Youngster Passes College Exams

BOULDER, Colo. (UPI) — A 12-year-old girl who passed college entrance exams will enter the ninth grade at St. Gertrude's Academy here this fall.

Sandra Louise Sanborn - who was never in a school classroom before last June - passed her entrance examinations at the University of Colorado.

Although college officials said she has the capacity for getting A's and B's in competition with other freshmen students, they said she might be up against "unrealistic" competition socially if she entered the university.

The girl was taught trigonometry and the Greek alphabet at the age of four by her father.

When she enters the ninth grade, she will be two grades ahead of normal for her age. She was taught by her father, Robert, 54, a former electronics engineer, and her mother, Linda, 50, a secretary in the department of Slavic and Eastern languages at the University of Colorado.

Riot Occurs When Beatles Perform In Cleveland

CLEVELAND (UPI) — The Beatles have been here and gone, but the memory of their Tuesday visit lingers on - especially in the minds of teen-agers and police.

The British rock and rollers had a real show-stopper Tuesday night - police temporarily halted the Public Hall performance when a near riot occurred among the 10,000 screaming teen-aged fans in the audience.

The shaggy-haired foursome left Cleveland immediately after the show to do for New Orleans what they have done for all the other cities they have visited on their current North American tour. Cleveland police gave a loud sign of relief at the Beatles' leaving.

Ringo, John, Paul and George had barely gotten started with their show when a wave of teen-agers surged through barricades in front of the marshall and confetti - littered stage. While policemen struggled to contain the invasion, Inspector Michael Blackwell called a halt to the performance.

"The show's over," he announced to the loudly protesting fans who were stunned by Blackwell's announcement.

But minutes later, after a hurried conference between the inspector and Derek Taylor, the Beatles' tour manager, the mop headed quartet resumed to the delight of the 10,000.

Taylor, who said it was the first time the Beatles had encountered such a situation, warned that "one more incident like this and the show is over."

A few girls were trampled in the attempted storming of the Beatles' nest, but they were not seriously hurt.
