Cameron Asks Support For School Bonds

Chairmen Alex M. Cameron of the County Board of Commissioners today wholeheartedly endorsed the $100 million school bond issue for building construction and appealed to other citizens to vote for it next Tuesday.

He said a vote in favor of the issue would not increase State taxes but warned that failure to approve the State bonds would result in heavier property taxes in the county because the building must be done.

Following is the complete text of Mr. Cameron's statement:

"On November 3, the people of North Carolina will vote whether the State should issue $100 million in bonds to help counties build schools. On behalf of the Board of County Commissioners, I urge all voters in the county to vote for these bonds."

"At the present time, schools are constructed from the proceeds of property taxes, and total property taxes are becoming very burdensome. For the State as a whole, county property taxes have more than doubled in the last ten years, to meet rising school, welfare, health and other costs."

"Municipal taxes have also doubled, with the result that the total property tax bill in North Carolina now amounts to $250 million a year. Sixty per cent of this comes from taxes on homes, farms, and individual personal property and 20 per cent comes from buildings and inventories of stores, shops, and other commercial establishments. The rest comes from industries and utilities."

"It has been estimated that school construction in the next five or six years must total $400 million if we are to build classrooms that our children need. If counties are to meet these needs from property taxes alone, our tax rates for school construction will have to be doubled. This would impose a tremendous burden on the property tax. But with $100 million in help from the State, as would be provided from the proposed State bond issue, the goal can be reached."

"Our State officials have assured us that the proposed State bond issue can be repaid without any increases in State taxes. But if the bond issue is defeated, it is clear that county property taxes will have to be increased. And the increase will be substantial. In terms of present assessed valuations, $100 million is equivalent to 88 cents on every $100 of assessed valuation in the State."

"For these reasons, the people of this county should vote FOR the State Bond Issue on November 3. It will not increase their State taxes. But if the bond issue fails and school needs have to be met from property taxes alone, they will certainly have to pay higher property taxes."

ALEX M. CAMERON
 Chairman, Board of County Commissioners.

BARRY GOLDWATER would strengthen Social Security

HE SAID IN THE SENATE ON AUG. 21, 1964

"I favor a sound Social Security system and I want to see it strengthened. I have voted for genuine improvements in the system since I have been in the Senate. Recognizing the important role being filled by Social Security, we can and should, of course, make improvements from time to time in such areas as the financing and operation of the system. I supported the 1956 amendments to the Social Security Act and, in 1958, I voted to raise benefits so that their value in terms of purchasing power would be preserved. I voted in 1956 to lower from 65 to 62 the age at which all women could claim OASI benefits. These are worthy improvements in the Social Security system, enabling it to serve us better in fulfilling its fundamental purpose. These improvements should be clearly distinguished from schemes designed to alter that purpose and, thereby, to overburden the system."
