The American Legion Post No. 59 will again sponsor the Fair, with the Harnett County Extension Service and vocational and home economics teacher cooperating.

Educational exhibits which will be judged on the Danish system will be scored on simplicity, clearness of objective, attractiveness and general appearance, and educational value.

A total of $210 in prize money also awaits entries in the home demonstrations clubs in which exhibits may have as their theme foods and nutrition, food conservation, clothing, housing, family relations, home gardens, health recreation, home management and live-at-home.

In both divisions the exhibits must clear with Mrs. Ruby I. Parker, Harnett home economics agent.

Other exhibits will include choice samples of fields, home gardens and conservation. Baked goods, crafts and clothing also will be shown.

Prizes of $500 await swine growers and there also will be an egg show.

A tractor rodeo will have junior and adult divisions, with a $25 savings bond rewarding top winners in both divisions, a $10 cash award second, and five dollars, third place. The contest will consist of tractor and machinery safety, two-wheel driving, tractor maintenance and operation. Junior divisions will be limited to ages 12 to 17 and adult to 18 years upward.

Those interested should contact their vocational agriculture teacher or the County Extension agents. Name of entries must be submitted to Bill Crowder, chairman not later than Sept. 14.

Monday's meeting will be held in the Fellowship Hall of Divine Street Church at 6:45. President Biggs strongly urges all men of the Methodist Church to attend.

$93 Million Landed N. C. Farmers

Dunn PCA Group Attends Meeting

More than 20,000 North Carolina farmers were being served with nearly $93 million in short and intermediate-term credit on July 31, 1964, by the 24 production credit associations in North Carolina, according to Herman P. Green, General Manager of the Dunn Production Credit Association.

Mr. Green, who has just returned from a meeting of PCA executive committees held at Durham, reported that the loan volume of these farmer owned and operated credit cooperatives has increased by more than $8 million during the past year in meeting the increased needs of North Carolina farmers.

to assist PCAs in keeping credit service geared to the needs of North Carolina farmers," according to Mr. Green, who said, "The rapidly changing credit needs of farmers and the many complexities involved in financing farm business makes it imperative that lenders serving farmers keep abreast of developments in agriculture."

Dr. George W. Hyatt, Jr., Director of the North Carolina Agricultural Extension Service, was guest speaker at the meeting and spoke on "Current Developments Affecting North Carolina Agriculture."

Favors Allowing Prayer In Schools

Barry Raps Court Decision

CHICAGO (UPI) — Sen Barry Goldwater today accused The Supreme Court of using "raw naked power" in its decisions on legislative reapportionment and prayers in school.

dent Johnson to the court as he wound up the last day of his first week cross-country campaigning.

Speaking of the reapportionment and prayers decisions, Goldwater said "there has been only the most half-hearted effort, either within or without the court, to justify these decisions."

Thursday night in Minneapolis, he told an overflow audience that attempts by the federal government to "legislate morality" and had incited hatreds and violence.

White Backlash, Larger Negro Vote Evident

ATLANTA (UPI) — Georgia voters apparently no longer abide by the political book of rules when it comes to elections.

This was proven this week in the state's Democrat and Republican primaries when the voters tossed aside the book en route to the polls and did some things no one expected.

What happened, if nothing else is a vivid if somewhat confused picture of the general political upheaval in the South these days.

The primaries, of course, told only part of the story. The rest will come in the general election.

Factors Emerge

However several things emerged clearly as a result of the primaries:

1. There is a white backlash vote in the South as well as the north where Alabama Gov. Georgia C. Wallace first unearthed it.

2. Negro voters in large southern cities are more powerful than ever before and unlike the general Negro picture in the South as a whole, they vote in blocks.

3. Right now, not tomorrow or next month, the Democrats will have to start fighting hard to carry their once solid South in the November presidential election.

4. The two-party system in the South is here to stay.

All these changes may work some hardship on the voter. For the first time, Georgia voters had to decide what they were — Republicans or Democrats. They couldn't vote in both, or cast votes hither and yon.

Voters Confused

This annoyed and confused many of them.

The Atlanta Journal, in an editorial, put it this way: "On Wednesday, voters took part in Republican or Democratic primaries. On Nov. 3 comes the election. This has been a date ignored here except in presidential years, for the Democratic primary has been the thing that counted. An era died here on Wednesday. Another was born and it is difficult to see how it can fall to be an improvement on the past."

Lillington Methodists Plan Event

Church Will Use Its New Sanctuary

Lillington Methodists are making many preparations for the service to be held in the newly remodeled sanctuary on Sunday, Sept. 13, at 11 a. m.

A new vestibule, new portico with glazed brick floor, new brick steps and white columns were added. Erected on the basement level of the vestibule and linking with all Sunday school quarters is a bride's room. There is also storage space for choir robes and other church needs in the vestibule addition.

The church has been almost completely remodeled with a new chancel extended into an area that was once a link with the educational building to the rear. New pews in walnut, new chandeliers of colonial design, red carpet and stained glass windows have been installed.

Rev. Franklin Grill, the pastor, said today that many former members, or their relatives, have had a share in a variety of memorial gifts for the new sanctuary.

Season's High Hit Yesterday

Dunn Market Averages $61.29
