Wallace

captain at 15,000. "I intend to give the American people a clear choice," Wallace said.

"I welcome a fight between my philosophy and the liberal left-wing dogma which now threatens to engulf every man, woman and child in the United States.

"I am in this race because I believe the American people have been pushed around long enough and that they, like you and I, are fed up with the continuing trend toward a socialist state which now subjects the individual to the dictates of an all-powerful central government.

Wallace called on the people of Georgia and "the people throughout this great region — Yes, throughout the United States" to stand together.

"Then we can be the balance of power," he said. "We can determine who will be the next President."

Attacked Law Again. Wallace continued his attack on the civil rights law, calling it "fraudulent in intent, in design and in execution."

"It is misnamed," Wallace said. "Each and every provision is mislabeled. It was rammed through the Congress on the wave of ballyhoo, promotions and publicity stunts reminiscent of P. T. Barnum.

"It is not a civil rights bill. It is a federal penal code. It creates federal crimes which would take volumes to list and years to tabulate.

"It threatens our freedoms of speech, of assembly, of association, and makes the exercise of these freedoms a federal crime under certain conditions.

"It affects our political rights, our right to trial by jury, our right to the full use and enjoyment of our private property, the freedom from search and seizure of our private property and possessions, the freedom from harassment by federal police and, in short, all the rights of individuals inherent in a society of free men."

Bloody Record Written On Nation's Roads

By United Press International

The nation's motorists wrote a new record in death during the Fourth of July weekend, despite countless hours of police work and warnings from the National Safety Council.

The 1960 record of 442 deaths during the 78-hour Independence Day holiday was shattered.

The United Press International count showed at least 492 traffic deaths from 6 p.m. local time until 11:59 p.m. Sunday.

The breakdown: Traffic 492, Drownings 141, Flares 6, Miscellaneous 85.

Total 724. California had 76 fatalities, a record for any holiday in the state. Michigan counted 38 dead, also a record. Texas had 37, New York 28 and Illinois 26. There were 21 deaths in Ohio and 18 in Pennsylvania.

DOZEN IN N. C. By United Press International. The North Carolina July 4th fatality count went up to 12 Sunday night when a car left a rural paved road near Taylorsville, killing the driver.

Grayden Harry Jolly, 16, died when his car left the side of the road at high speed and rolled over several times.

The Highway Patrol said the accident occurred about four miles east of Taylorsville in Alexander County around 8:45 p.m. One other person in the car was said to be slightly injured.

The Highway Patrol said the death boosted the state's traffic fatality count for the year to 716 — or 11 more than the number killed at the same time last year.

Civil Rights Closes Hotel

JACKSON, Miss (UPI) — The Robert E. Lee Hotel, one of Jackson's three largest and a landmark for 30 years, closed its doors today rather than integrate under the new civil rights law.

The action came after three other downtown hotels complied without incident Sunday with the new federal law and admitted civil rights leaders.

The Gammill Co., owner of the 250-room Robert E. Lee, said in a statement that "due to certain provisions of the recently enacted civil rights act, we feel, as owners of private property, that we can no longer operate this hotel as a public facility."

The statement noted the hotel was named "in honor of General Robert E. Lee, a renowned Confederate hero and a true gentleman of the South."
