A joint piano-voice concert will be given tonight at 8:00 in the J. Clyde Turner Memorial auditorium at Campbell College. The program will feature Miss Geraldine Matthews, pianist and Wayne Turnage, bass baritone. Accompanying Mr. Turnage will be Miss Libby McCarthy.

After graduation in 1965, he will continue his studies in the graduate department of Indiana State University's School of Music.

Wayne is at present choir director of Hood Memorial Christian Church here having served in the same capacity at the First Baptist Church previously.

He and Miss Matthews were both part of the cast and chorus of "The Lost Colony" this past summer, where plans were first made for this joint concert.

Mr. Turnage will perform works by Handel - Mozart, Gounod, Wolf, Sibelius and several other composers.

His accompanist, who also joined Wayne for a joint recital this past spring, is a junior at Campbell where she is majoring in piano. At present she is studying with Miss Matthews.

Miss McCarthy was accompanist on the recent, senior recital of Miss Louise Wilson given at Campbell. Upon graduation she plans to carry her talents into the teaching field.

State Trooper W. T. Harris of Dunn said McLean had picked up his wife, the former Dolly Lewis, at Erwin Mills where she had been working and was crossing the old Highway 421 when the 1959 Chevrolet he was driving was struck by a 1967 Mercury operated by John Spears, 23, of Coats, Route 1. Livestock Grows In Its Importance

By Vance E. Hailton
Asst. Agri. Extension Agent

Livestock is an important part of Harnett County's economy and is probably to become even more so. This was the conclusion reached by the livestock planning committee.

T. D. O'Quinn, Harnett County livestock agent, met with Troy Cotton, Sam McArthur and Jack West recently to discuss plans for the coming year. The committee realizes that the county is an almost ideal area for additional livestock production. There are local markets, land, feed and foundation stock available.

Plans for the year includes emphasizing expansion and doing a better job with present growers. The committee decided more work was needed in commercial beef cattle production in the following areas: Time of breeding, care at calving time, castrating and dehorning, vaccinating, parasite control, culling, marketing, creep feeding and providing supplements.

The areas of commercial swine production selected for emphasis were: breeding programs, care at farrowing time, care of pigs, parasite control, mineral mixtures and protein requirements.

Information on these practices are available at the county agent's office. Anyone desiring to get started in livestock production or to expand their present operation is encouraged to talk their plan over with Mr. O'Quinn or other members of the agricultural staff.
