County Board Allots

$15,000 To Lure Industry

The Harnett County Board of Commissioners Monday allocated $15,000 to the Harnett Agri-Business Development Committee in its efforts to attract new industries to the county.

Chairman Melvin Turlington and a group of leaders in the movement, known as "Harnett County's Future," appeared before the board and submitted a comprehensive 23-page report citing the need for a full-time organization and also listing what is being done in other towns and counties.

Alex Cameron, chairman of the board of commissioners, and its other members were high in their praises of the work done by Mr. Turlington and his group in laying the foundation for the movement.

Recommendations included a request that the county appoint a committee to be comprised of the mayor of each town, the head of the chamber of commerce in each town, and another representative from each of the county's five districts.

This organization would then employ a full-time director to give Harnett a vigorous program designed toward greater development of industry, agriculture and business in the county.

Turlington had requested an allocation of $30,000 but said he was well pleased with the $15,000 grant.

The board postponed appointment of committee members.

Serving on the committee with Turlington were: Carson Gregory, Angier, Route 2; Guyton Smith, Arthur Denning, Mayor George Blalock, all of Dunn; Mayor J. A. Senter of Lillington; Jack Marley, James S. Collins, D. W. Denning, all of Angier; Fred T. Taylor and W. A. Shaw of Spring Lake, W. M. Harper, Fuquay, Rt. 1; Lloyd Stewart, Broadway, Rt. 1; Dr. D. C. Woodall and C. W. Howell, Erwin; Godfrey Beasley, Coats; W. J. Cotton, Sr., Kipling; Erles Johnson, Bule's Creek; Roy Byrd, Bunnlevel, W. B. Olive, and H. L. West, Sanford, Route 6.

Says Gun Went Off Accidentally

Angier Man Held In Wife's Slaying

A coroner's inquest was scheduled to be held this (Monday) afternoon at 5 o'clock into the shotgun slaying of Mrs. Barbara Jean Price West, 18-year-old wife of Bobby West, 21-year-old Angier brickmason.

West is being held in the county jail without privilege of bond pending action by the jury impaneled by Assistant Harnett Coroner Danny Watkins of Angier.

The young woman was dead on arrival at Rex Hospital in Raleigh, the side of her head blasted off by the blast from a .12 gauge bolt action shotgun.

NO EYE WITNESS Her husband said he was using the shotgun in an attempt to retrieve a dresser scarf from behind a piece of furniture when the gun accidentally went off. He rushed screaming out of the house. An ambulance from Overby Funeral Home, just across the street, was on the scene within minutes. There were no eye witnesses to the shooting.

The shooting occurred in the bedroom of their apartment, located at the home of Mrs. West's mother, Mrs. Ammie Price.

The couple had been married just a year on July 4. She was a native of Angier; her husband a native of Benson.

West was taken into custody by Sheriff Wade Stewart. One officer was quoted as saying there had been indications of domestic troubles between the couple. Other sources said the couple was devoted to each other.

Angier policemen Woodrow Hockaday and Police Chief Warren Gardner assisted in the investigation.

Will Soon Become Officer Steve Surles Now At Navy's OCS

Steve Surles, 23-year-old son of Mrs. Iris Surles of Dunn, has entered the Navy's Officer Candidate School at Newport, Rhode Island.

After a rigorous program of training, he will be commissioned an Ensign in the Navy in about four months.

The popular Dunn youth, a former Daily Record carrier boy, received a Bachelor of Arts degree at the University of North Carolina before entering military service.

He is a graduate of Dunn High School, where he played football and was a popular campus leader. He was also active in the Boy Scouts and other youth affairs here. He is a member of the First Baptist Church.

Steve also won a scholarship for outstanding scholastic achievement.

The Dunn youth, who bears a strong resemblance to the late President Kennedy, was photographed with Vice President Nixon when his Scout troop visited the nation's capital.

In a letter to his mother, well-known Dunn woman, Steve reports the training schedule at Newport is plenty rough — beginning at 4:30 a. m. He wrote that some weeks he averages only about four hours sleep a night. But he likes Navy life fine and has signed up for a three-year tour of duty.

Formal Charges Pending

Suspects Held In Robbery-Slaying

Dunn police were holding two unidentified suspects today in Friday's brutal robbery - slaying of two elderly men at a dry cleaning plant here.

Killed were Rev. Archie McLean and James McDougald, 70.

Police Chief Alton A. Cobb and SBI Agent Bill O'Daniel were in Raleigh having tests made at the State crime laboratory.

"I feel pretty sure we've got the right men in jail," said Chief Cobb. He declined to release their names, however, pending formal charges. There were indications that charges will be brought before the end of the day.

One of the men reportedly denied he did the actual killing, but claimed he was with the other one when it happened.

The SBI entered investigation of the slaying almost immediately and assigned Dunn Agent William (Bill) O'Daniel to assist local police.

Police Chief Alton Cobb said the men had apparently been robbed "after the brutal beating with a one-inch pipe."

The death weapon was found in a back room of the building. It had been used on the heads of the victims.

Pockets Emptied Cobb said police were told that McDougald usually carried his laundry's funds on his person. Pockets of both men had been emptied. The rear pocket of McDougald's trousers was ripped off. Police found only "two or three cents" in the locked cash register.

McDougald, a businessman here for the past 35 years, had a six-inch cut on his neck, plus several smaller cuts.

Officers surmised the cuts could have been produced by an electric cord wrapped two or three times around McDougald in what was an apparent attempt to tie him.

The minister, partially paralyzed by a stroke, walked with a cane. The cane was found beneath his body.

The murders occurred just a few doors off the main street in the heart of Dunn's business district. Hundreds of afternoon shoppers were attracted to the scene.

James Bell, nephew of McDougald, found the bodies, and called police.

He found the front door locked and went to the back door, which had been left partially open by the assailant or assailants of the victims.

J. L. Jackson and O. T. Wilson Jr., first policemen to reach the scene, said both bodies were found in pools of blood at the rear of the establishment.

Both men had been beaten almost beyond recognition. McDougald's right hand was clenching several teeth which had been knocked out of his mouth. His head was "beaten to a pulp." (Continued on Page Eight)

Dog Complaints

At its meeting Thursday August 20 the Dunn Board of Commissioners will take up the question of the numerous dog complaints here.

"If the situation continues as is," said City Manager A. B. Uzzie, "it may be decided that the police will concentrate their attention for several days to using a rifle or shotgun to dispose of the dogs that have no apparent owner or whose owners do not keep the dogs under their control."

It is reported dangerous to walk on some streets especially at night when packs of dogs are seen. (Continued on Page Eight)
