste in the program. The foreign aid audits of the Comptroller General, many of them classified information, have revealed a multitude of costly mistakes. Military aid to many small nations has become of such doubtful value that it leaves room for much saving. The whole concept of what is a loan needs reform.

Several days ago, I inserted in the Congressional Record a news article showing that the Foreign Minister of Costa Rica deemed what we called a "foreign aid loan" to be a "gift" that would not have to be repaid by his country forty years from now. The experience which our nation has gained in a half century over nonpayment of so-called loans by other nations should have taught us better.

It is a documented fact that we have built through foreign aid competitive industries overseas to compete with our own products. It is amazing that our economic difficulties are not greater than they are. Nonetheless, they are serious enough to require a hard-headed approach to any future foreign aid program.

Congress has spent a great deal of time on foreign aid simply because the program as presented by the Administration was unrealistic in the light of our other spending programs and anticipated revenues. Moreover, the Administration failed to heed justifiable criticisms of the program which have built up over the years. As a result, Congress is saying that it, like the people, wants something done about a program that is out of touch with the times.

TO THE EDITOR:

Several months ago while visiting with one of our senators in Washington, he told me that the most distressing condition in Washington to him is the almost overwhelming attitude that the United States owes something to every one around the world except the American taxpayer. Apparently, the situation is now worsening.

For months now the duly elected representatives of the North Carolina General Assembly have been subjected to scorn and ridicule so intolerable that I must add one small non-influential voice to their defense with respect to the Anti-Communist Law designated by the press as the Speaker Law.

The fact that I was wounded twice in an infantry rifle company in Europe in World War II does not qualify me to speak; because others gave much more, many their lives. It grieves me deeply that the families of those who fought and died for our system of government now find that it is more fashionable to promote the interest of our enemies than our own citizens.

It is highly understandable why the administrators of our state supported institutions desire maximum freedom. However, the deplorable part of the situation is that it was the apparent violation of this very freedom by some administrators that convinced our legislature that such a law was needed.

As gloomy as the situation appears, there is a ray of hope. This hope rests in the fact that your newspaper with its editorial power can be instrumental in requesting that this problem be settled by a state-wide referendum. I am confident that our citizens will exercise far more wisdom (as they always have) than some people will give them credit for.

We had better remember that this fellow Khrushchev was not raised in the pleasant confines of a country club, but in the mines of Russia. Even President Kennedy can vouch for the fact that he and his followers are not soft traders. Witness, for example, his outpost now a mere 90 miles from the coast of Florida, and his wheat bins about to be filled with American wheat at a cost much less than what we Americans must pay for our own wheat.

At the same time Russia is arresting our professor (Professor Frederick Barghoorn of Yale), why are we coddling theirs? This kind of trading did not build nor will it sustain our great country.

Broadmindedness may be virtuous; but if Khrushchev is going to bury us, isn't it going a little beyond the call of duty to furnish him with the shovel?

Thanks to the free enterprise system our standard of living is the highest the world has ever known. We should guard this system with extreme jealousy.

The General Assembly deserves a vote of thanks rather than ridicule for passing the Anti-Communist Speaker Law, HB 1395. They will probably receive it, at the polls, next election!

Let us vote!!!!
Very truly yours,
B. B. Walker
