Suggested For Governorship

Regan Proposed As GOP Candidate

HOLLYWOOD UPI — Ronald Reagan, handsome and articulate, has been suggested as a future Republican candidate for office, but the actor says the idea "has never particularly appealed to me."

Reagan was co-chairman for the Goldwater-Miller GOP presidential campaign in California and made nationwide television speeches on behalf of the party.

After election day, Republican Frank Jordan, California's secretary of state, suggested that Reagan could be a good candidate for California's governor. His speech for Goldwater was one of the most effective of all.

"I've never had any political aspiration as a candidate," Reagan said.

Baptists To Open Session Tomorrow

GREENSBORO (UPI) — North Carolina Baptists open their 134th state convention here on Tuesday with two proposals concerning church - supported colleges facing the more than 5,000 delegates.

The proposals, which would require changes in the Baptist State Convention's constitution, would permit non - Baptists and non-residents of North Carolina to serve on the boards of trustees of Baptist supported colleges; and permit the colleges to participate in the Higher Education Act of 1963.

Participation would mean that up to one - third of the cost of libraries, science buildings, classroom space and other buildings, with the exception of those used for religious purposes could come from the federal government.

A similar plan for permitting non - Baptists and non-residents on the boards of trustees was defeated when the convention met last year in Wilmington.

Both programs have been approved by the convention's general board but the Rev. H. L. Ferguson, who opposes the proposals, plans to submit a minority report.

Rev. Tom Freeman of Dunn is a leader of this opposition group.

Voting on the amendments to the constitution will take place

He's Regarded As Friend To United States

TOKYO (UPI) — The Japanese Parliament today elected pro-Western Isaku Sato as prime minister to succeed the ailing Hayato Ikeda. Sato was handpicked by Ikeda in a dramatic bedside conference that broke a political deadlock.

Sato is expected to maintain Japan's close relationship with the United States, and keep the country firmly in the Western camp. But he is not expected to halt Japan's increasing trade with Communist China, started in the Ikeda regime.

The new prime minister assumed office at a time of unrest among militant Japanese students. More than 20,000 staged a demonstration Sunday in the southern port city of Sasebo against the scheduled visit of American nuclear submarines. Six persons were arrested in clashes with police. A similar clash occurred Saturday in Yokosuka.

Communist Agitated

The students were agitated by Communist and Socialist propaganda.

The 63-year-old former finance minister is the brother of Nobusuke Kishi, who was prime minister during the 1960 riots that caused then President Dwight D. Eisenhower to cancel his visit to this country. This is the first time that brothers have served as Japan's chief executive. It is a frequent Japanese custom for brothers to have different surnames.

Instructed To Study Needs, Locate Site

Committee Is Named To Seek County Hospital For Harnett

A committee to study the health and hospital needs of Harnett and to explore the possibilities of securing a county hospital was named at a county-wide meeting of leaders of the group and other interested citizens held at Campbell College.

The committee was directed to receive information and bids on proposals for property for the site of a new county hospital in the general area between Coats and Erwin.

Chairman Alex Cameron of the county board of commissioners at the meeting and was named to serve as temporary chairman of the new committee until it holds its first meeting and elects its own chairman.

The meeting to discuss the possibility of a county hospital was called by the county commissioners at the request of 16 members, or a majority, of the county medical society.

William Henderson, executive secretary of the N. C. Medical Care Commission, declined an invitation to the meeting and advised the county that medical care funds have already been committed for a new $2,670,000 hospital in Dunn and will not be available for a county hospital unless the Dunn project is abandoned.

Dunn citizens voted 96.1 in favor of a bond issue of $550,000 to supplement Medical Care and other funds and Dunn's city council has already agreed on a site for a new hospital here, but Mayor George F. Blalock is advocating that the proposed Dunn hospital plan be abandoned in favor of a county hospital on grounds the town is not large enough or financially strong enough to operate a municipal hospital.

Dr. Bruce Blackman of Bule's Creek, a leader in the movement for a county hospital, made the motion to set up the committee and Blalock seconded it. Passage was unanimous.

Dr. Blackman, pointing out that the two existing hospitals, Betsy Johnson in Dunn and Good Hope in Erwin, do not provide adequate facilities for the entire county, said the movement for a new county hospital was started 18 months ago at a meeting of the county medical society and read from the minutes to substantiate the fact.

Trustees of Betsy Johnson started work immediately thereafter to secure the county's allotment of Medical Care funds to be used for a Dunn hospital and were successful. Efforts for a county hospital were renewed after the Dunn project became bogged down first in a controversy over site, now settled, and then by Mayor Blalock's arguments for a county hospital instead.

It was brought out at the meeting in Bule's Creek that a 200-bed hospital costing $3,600,000 could be provided with a county-wide levy of only 13 cents additional tax as compared with the 115 bed $2,070,000 hospital proposed for Dunn at an increase of 27 cents more in taxes for Dunn taxpayers for 27 years. The present Betsy Johnson hospital has 85 beds.

Chairman Myres Tilghman and trustees of Betsy Johnson and Dunn doctors declined an invitation to the Bule's Creek meeting, pointing out that plans for the hospital were already made and would be pushed to completion and that no good could be obtained from such a meeting.

New hospital do not materialize, the
