"John Doe"

A "John Doe" warrant charging violation of prohibition law brought the real owner of a liquor laden car into court to try and get it back. Blanche Walker told the court that she was the owner of the 1956 Ford that the officers captured along with 29 gallons of non-tax paid whisky. She was not driving it, and claimed the car had been stolen, but officers said it was not reported stolen until the next day. Court didn't go along with the stolen car business, and Judge Robert B. Morgan ordered the car confiscated and sold according to law. Officers said the driver of the car jumped out and ran when officers closed in on him, and he got away. Two men were in the car, but neither was recognized, said Deputy B. E. Sturgill.
