JFK PAID LAST TRIBUTES

THESE LITTLE THINGS

By Hoover Adams

NOTE TO MR. AYCOCK: A COMMUNIST KILLED JFK

It is traditional that American people admire, respect and love their President, whoever he may be or whatever their differences in politics or political philosophy.

The bitterest political opponents often are the very closest personal friends.

Every decent, loyal American citizen respects the office of President and the man who holds that office.

It is strange, therefore, in fact, amazing, that some of the left-wing, ultra liberals today are blaming the tragic assassination of President Kennedy on what they call "hatred, bigotry and bitterness" among the American people.

Nothing could be further from the truth.

KILLED BY COMMUNISTS

All available facts clearly show that our President was killed not by a conservative, not by a right-winger, not by a John Birchler but by a self-styled Communist and Marxist.

Lee Harvey Oswald had denounced the United States. He went to Russia to swear his allegiance to that country and to become a Russian citizen.

Lee Oswald advocated "fair treatment for Cuba," he wanted Americans to be allowed to travel to Cuba and wanted the channels of commerce and trade between the U. S. and Cuba resumed.

STRONG PARALLEL

Isn't Oswald's position on Cuba exactly the one taken by Larry Phelps, a recent graduate of the University of North Carolina who during the past summer defied the President of the United States and the State Department and went to Cuba as the guest of Fidel Castro?

Phelps, you may recall, is the same Communist sympathizer who just a few weeks ago was allowed by Chancellor William B. Aycock to speak "informally" in a dormitory at UNC. Though he reportedly spoke for about two hours to a group of nearly 200 students, Mr. Aycock excused it on the grounds that it was an "informal" (Continued On Page Five)

AT PAPA'S OFFICE—Secret door in his father's desk makes a wonderful playhouse for John Kennedy Jr. The little boy, just now turning three, comes into the President's office before bedtime when most people have gone home. There, dressed in robe and pajamas, John-John, as his father calls him, delights in playing quietly while his father works. (Look Magazine photo).

Father Buried on His Birthday

"I Want A Flag To Take To Daddy"

WASHINGTON (UPI) — "I want a flag to take home to my daddy." Those were the words of John Fitzgerald Kennedy Jr., who is 3 years old today.

The little boy was seen by millions of people clutching the tiny American flag in his fist as he walked down the 36 steps of the Capitol Sunday.

He got the flag in the Speaker's office for the tall man with laughing blue eyes who used to love him and pet him and take him on helicopter rides. The President who is no more.

John-John, as his father affectionately called him, was taken there when he got restless in the Rotunda where he had to be so still and couldn't break loose from his mother's firm hold.

Would understand His father, who was rarely still, would have understood.

John Jr., went to Arlington Cemetery today when the daddy he adored was laid to rest with other Americans. He has been there before and he has heard the sound of taps.

The President took his son to Arlington on Veterans Day, only two weeks ago, to honor the war dead. The youngster charmed the nation by saluting the men in uniform and attempting to fall in step with his father.

Today when there should be rejoicing for John Jr., there is sadness for him. He was to have a little birthday party Tuesday to celebrate with his playmates. He may still have that. His father (Continued on Page Five)

New Evidence Disclosed

Sure Oswald Did It

DALLAS (UPI) — Dallas police are absolutely sure they had President Kennedy's assassin.

"I have sent men to the electric chair on less evidence than we have now," said Dallas County District Attorney Henry Wade.

But Lee Harvey Oswald, 24, maintained he was innocent. He denied he shot Kennedy fatally, wounded Gov. John B. Connally, and later killed policeman J. D. Tippitt.

With absolute finality, a ny chance of getting at the truth was wiped out Sunday when Oswald was shot to death.

But what was the evidence that police had making them so certain they had the right man?

The Dallas News reported in a copyright article that it had learned of the most damning piece of evidence of all against Oswald — a map found in his room showing the path of the bullets that killed Kennedy and wounded Connally.

The News said this was the "major evidence" that police held (Continued on Page Five)

World Leaders Join Americans In Sad Farewell

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The soul of John Fitzgerald Kennedy, 35th President of the United States, was commended today to the care and mercy of God.

At a simple Roman Catholic funeral Mass, conducted by an old friend, the grief-numbed Jacqueline Bouvier Kennedy and her little boy and girl heard these words of comfort and promise:

"Life is not taken away..... life is but changed."

And from the words of Christ, recorded by St. John:

"I am the resurrection and the life; he who believes in Me, even if he die, shall live."

Also listening were the great of this nation and 53 other nations. Among them were the new President, Lyndon B. Johnson, and two former presidents, Harry S. Truman and Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Among them also were the towering General Charles de Gaulle of France; Soviet Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan; Prince Philip of Great Britain, and a host of other chiefs of state, kings, premiers, ministers, and special emissaires.

Conducts Mass

The pontifical requiem Mass, preceding burial on a grassy slope in Arlington National Cemetery, was conducted in the 65-year-old St. Matthew's Cathedral by Richard Cardinal Cushing of Boston, the friend and pastor who had performed the Kennedy's marriage ceremony in 1953 and baptized their children, Caroline and John Jr.

Caroline will be 6 on Wednesday. The slain President's beloved "John-John" was 3 today — the day of his father's funeral.

The last journey for the man who always will be remembered by his countrymen as the launty and bouvant and deeply dedicated JFK began at 10:48 a. m. EST.

That was when his flag-draped casket left the great rotunda of the Capitol where three other martyred presidents also had lain in state. It was drawn by seven gray (Continued on Page Five)

Secret Was Chief of D. C. Detective Division

Lillington Man Tells Risks Of Guarding Our Presidents

It is almost humanly impossible to prevent the President from being assassinated if the assassins want to get to him, said a man who spent nearly 30 years seeing to it that they did not.

"The President likes to see the people; and the people like to see the President," said Howl D. Secrest, retired chief of the detective division, Metropolitan Police of Washington, D. C., when pressed for a comment on the tragic death of President Kennedy from a sniper's bullet in Texas.

Secrest was among the few North Carolinians who could actually visualize what was happening in Washington when news of the President's death stunned the capital.

Secrest was one of the four men detailed on that April, 12, 1945 to leave their accustomed places at the White House and elsewhere to accompany Harry Truman, then vice - president on that historic day 18 years ago that saw him succeed Franklin Delano Roosevelt as president.

As chief of the detective division of the Metropolitan Police, Secrest was responsible for the safety of the President, the vice president and all foreign diplomats and visiting statesmen while in the District of Columbia.

He was among the men who met the body of President Roosevelt at Union Station in Washington. He was present when Truman was sworn in as President and remained beside him that historic day.

Secrest absolutely declined any comment whatever on protection measures taken in Dallas for the President. However, he noted that the Secret Service with which the division he headed worked closely, always goes over every foot of a route any President will travel.

He pointed out that automobile travel always presents safety hazards. In the old days in Washington, the President was always met at the train or airport by a car. Now in Washington the practice is to use a helicopter. "Much safer, much faster," Secrest observed, but noted that it is not the kind of vehicle Presidents like to use in touring.

The fact that the driver of the President's car knew where to turn immediately to the hospital was a sample of the minute advance planning that goes into a presidential visit, Secrest noted. Asked if he had ever been present when a shot was fired at a (Continued on Page Five)

Strip Operator Killed Oswald

Sex Dealer Faces Trial For Murder

DALLAS (UPI) — Jack Ruby, a Chicago street brawler, wanted the big time and came to Dallas to make it as a reeler in legal sex.

He had a record as a fighter, a bouncer in his own clubs, a fast man with his fists who occasionally got picked up on charges of carrying a concealed weapon. But none of his friends ever thought of him in the role he cast for himself — avenger of the martyred President.

"You son of a bitch," Ruby shouted at the manacled Oswald as he stepped up to him. He fired once with a .38-caliber snub-nosed pistol held four inches from the 24-year-old Oswald's chest. (Continued on Page Five)
