Lillington Seeking Development Award

Officers of the Lillington Improvement Council yesterday presented the story of their community achievements to the judges in the Capital Area Development Association.

Lillington is the only community in Harnett County to enter the new urban competition open to towns over 1,000 population and hence was declared the county winner. Lillington in turn will compete with county winners the same division in a seven-county area.

Mary Stewart Community near Dunn was announced as the county winner in the rural classification. Area winners will be revealed at the annual dinner meeting of the Capital Area Association to be held at 7 p. m., Nov. 18 in Oxford. A large delegation is expected to attend from Harnett County.

Taking part in the participation of the Lillington "improvement story" were: William McKay Johnston, president, who made the introduction; Mrs. Casey Fowler, home improvement phase; Joe Norwood, president of the Chamber of Commerce, commercial; Miss Flossie Ezell, public facilities; Jerry Ennis, recreation; Donald O'Quinn, education; Edgar Bain industrial gains; Vance Hamilton, farm development; and Rev. Frank Grill, religious.

Judges were Mrs. Jane Struthers, home service representative Carolina Power and Light Co., Sanford; Al Calloway, Raleigh, development representative, Commerce and Industry Division, State Conservation and Development; Robert T. MacMillan, Fayetteville, Powell and Kistler brokerage firm.

Counties linked with Harnett in the Capital Area include Wake, Johnston, Vance, Warren, Granville and Franklin.

Cotton Vote

timated normal supply by 41 per cent.

The carryover of upland cotton on August 1 of this year was 12.1 million bales. With 1964-crop yields indicated at a record high of 522 pounds per acre domestic usage plus exports during the marketing year is expected to be less than the 1964 crop, and the carryover is expected to increase to about 12.6 million bales by August 1, 1965. A carryover this size has been exceeded only once—in 1956.

If at least two-thirds of the growers voting in the referendum approve quotas for the 1965 upland cotton crop, price support at a level within the range of 65 to 90 per cent of parity will be available to growers who do not exceed the farm's acreage allotment, additional price support in the form of payments will be available to growers to keep their acreage within the farm's "domestic allotment," and marketing quota penalties will apply to any excess cotton produced on a farm.

If more than one-third of the voters oppose quotas for the 1965 crop, the regular allotment program will remain in effect, and price support will be available to growers who do not exceed their acreage allotments at 50 per cent parity, as provided by law.

All farmers who engaged in the 1964 are eligible to vote in the production of upland cotton in December 15 referendum.

Codrington

Harnett County and North Carolina.

Dunn Mayor George Franklin Blalock had prior engagement out of town but sent his own praise and congratulations to Dr. Codrington for helping make the town a better place in which to live.

Dr. Codrington was the town's oldest practicing physician at the time of his retirement and was a member of the medical staff of Betsy Johnson Memorial Hospital from the day it opened. He played an important role in establishment of the Dunn Health Center and donated his time in working there throughout the years.

Well known in education circles, Dr. Codrington served for 25 years as chairman of the board of Harnett High School. He has also served as a trustee of Shaw University and has held other important education posts in the State.

Important Leader
Dr. Codrington has held practically every lay position in the St. John's Baptist Church and donated the land on which its new parsonage was erected a few years ago.

He has participated and taken a leading role in practically every city-wide movement in every field of endeavor in the town throughout the years.

The Rev. B. E. Felder, pastor of St. John's, gave the opening remarks at the ceremony, the Scripture and the Benediction. Invocation was by the Rev. G. D. McNeill.

Members of the committee in charge of arranging the event were: Mrs. B. G. Rhue, chairman, Mrs. L. D. Perkins, Mrs. N. L. Boston, C. C. Ray, W. N. Porter, principal of Gentry School, and Miss L. L. Culbreth.

A duet was presented by Mrs. B. G. Rhue and Mrs. N. L. Boston.

Defendant Slated To Testify

State Ends Case Against Rinaldi

HILLSBORO (UPI) — The state finished its case against accused wife-slayer Frank Joseph Rinaldi today and Superior Court Judge Raymond Mallard denied a defense motion to throw out the murder charge for lack of evidence.

Rinaldi, a former University of North Carolina English instructor charged with murdering his wife, Lucille, last Christmas Eve, was expected to take the stand in his own behalf when the defense presents its case later.

The state wound up its arguments after an agent for the State Bureau of Investigation (SBI) took the witness stand to corroborate testimony that Rinaldi tried to hire a Negro waiter to kill his wife.

At the conclusion of the state's case, the defense asked Judge Mallard for a non-suit on grounds that the state's evidence was "only circumstantial and merely raised suspicion and conjecture."

Defense attorneys argued that there was "nothing in evidence to place the defendant at the scene of the crime when the crime was committed."

The SBI Agent, Frank Satterfield, recounted statements made by the Negro waiter, Alfred Louis Foushee, 27, who testified Thurs-
